Battle Will Continue Until '36 Election.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—The greatest battle to date between conservatives and New Dealers over recovery policies will open in congress tomorrow when the ways and means committee of the house begins consideration of President Roosevelt's tax program.

This struggle will be a curtain raiser to the still greater battle of the ballots in the presidential election next year when the people will decide whether they wish to continue to the left on the New Deal road to a new economic and social order or turn to the right in search of recovery by the processes that have produced prosperity in the past.

Aim to Break Fortunes.

On one side are ranged the President and the other New Dealers whose aim is to break up large fortunes and check the development of large corporations, to change the form of government to establish regimented and collective enterprise, to limit production in accord with their economic theory of scarcity, to limit profits and to continue monetary experimentation and a prodigal spending of public money with a budget indefinitly unbalanced and inflation just around the corner.

On the other side are gathered conservative Republicans and conservative Democrats who contend that these New Deal policies are hindering recovery and heading the country toward financial and economic chaos.

They assert recovery is lagging because scarcity economics have curtailed purchasing power and because business men lack confidence in the safety of ventures under a governmental régime that breeds uncertainties with respect to profits, with respect to the value of money, with respect to the financial stability of the government.

Morgenthau Is Summoned.

The administration's proposal for a drastic increase in inheritance, gift and income taxes under President Roosevelt's soak the rich tax program will be carried to congress by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau.

The secretary announced tonight that in response to an invitation from Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the house ways and means committee he will appear before the committee at 10 o'clock in the morning. Morgenthau had been angling for the invitation for over a week as White House developments indicated the President considered the pending rate increases too low.

When Morgenthau appears before the committee to offer the administration rate table the President is expected to come out into the open on his drive to jack up the rates of the swat the rich plan. The drive was opened Independence day when the President called members of the house committee to the White House in an effort to speed his program.

Want 60 Per Cent Levy.

The drive will center particularly on the inheritance tax, which New Dealers would like to see stepped up to a 60 per cent assessment on everything over 1 million dollars. The pending senate rates would place such an assessment on everything over 10 million dollars.

The President's thesis is that by heavy inheritance taxes and confiscatory taxes on the incomes of millionaires the New Dealers will be able to break up the large fortunes and pass wealth around. The conservative contention is that by their policies of confiscatory taxation, limitation of profits and general antagonism to the business the New Dealers will derange industry, destroy initiative and wind up by passing poverty around.

The President's tax program was designed to take the wind out of Huey Long's share-the-wealth scheme. But the inheritance taxes, increased surtaxes on million dollar incomes and higher rates on big incomes would yield only a drop in the bucket of the deficit. The experts say the additional revenue would be less than 100 million dollars, whereas the deficit of the fiscal year just closed was 3½ billions.

Tax Must Reach Masses.

It is apparent that a larger proportion of the national income must be obtained for the government if the budget is to be balanced. With comparatively little more revenue obtainable from large incomes it is evident that a tax program for revenue purposes must reach down to the masses.

Under the present income tax system less than 3 per cent of the popula-

G. O. P. GATHERS FROM 6 STATES FOR 2D PARLEY

Grass Roots Meeting in Cleveland Today.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., July 7.—[Special.]—Threats of the New Deal and the professoriat against America's form of government were the theme of a message to 2,500 Republican delegates from six central states who descended upon Cleveland tonight for a two day Grass Roots conference. The message, which came from Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican national committee, sounded the slogan of "save the constitution" from onslaughts of the Washington brain trust, and gave the keynote for the conclave.

"An aroused electorate," said Chairman Fletcher, "will surely retire the professors and the professional political jobbers in 1936. Political insincerity and opportunism will be repudiated.

"Demagogy is not democracy. Class hatred is not American. The Republican party does not want to go back, neither does it want to go Russian. It wants to go forward under the banner of the constitution with justice to all and with malice toward none."

Approves Regional Meetings.

National Chairman Fletcher, after sending greetings for a constructive meeting, went on to say in his message to George H. Bender, permanent chairman:

"These regional Republican rallies should furnish excellent guide posts on the road to victory and have my hearty approval and encouragement.

"The entire nation is now alive to both the open and concealed threats against our institutions.

"A decent job with self-reliance and self-respect is a better guarantee of happy days than doled depreciated dollars."

Special trains bearing some 6,000 Pennsylvania delegates came in tonight. Hotel corridors were filled with talk that the six-state conclave, as did the Grass Roots conference in Springfield, will serve to show what the ordinary folks in the G. O. P. are talking about concerning national problems.

Michigan Comes by Boat.

Michigan has a boatload of delegates here. Other states in the group are reported to have approximately a full roster of 2,500 delegates on the scene or in transit. The attendance is expected to be double that number.

The six states participating are Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee. The three chief purposes of the round-up, which is a regional gathering of similar type to the recent Grass Roots convention of ten midwest prairie states at Springfield, Ill., are:

1. To appeal for the defense of America's constitution and free institutions against the encroachments of New Deal burocracy, especially against the Rooseveltian suggestion of reducing states' rights to build up centralized power.

2. To survey the New Deal and its acts, including the surrender by congress of constitutional powers to the executive and the piling of a terrific national debt on the shoulders of coming taxpayers.

3. To breathe militancy into the G. O. P., crystalize sentiment, consider the possible issues for next year's national convention, and put the party into fighting clothes for the next campaign.

More Stress on Method.

More stress is to be placed upon party machinery and means of getting it into battling shape than at the Springfield roundup. There are intimations tonight that some of the speakers may be critical of party leadership in some of the states and upon the negligence of most Republicans in congress to start battling New Deal encroachments on the constitution at the outset.

Sponsors of the gathering say that, like the Springfield Grass Roots roundup, it is devoid of personal candidacies. George H. Bender of Cleveland, who originated the idea of the meeting, says it is not in the interest of any candidate for the presidential nomination, nor is it to have any cut and dried program. He says the intention is that it shall be first an expression of adherence to America's form of government. The revolt of Democrats in congress against the Roosevelt holding company "death sentence" mandate last week, Bender says, shows the growing tide and the aim of the Republican crusaders is for the restoration of truly representative American government.

The conference opens tomorrow in

Death Takes Former Wife of Vanderbilt

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, philanthropist, art patron, and sportswoman, died at her town house here today after a nine weeks' illness.

The former wife of William K. Vanderbilt II. and the daughter of the late Senator James Graham Fair of Nevada, Mrs. Vanderbilt long had been a leader of New York society. The immediate cause of death was pneumonia, although she had been suffering for some time from a general run-down condition, aggravated by sorrow over the death of a son, William K. Vanderbilt III., who was killed in 1933 in an automobile accident.

Daughters at Bedside.

At her bedside were Mrs. Vanderbilt's two daughters, Muriel and Consuelo. Muriel, formerly the wife of Frederic Cameron Church Jr. of Boston, now is the wife of Henry D. Phelps of Carmel, Cal. Consuelo and her husband, Earl E. T. Smith, recently were divorced in Reno.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's marriage on April 4, 1899, to the member of the famous New York family was one of the notable social events of the season. The only clew of her age was a report that she then was 21, which would make her 57 years old at the time of her death.

The first years of their married life were described as "ideally happy," but in 1909 the couple separated. Because she was a Catholic, it was 18 years before Mrs. Vanderbilt consented to a divorce.

Then, in 1927, she obtained a decree in Paris, charging Vanderbilt with moral desertion and continued absence. He charged her with incompatibility and coolness. Vanderbilt then married Rosamond Lancaster Warburton, former wife of Barclay H. Warburton Jr. Mrs. Vanderbilt never remarried.

Wealth Put at 11 Millions.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was reported to be worth 11 million dollars in her own right. She used her wealth to entertain lavishly and to support a number of charitable enterprises. She presided for many years over an elaborate estate on Long Island, and was much interested in her stable of thoroughbreds.

During the war she and other society women fitted up a freight car as a cannery and went about the country instructing housewives in food conservation. In recent years she disposed of her stables and country estate and confined her activities to her town home.

Most of her wealth was inherited from her father, a "forty-niner," who in thirty years of mining in California and Nevada accumulated a fortune in excess of 15 million dollars. He became senator in 1881.

Father an Immigrant.

Fair, an Irish immigrant, was one of those figures of the early west about whom legends were created. Most of his wealth was tapped from the famous Comstock lode and the big Bonanza mines, and with his millions he purchased valuable real estate in the then mushroom town of San Francisco.

Senator Fair's will left his estate to his three children, Mrs. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, and Charles L. Fair. Various contestants fought the will, however, and the litigation plodded through the courts for years.

The estate finally was settled in 1919, several years after Charles Fair and his wife were killed in an automobile accident near Paris.

ST. LOUIS IS ASKING ABOUT WOMEN AS CUSTOMERS AT BAR

St. Louis, Mo., July 7.—(AP)—Reformers and saloonkeepers here joined today in a campaign to swat the feminine bar fly.

The question whether a lady, free, twenty-one, and thirsty, has an inalienable right to toss off a gin fizz in public with her boy friend has given rise to debate.

The vigilance committee of the St. Louis Saloonkeepers' Secret society says:

"Women patrons are a menace to business. They're moochers. They buy one drink and then expect the men at the bar to buy the rest."

Mrs. Joseph T. Davis, president of the Federated Women's clubs and civic leader, says:

"I agree with Mr. Anderson. I do not think his idea is to discriminate against women but to protect them for their own good."

Kitty Amsler, secretary-treasurer of Waitresses' union, local No. 249, says: "Who would give employment to the 5,000 waitresses such a law would throw out of work? Let's be 1935."

50 FAMILIES FLEE TO 400 FT. CLIFF TO ESCAPE FLOOD

Woodstock, N. Y., July 7.—(AP)—Cooper lake dam broke late tonight and fifty families, warned by cottagers at the lake, managed to escape the swirling torrents in Woodstock township valley by climbing a 400 foot cliff to safety.

They were removed from the peak by Woodstock volunteer firemen and given refuge in the village.

The lake, water supply source for Kingston, was swelled by storms and torrential streams pouring out of the Catskills.

Foreclose 568 Home Owners' Federal Loans

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—The crack of the foreclosure whip wielded by the Home Owners' Loan corporation has been heard by 568 persons who took advantage of government loans.

The corporation announced today that 156 foreclosure actions were started during June, of which 94 were between June 15 and June 30.

Claim Some Refused.

Officials said the sharpest action was taken against persons who are able to pay, but refuse to do so. They said those really unable to pay are being helped in every way possible, but deliberate delinquents are being proceeded against without delay.

In making public today the number of foreclosure proceedings up to June 30 officials said there have been 165 actions against deliberate delinquents. The remainder have been due to deaths, abandonment of the property by the borrower because he could not pay, or legal complications.

Keep Names Secret.

Although withholding the names of the persons involved because the law forbids their publication, the announcement told of a dozen instances of deliberate refusal to pay. In one Connecticut case the borrower was 14 months delinquent on a $5,300 loan with monthly payments of less than $43, although the family income was $400 a month. Another in New Jersey, six months delinquent on a $9,654 loan on property valued at $12,057, was cited as refusing to pay.

COUNTERFEITERS TURN OUT COINS IN HOBO 'JUNGLE'

Four men charged with making counterfeit 25 cent pieces in a hobo "jungle" near Crystal Lake by the use of a crude clay mold and silver obtained by melting down stolen silverware were in custody last night at the McHenry county jail in Woodstock.

They were arrested by Sheriff Henry Nulle of McHenry county after several taver.. keepers around the lake had complained that spurious coins had been passed on them. The men under arrest gave their names as Joseph Schultz, John Mays, John Kelly and John Johnson.

At the "jungle" camp Sheriff Nulle found the clay mold and a ladle for handling the molten metal, constructed from the top of a ketchup bottle. Government authorities will be notified today.

WOMEN GO OVER CLIFF.

San Diego, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—Four women, three of them Boston, Mass., residents, were killed today by the plunge of a motor car down a rock studded 35 foot embankment on Point Loma.

The victims are: Mrs. Edna Roome, 60; Miss Constance Billings and her mother, Mrs. Hazel Billings, all of Boston, and Mrs. Victoria Alberta Murphy of San Diego.

The tragedy occurred while Mrs. Murphy was showing the Boston visitors about the city soon after their arrival here by bus to attend the San Diego exposition.

The car was parked on the cliff and was left in gear, police said. It jumped from the top of the embankment when the driver, believed to have been Mrs. Murphy, attempted to start the engine.

Ball Fans Hit Train.

Kennett, Mo., July 7.—(AP)—Five residents of Braggadocio, Mo., returning home from a baseball game late today, were killed when their car struck a Frisco motor train on a crossing one mile east of here.

The dead were J. C. Atterberry, 40, married and father of four children; John Farmer, 22; Tom Bell, 35, justice of the peace at Braggadocio, married and father of three children; Wen-

REVENGE ADOWA FIRST AIM OF ITALY'S ATTACK

Victory of Ethiopia Still Rankles.

ROME, July 7.—(AP)—Most observers in Rome today predicted fighting between Italy and Ethiopia would begin in September. Some thought it would come at an even earlier date.

Military circles said this country's first move would be to spring upon Adowa, where the Ethiopians wiped out an Italian army nearly 40 years ago. A desire for revenge is still fresh in Rome.

Italy is determined to go ahead, regardless of what England may do. The constant cry here is that there will be "no Fashoda in 1935." Fashoda was a Sudanese town where the British kept the French out of the Sudan under threat of war.

(Fashoda, also known as Kodok, is on the west bank of the White Nile, west of Ethiopia. It was occupied by a French expedition under Marchand in July, 1898, but surrendered to the British under Kitchener in November of the same year.)

Angry with Britain.

British opposition has done more than anything else to strengthen Italian public opinion behind Il Duce's East African campaign. On the other hand, the reaction to Washington's note to Ethiopia refusing to act under the Briand-Kellogg pact has been good here and the American move was termed infinitely more diplomatic than the attitude taken by England.

Newspapers gave jubilant headlines to dispatches saying France had refused to back England in an action before the league of nations designed to obstruct Italy's war aims.

Articles from London scoring Capt. Anthony Eden and other members of the cabinet for the "tentative offer" of a seaport to Ethiopia were prominently displayed.

Lose Trade to Japanese.

A major element in the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel is economics. Ethiopia, fearing Italy's growing importance in East Africa, has failed to carry out a 1928 treaty giving Italy economic penetration. Instead of buying and selling with Italy, Emperor Haile Selassie turned to other markets, chiefly Japanese.

Italy's East African colonies of Eritrea and Somaliland cannot flourish without their hinterland, which is Ethiopia. These colonies have already cost far more than they have produced.

Concentration of numerous Fascist battalions and regular army regiments was pushed today. Three ships left for East Africa over the week-end, bearing more than 3,000 men and officers. Numerous other vessels waited at docks for the regular volunteer battalions, one of which is en route from Tripoli to join the newly created Black Shirt division called the Third of January.

Stage Mock Battle.

The strength of a Black Shirt division going to East Africa, it was disclosed, has been raised from 12,000 to 15,000 men. The fifth division of this strength will be ready soon.

Rome was the scene of a mock battle today between young Black Shirts, while regular officers in many mobilization cantonments spent the Sabbath putting finishing drill touches on troops destined soon to brave the mountains, jungles, and sand of East Africa.

ARBITERS NEAR BREAK

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SCHEVENINGEN, Holland, July 7.—Efforts to reach a settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute through conciliation were on the verge of a complete breakdown tonight, with Premier Mussolini's arbiters threatening to quit Scheveningen.

Count Aldrovandi and Rafaele Montagna, on instructions from Rome, have been uncompromising on all points, it was learned. The Italians objected to Gaston Jeze, French jurist and counselor for Ethiopia, bringing up the point that Ualual, scene of the principal incident under investigation, is 100 kilometers [62½ miles] within the Ethiopian border under the treaty of 1908, which defined the frontier between Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland. The Italians said it was a question of treaty interpretation, and that the frontier must not be discussed here.

The four arbiters held a brief meeting today, but immediately adjourned. Prof. Pitman Benjamin Potter, the American, and Prof. Albert de la Pradelle, the Frenchman, who are arbiters for Ethiopia, left the city, but are expected back tomorrow.

It was said the Italians are now seeking an incident which will enable them to ask an adjournment of the conciliation meeting to another place, preferably in Italy, where they can control all the publicity and have more influence on the proceedings. The request to bring more witnesses by plane was said to be an excuse for delay.

Relief Planes Held Ready.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 7.—Troop carrying squadrons attached to the British air headquarters for the middle east at Cairo have been ordered to be ready to evacuate British and British Indian subjects from Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, on short notice.

Apart from the impending conflict, fears are entertained that Italian truculence may bring about an uprising against all whites and foreigners before the war begins.

Both the chief commissioners of Aden and the commissioner of British Somaliland reported it is impossible to house refugees at either place, as there are no amenities. Cruisers, sloops and troop ships are reported to be standing by to transport British nationals to India or England when required.

Americans May Choose.

ADDIS ABABA, July 7.—(AP)—The American legation's advice yesterday that the 125 American residents of Ethiopia leave the country is up to the individuals, it was explained today. The legation's advice is not binding on American citizens in such cases.

So far as is known here the American government has made no arrangement to evacuate the American colony. Those who remain in the troubled country after such warnings from the legation do so entirely at their own risk, both in regard to person and property.

France Gives Free Hand.

PARIS, July 7.—(AP)—France's intention of leaving Italy a free hand in Ethiopia was officially indicated today. Authoritative quarters regarded Premier Mussolini's determination to go ahead with his plans, expressed by him in a speech yesterday, as blocking any chance England might have to win France over to sanctions against Italy.

"France, like the United States, is not inclined to participate in an economic blockade," it was said in informed quarters, "for we prize the friendship which links us to the Italian people above everything."

France is not even disposed to argue with Il Duce, indicating the probability Paris would approve Rome's action tacitly, if not openly.

Officials were reluctant to discuss the question, but they have been counting on using their new friendship with Italy to relieve naval rivalry in the Mediterranean and also to quiet eventually the feeling between Jugo-Slavia and Italy. They indicated, on the other hand, that they placed little reliance on any benefits from working with England since Great Britain's separate naval accord with Germany.

CHURCH TO PUT COLLEGE HEAD ON TRIAL TODAY

Dr. J. Oliver Buswell, president of Wheaton college, will go on trial before an ecclesiastical court today in the Fourth Presbyterian church on the charge that he refused to obey the mandate of the denomination's 1934 general assembly that all ministers and officers of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America withdraw from membership of an independent Presbyterian board of foreign missions. At the request of Dr. Buswell the trial will be public.

The independent board was formed in 1933 under leadership of Dr. J. Gresham Machen of Westminster seminary, Philadelphia, after general assembly sessions at Columbus, O. The Machen group of fundamentalists, confined largely to presbyteries of New York and eastern Pennsylvania, suffered decisive defeat in that convention in its effort to overthrow the leadership of the church's regular missions board.

Earlier this year Dr. Machen was convicted by a New Jersey church court on charges similiar to those brought against Dr. Buswell. Sentence of suspension from the ministry was stayed pending appeals to higher church courts.

ROOSEVELT BACK ON SHORE AFTER WEEK-END JAUNT

Annapolis, Md., July 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt landed here from the yacht Sequoia tonight after a week-end fishing trip in Chesapeake bay.

Wind burned, the President led his party off the boat shortly after his stop at the naval academy and immediately set out for the capital by automobile.

CHICAGOAN HEAD OF ETHIOPIAN WAR ZONE RED CROSS

Young Surgeon to Direct Care of Wounded.

Dr. Robert H. Hockman, youthful head of the American Mission hospital just outside Addis Ababa, who was mentioned in despatches from Ethiopia yesterday as the organizer of a Red Cross unit in that country, is a graduate of Northwestern university medical school and the son of W. H. Hockman of 415 East Madison street, Wheaton.

Friends and professional associates of Dr. Hockman were surprised to learn yesterday of the turn of events that indicate that the 29 year old surgeon will be in charge of the five American physicians who have offered their services to the Ethiopian government in the event of war with Italy.

Father Former Missionary.

Dr. Hockman is a graduate of Muskingum college, New Concord, O., where he won letters in football. His father was at one time a missionary in China and a lecturer at Moody Bible institute. Dr. Hockman was graduated from Northwestern in 1932 and served as an intern at West Suburban hospital for a year. Accompanied by his wife, he went to Addis Ababa a year and a half ago and later became head of the mission hospital there.

Dr. Raleigh C. Oldfield, chief of interns at West Suburban hospital, said yesterday that Dr. Hockman was known as a young surgeon of great promise.

In a recent letter to L. C. Hollister, director of the Northwestern university Y. M. C. A., Dr. Hockman said that in less than a year he had been required to perform more than 300 operations in his Ethiopian mission hospital.

Duties Are Numerous.

He added that he had been put in charge of the women's medical and surgical, obstetrical, pediatrics, and men's surgical wards in the 100 bed hospital operated by the United Presbyterian mission board there.

The hospital is the largest in Ethiopia and from it will be developed a medical system for the care of the wounded and sick in the impending war with Italy. Two American and two German nurses with the five American physicians constitute the white staf of the hospital.

LORD AMPTHILL DIES; MASTER OF ENGLISH MASONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 7.—Lord Ampthill, 66, former provincial grand master of the Grand Lodge of Freemasons in England, died today. He was governor of Madras, 1899-1906 and acting viceroy of India in 1904. As a colonel he commanded Leicestershire and Bedfordshire troops in the world war. He was chairman of Baird International Television company and director of other concerns.

Born Oliver Arthur Villiers Russell, he became the second Baron Ampthill at the age of 15. He rowed three years with the Oxford crew and thereafter participated in many sports.

John Hugo Russell succeeds to the title as the third Baron Ampthill and his heir is Geoffrey Dennis Erskine Russell, now 13 years old, who was the figure of a paternity suit in 1922, when John Russell sought a divorce from Christabel Hulme Hart, whom he married in 1918. The house of lords in 1924 decided Geoffrey was the legitimate son of the union and established his succession. Mrs. John Russell has a divorce suit now pending.

Colored People's Mass Meeting Assails Italy

Colored persons from a dozen cities and towns in the Chicago area attended a massmeeting at the Regal theater building, 4719 South Park way, yesterday afternoon to protest against Italian aggression in Ethiopia. Messages to Premier Stanley Baldwin commending the stand of Great Britain in the Italo-Ethiopian controversy and to President Roosevelt urging American support of Ethiopia were approved at the meeting, which was one of a series by the Negro World Alliance.

CHANCE BETRAYS FLEEING SUSPECT IN BANK ROBBERY

Police Make Most of Luck; Nab Young Fugitive.

A telegram and a bit of police luck brought about the arrest yesterday in New York City of Charles Conroy, alias Hudson, 20 years old, who has been sought for months as a member of a gang of Chicago bank robbers.

Conroy has been named as one of five bandits who took $18,500 in a machine gun robbery of the Aetna State bank, 2375 Lincoln avenue, on Oct. 30, 1934. Conroy and his gang, which used signals and teamwork similar to tactics employed by a football eleven, also are held responsible for the robbery of 65 guests in Ireland's Oyster house, 632 North Clark street, which netted $1,275 on Nov. 29, 1934.

Government agents announced after the New York arrest that they wished to question Conroy concerning a number of holdups in Chicago subpostal stations.

Chance Plays Big Rôle.

Chance, which figured largely in the arrest and sentence of Conroy's four companions, brought Conroy into the hands of authorities.

Sergt. John Hanrahan of the detective bureau had gone to Conroy's home at 2621 Potomac avenue to question his mother and stepfather concerning his whereabouts. The mother, Mrs. Mary Minnett, and her husband, Allen, stoutly denied any knowledge of his present abode.

While the sergeant was questioning the couple a Western Union messenger boy came to the door with a telegram. Sergt. Hanrahan seized the wire and opened it. The message, which had been sent from the Long Island railroad station in Brooklyn, said: "Aunt Sarah sick. Send ten at once."

Sergt. Hanrahan seized Minnett and his wife and took them to the detective bureau. Then he wired New York police, who arrested Conroy when he appeared at the telegraph office to inquire for an answer. The Chicago police will move for immediate return to Chicago of Conroy, it was said yesterday.

The arrest of Conroy's companions was brought about by circumstances equally fortunate for the police. Police squads had raided the apartment of Ralph Tardi, 20 years old, 3606 Franklin boulevard, in search of suspects in the Aetna bank holdup.

Telephones calls intercepted by the police while in the apartment led them to raid a poolroom and tavern in West Ohio street on Dec. 8, 1934, and seize the other members of the gang. All four pleaded guilty to robbing the bank and each was sentenced to one year to life in the penitentiary. Besides Tardi they are Fred Lombardo, 30 years old; John Anselmo, 19 years old, and Frank Mayleo, 22 years old.

Precision Amazes Police.

The police expressed amazement at the precision of the gang's work after the four had confessed and reenacted the bank robbery. The first step of the gang, police said, was to get carefully prepared plans of the bank or business house to be robbed.

This would be memorized by every member of the gang and each would be given his assignment. Special signal calls or whistles were decided upon and the gang moved on its objective.

QUAKERS WORSHIP IN UNITY FOR FIRST TIME SINCE SPLIT IN 1827

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Hicksite and orthodox Quakers met and worshiped together today for the first time since the schism in 1827 split the religious Society of Friends into two sects.

In that year Elias Hicks of Long Island and a number of followers, calling themselves liberals, broke from the orthodox section on the question of the triple godhead and other matters.

For 108 years they and their descendants held their meetings separately.

The reconciliation took place today in the old Quaker meeting house at Gramercy park. The meeting began as all Quaker services do—in silence. Then, as the spirit moved them, the Quakers arose and spoke.

George Hawkes of Newark, N. J., prayed for peace, unity, and brotherly love. After the meeting there were quiet greetings and handshakes.

NEW YORK SWEPT BY HEAVY RAIN; DAMAGE GREAT

Albany, N. Y., July 7.—(AP)—A sudden, drenching rainstorm slashed into New York state near Rochester today and swept eastward, leaving in its wake flooded highways and farm lands, washed out bridges, and abandoned homes. Damage was estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Rochester, Syracuse, Watertown, Utica, Glens Falls and surrounding territory all reported heavy damage.

Winds of near tornado velocity and lightning accompanied the storm. In a half hour 2.11 inches of rain fell, flooding streets and cellars. Serious damage to the city's sewer system was feared and beyond the city's limits ripe fields of wheat, hay and truck crops were flattened.

U. S. FREE PRESS VITAL, ASSERTS JUSTICE STONE

Guard Constitution! He Tells Civic Council.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

A free press and restrictions on constitutional changes are essential to a Democratic form of government, Chief Justice Clyde E. Stone of the Illinois Supreme court said yesterday in speaking on the Constitution and minorities. Without a free press, he said, the government would fall; without proper limitations on making constitutional amendments, it would cease to be stable.

Justice Stone spoke before the Citizens' Civic and Economic Welfare council in the council's log cabin north of Des Plaines. The council, which was founded by Robert L. Taylor, assistant attorney to the Chicago elections board, is composed of colored professional and business men.

"When a constitution becomes as putty in the hands of a temporary majority, stabilized government ceases to exist," said Justice Stone.

Opposes Change of Constitution.

"The safeguards of the Constitution were framed with due recognition of the fact that principle of free government, which have come out of centuries of experience, should not be changed or discarded except through much deliberation. Due to those limitations, for nearly a century and a half our Constitution has provided the most perfect form of a practicable democracy with the greatest measure of protection to minority groups that the world has ever known. History justifies our faith in it.

"The framers of our Constitution gave due recognition to the fact that there were certain rights which should not be taken away by the temporary will of the majority. They realized also that there were certain fundamental principles which the people should not be allowed to change except on due deliberation.

"This forms the greatest one element of security to be found in representative government. Indeed, neither representative government nor a pure democracy can long endure without such a safeguard."

Stirs Public Sentiment.

Without the right of the press to discuss the affairs of government freely there can be no healthy and enlightened public sentiment, Justice Stone said. The public conscience aroused by the press, he continued, usually can deal effectively with errors in government that would be dangerous if not brought out into the open.

"Freedom of the press," he said, "is so interwoven with government by law, as distinguished from government by the changing will of individuals, that if one falls the other must fall with it."

Justice Stone was introduced by Harry H. Pace, president of the council. In the audience were nearly 100 council members and guests.

Justice Stone, who has been on the Supreme court bench for 17 years, is the only Republican among the nine justices, and is chief justice by virtue of the rotation system. He was elected from the Peoria district. His present term expires next year.

TESLA PROMISES NEW INVENTION NEXT WEDNESDAY

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Nikola Tesla, physicist and inventor of modern power transmission methods, promised tonight that on his seventy-ninth birthday Wednesday he will announce a new invention which he said experts had been seeking "for the last 100 years."

From his guarded statements it was believed that the new invention would have something to do with wireless transmission of power.

Tesla holds 700 patents, including those on the Tesla coil, the rotating field, and the induction motor. He said his newest is his greatest invention.

PREMIER TO CALL ON PRESIDENT

Premier Joseph A. Lyons of Australia and Mrs. Lyons as they arrived in New York Saturday on the Rex. They will visit the White House in Washington today and the premier will confer with President Roosevelt on plans to increase trade between their nations.

[Acme Photo.]

Trade His Object

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Premier Joseph Aloysius Lyons, Australia's public family man No. 1, prepared to leave tonight for Washington for a quiet chat with President Roosevelt that may mean more to his folks "down under" in a business way than riding back of King George.

The premier has been attempting to gain markets for Australia in both England and America. The English, it is indicated in trade circles, were rather chilly to suggestions for bigger and better business with the Anzacs.

It has been pointed out that Lyons is faced with a different situation here. Australia exports far more to the United Kingdom than she imports from them, but it is the other way around with the United States. In polite diplomatic language, the United States would be under obligations to buy more—and Premier Lyons has plenty to sell.

He would like to sell wool, in which his commonwealth leads world production, and he would like to sell beef, of which Australia has plenty to export.

MAN MUTILATED BY THREE OTHERS; VICTIM OF ERROR?

Greensburg, Pa., July 7.—(AP)—Three men overpowered a miner as he returned home from work early today, drugged him, and performed a sterilization operation on him.

At a Greensburg hospital tonight Dr. C. C. Crouse said he had treated the miner whom he identified as William L. Wigfield, 44, of Donohue, a village near Greensburg. Dr. Crouse said the operation had been skilfully performed.

The man left the Hannastown mine soon after midnight. About a mile from home he saw a car parked in the middle of the road. The police said some one called:

"Hey, Buddy, know you got a flat?"

Wigfield got out of his car. As he did so three men grabbed him.

State troopers said tonight that Wigfield is a man of excellent reputation, the father of four children. They expressed the belief that the gang mistook him for some one else.

FALL FROM BOAT; DIE.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BRUSSELS, June 7.—King Leopold and Queen Astrid, according to Catholic papers here tonight, paid their first official visit yesterday to Chateau Steenockerzel, where the exiled Hapsburg family is residing.

The sovereigns, it is stated, were accompanied by their official suite and they were received by the former Empress Zita and Archduke Otto, who were waiting for them at the gate. Officials of the former Austro-Hungarian imperial court were in attendance and for this reason the visit can be regarded as official and constitutes, it is claimed, the first recognition of Otto by reigning royalty.

The king and queen of Belgium remained at the chateau about half an hour and were cheered by its inhabitants as they left.

STUDY SUITS FOR COUNTY MILLION IN CLOSED BANKS

Board to Consider Action on McDonough Bond.

Efforts of Cook county authorities to collect more than a million dollars of county funds on deposit in eleven closed banks will be considered today at a special meeting of the county board.

Commissioner Peter M. Kelly said yesterday he would ask the state's attorney's office to investigate the possibility of collecting the money through civil suits brought against the $3,000,000 treasurer's bond posted by the late Joseph B. McDonough in whose term the banks closed their doors.

At present, according to a report of the treasurer's office to be submitted to the board, a total of $1,133,391.54 is due to the county from closed banks, of which $798,958.66 has been put in judgment. Deposits of $177,475 in the Phillips State bank and $15,000 in the State Bank of Beverly Hills are secured by collateral held at the First National and Central Republic banks of Chicago.

Bain Bank Judgments.

Court judgments have been obtained by the county for deposits in the following seven Bain banks:

Armitage State bank	$ 18,167.33
West Highland State bank	116,641.76
Stony Island State Savings bank	91,921.71
West Englewood Trust and Savings bank	235,683.23
Chatham State bank	71,053.29
Chicago Lawn State bank	206,347.06
Elston State bank	59,144.26

The county has a claim of $109,592.30 against the Humboldt State bank, and $32,365.58 against the Second Humboldt State bank. It is said that agreements have been made in these claims which makes it unecessary to put them in judgment.

"It would seem to me that if the county is unable to collect the money from the banks," Commissioner Kelly declared, "then the bonding companies should stand liable for the funds. The county pays $15,000 a year to maintain the treasurer's bond and certainly the bond should cover situations such as this."

After many banks having county money on deposit failed in 1931, Mr. Kelly related, bonding companies refused to underwrite bonds for the treasurer's office until the general assembly enacted a law a year ago holding that bonding companies could not be held liable for county funds on deposit in banks that failed.

Approve Gill Bond Today.

For this reason it was necessary for former County Treasurer Thomas Nash to obtain a personal bond when he succeeded to office following the death of Mr. McDonough. With the present law, however, bonding companies have agreed to write the $3,000,000 bond of the treasurer's office and the county board will approve today a bond written by 18 surety companies for County Treasurer Joseph L. Gill.

The first steps for the sale of $41,538,911 in delinquent 1933 realty taxes will be made today when County Treasurer Gill is to apply before County Judge Jarecki for judgment on 757,155 tax bills for that amount.

Delinquent taxpayers will have ten days to file objections to the sale of their taxes before judgment is entered. According to George Hagenauer, chief auditor for the treasurer, the sale of 1933 realty taxes is expected to start by July 22.

BIG MATERIAL COST CURBS HARBOR WORK UNDER HOPKINS' IDEAS

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—Harry Hopkins was credited today with causing an informal veto on allotting more work relief money to rivers and harbors jobs than the $27,000,000 already approved.

This decision, prompted by the expensive materials required for such work, was said to mean that less will be spent on waterway improvements than at any time in recent years. That became known as army engineers disclosed they would start construction on half the projects by Aug. 1.

The total army program, including $10,000,000 for the first year's work on the Passamaquoddy Bay [Maine] tidal power development, was expected to provide work for 50,000 men. The average would approximate $2,000 a man and exceed the $1,143 demanded by Hopkins.

Accordingly, there will be $78,000,000 less spent this year on rivers and harbors than the average of the last two years, when $350,000,000 of PWA money was available.

Link Denver Gun Toter to 3 Robberies Here

James Wilson, 25 years old, gun toter from Denver, Colo., who was arrested early yesterday despite three desperate efforts to escape policemen, was identified as a robber at the detective bureau showup later in the day by three gasoline station attendants. Police believe he has been operating here for the last month. Those who identified him were: Edwin Weilert, station attendant at 58 West 79th street, $12, July 5; Homer Derry, attendant at 6756 Cottage Grove avenue, $7, and Douglas McHugh, 1932 South Avers avenue.

TRACE BROKEN GLASS AND FIND STOLEN BUTTER

Two hundred and fifty tubs, containing 18,000 pounds of stolen butter, were recovered yesterday because two victims of a hijacking gang remembered that they walked through broken glass while being led blindfolded by the robbers. Working on this slender clew, Lieut. James Kerr of the cartage detail, after three days' search, found the loot in a deserted warehouse at 1346 Kinzie street.

On the night of July 3, Anton DeMuth, 736 West 43d street, and Harold Jensen, 38 West 118th street, employes of the Advance Trucking company, started for Buffalo with the truckload of butter. Three men forced the truck to the curb at 63d street and Wabash avenue and ordered DeMuth and Jensen to the street.

The truck drivers were forced into the robbers' car. Blindfolded, they were kept in a hideout and freed, after some aimless driving, on July 4.

DeMuth and Jensen told Lieut. Kerr that they walked about in broken glass in their place of captivity. Lieut Kerr deduced that the men had been in a glass factory or a bottling works.

Lieut. Kerr and his men started out and made a systematic search of all factories in which broken glass might be found. They finally came upon a deserted glass factory in Kinzie street that appeared to be a likely spot yesterday and I vestigated a vacant warehouse next door. There they found the 250 tubs of butter intact and returned them to the trucking company. The gang is sought.

FIND MANY GRADE SEPARATIONS GET BUT LITTLE USE

Motor Club Leaders See Waste of Funds.

BY HAL FOUST.

Summer week-end motor crowds, city dwellers enjoying holidays on rural pavements, are discovering that monumental highway grade separations have been built where there is no cross trafic to separate, while, in contrast, many busy intersections are without grade separations.

"Surely bad judgment on the part of the state highway engineers cannot alone account for the failure to locate these structures where they would do some good for automobile trafic," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. "No one is so dumb as to try to defend their location from an economic or safety standpoint.

"Most of these seldom used grade separations are on new circumferential routes around Chicago.

"In the fall of 1929, when a construction program was being drawn for the metropolitan area, the motor club opposed building these routes before the radial highways were widened with grades separated at busy intersections. Real estate interests favored the circumferential roads for subdivision development."

Business Sites a Factor.

Other observers point out, however, when asked their opinions of Mr. Hayes' suspicions, that perhaps the chief reason for the mallocation of the expensive highway structures is due to the fact that the state engineers followed the course of least resistance. At existing busy intersections, established hamburger stands objected to grade separations that would interfere with their business.

In building a new intersection the only persons who would object to the squandering of funds on a grade separation would be the motorists who pay the bill, and they are lethargic, observers said.

So today there are nineteen outlying grade separations in the metropolitan area, only four of which separate heavy cross trafic.

Where They Are Located.

Of these four the Cook county highway department built one, at Milwaukee road and Dempster street. The other three are at North avenue and Mannheim road, and at North avenue and Lake street in Elmhurst, and at Archer and 96th avenues, near Justice park.

Evanston-Elgin road and Ill. 53, $86,291.

Evanston-Elgin road and Northwest highway, about $85,000.

Ill. 52 and 96th avenue, Palos Park, $182,932.

The club listed the following grade separations with their costs and with a count of cross trafic cars in a 24 hour period to show the lightness of the trafic:

Roosevelt road and Ill. 59, west of Winfield, $142,381; 369 cars on Ill. 59.

Evanston-Elgin road and Ill. 59, three miles east of Elgin, $74,207; 211 cars on Ill. 59.

Lake street and Ill. 59, near Bartlett, $87,753; 288 cars on Ill. 59.

Northwest highway and Dundee road, southeast of Barrington, $79,632; 647 cars on Dundee.

No trafic or cost figures were available on three county built grade separations on the Southwest highway, at 123d street, at 86th avenue, and at 96th avenue, but with the exception of the 86th avenue job the structures appear to have fair usage.

City's No. 1 Death Corner.

Cicero avenue and 55th street, while rural in character, is within the Chicago limits. It is the city's No. 1 death corner with a record of three killed and 47 injured in twelve months.

There are numerous other intersections in Chicago where trafic would benefit in proportion to the investment in grade separations, but elevated highways with continuous grade separation are the solution to cross trafic problems in the urban area, motor officials declare.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll

Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

ORDERED TO TWO COURTS AT ONCE IN TRAFIC CASES

Ernest Schneider, 39 years old, 1432 North La Salle street, head of the Snyder Products company, manufacturers of medical goods at 1434 North Wells street, complained yesterday that he couldn't be in two different courts at the same time. He was arrested Saturday night on a charge of driving while intoxicated and is to be arraigned on that charge this morning in the South State street court. He also is scheduled to appear at that time before Judge Grover C. Niemeyer for a new trial on a manslaughter charge.

Policemen Thomas McCarrick and David Nelson arrested Schneider Saturday night after his car bumped McCarrick's car in front of the Hudson avenue station when Schneider was trying to park there.

On Jan. 18, 1934, Schneider was sentenced to 30 days in the House of Correction on a conviction of driving while intoxicated. On June 1, 1934, he was found guilty of manslaughter after his automobile killed two men. Last February the Supreme court ordered a new trial on the manslaughter charge and that is the case which is before Judge Niemeyer today.

Policeman Seizes Two in Attempted Holdup

Michael Nash, 52 years old, 612 West 48th place, and Thomas Foley, 27 years old, 723 West 48th place, were captured early yesterday by Policeman John Ashley, who saw them trying to hold up Otto Krupper, 3355 West 63d street, at 65th street and Homan avenue. The two were later identified by the victims of two Saturday night holdups.

Cincinnati, O., July 7.—(AP)—Three men and a 17 year old girl were killed and six persons were injured, one seriously, in a head-on collision of automobiles near suburban Newtown, late today.

The dead were identified as Don Greer, 20; Miss Bernice Davis, 17, high school student; Herman Baughman, 19, and his brother Woodrow, 17.

Four Killed Near Toledo.

Toledo, O., July 7.—(AP)—Four Detroit men were killed in an auto collision near Bono, 14 miles east of here today.

They were identified through cards and letters in their possession as John C. Brand, 35, J. G. Upham, 23, Benjamin L. Stearns, 48, and Napoleon Hair, 26, colored, believed to have been the chauffeur for the group.

The automobile crashed into a truck driven by William Miller, 21, of Cleveland. Miller suffered cuts and bruises.

Four Killed in Canada.

VALLEYFIELD, Que., July 7.—(AP)—Four persons were killed and another seriously injured tonight when a Canadian National railways train struck an automobile at a grade crossing here. A 7 month old baby was slightly hurt.

The dead: Domina Lemieux, 34, Valleyfield; Mrs. Domina Lemieux, 33; Paul Lemieux, 12; Suzanne Lemieux, 5.

Carnival Truck Runs Wild.

Kittanning, Pa., July 7.—(AP)—A carnival truck and trailer ran wild down steep East Brady hill today, killing two men and injuring three others. Two of them may die.

The dead are Bill Moore, 30, of Pittsburgh, and Bill [Butch] Collell, 50, address unknown.

The truck, unable to make a sharp turn at the foot of the hill, shot over sloping embankment, 150 feet across a field, and ploughed into the Pennsylvania railroad tracks.

TWO TRAGEDIES KILL SEVEN

Seven persons were killed yesterday in two major holiday week-end automobile tragedies within touring distance of Chicago. Five Indiana young people, including two girls, met death when a train struck their automobile in Chesterton, Ind., and two Chicago girls were burned to death in an overturned car near Whitewater, Wis.

The Indiana tragedy occurred at Calumet road in Chesterton when a New York Central suburban passenger train backed into a roadster carrying seven passengers to their homes from a dance in Michigan City. Those killed were John Holzer, 20 years old; Harry Lane, 17 years old, and Glen Coash, 23 years old, all of Valparaiso; Miss Virginia Olson, 17 years old, Woodville, Ind., and Miss Charlotte Weiseman, 20 years old, Chesterton, Ind.

Two Have Chance to Live.

All except Coash were killed instantly. He died several hours after the crash in a Chesterton hospital. Miss Mary Flatz, 21 years old, Chesterton, and Richard Slagle, 22 years old, Valparaiso, were reported to have a fair chance for recovery last night. Slagle, who was unconscious after the crash, was reported dead until he was taken to the hospital.

An eighth member of the party, Robert Bradshaw, 21 years old, of Valparaiso, escaped death or injury because he became lost from the others in Michigan City. When the party prepared to leave the dance, Bradshaw could not be found and they departed without him.

L. E. Brinkerstaff, conductor of the train, told authorities that the engine had taken water and was backing into the station to await the time for departure.

Reports Flagging Auto.

He said that he was flagging the crossing with a flashlight and was almost run down by the speeding automobile. Brinkerstaff declared also that the flash signal light at the crossing was operating at the time of the accident.

An inquest will be opened this morning and authorities said they expected a demand for a raised crossing at Calumet road. Six persons have been killed there in the last five years.

In the Wisconsin accident the automobile in which the two Chicago girls were riding missed a curve, rolled over seven times, and caught fire in highway 89, south of Whitewater. The victims were Miss Betty Ritter, 24 years old, 1273 West 72d street, and Miss Mary Caithaml, 23 years old, 5130 South Whipple street.

Wisconsin Legislator Hurt.

The driver of the car, Palmer Dauga, 32 years old, Republican assemblyman from Jefferson county, Wis., was critically injured. The women had gone to Georgeann Inn at Delavan Lake for a week's vacation.

Floyd Owens, 50 years old, a roofing contractor of Niles Center, was killed yesterday as he prepared to help his wife from the automobile of a friend in front of the Owens home. Mrs. Owens had ridden to her home with Mrs. Florence Hoagland, 35 years old, Morton Grove.

As Owens stood slightly in front of the car a second automobile crashed into the rear of Mrs. Hoagland's machine. Owens was knocked to the pavement and police expressed the belief that the second car ran over him.

Driver Held in $5,000 Bail.

The driver of the second car, Robert Bart, 21 years old, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was held in bond of $5,000 for the inquest to be held today in Niles Center. Miss Ruth Sauerhering, 20 years old, 2228 Sherman avenue, Evanston, a student at Northwestern university, was riding with Bart at the time of the accident.

Owens' death and four others yesterday brought the Cook county motor toll for 1935 to 472. At 4 p. m. yesterday 371 had been killed within the city limits, and 9,111 persons had been injured. The other victims:

John Brogan, 35 years old, 6646 South Knox avenue. Killed when struck by an automobile at Cicero avenue and 66th street. The driver of the car was Thomas Callahan, 37 years old, 8009 Drexel avenue. He was not held.

Jacob Greiwald, 83 years old, 1935 Newport avenue. Died in the American hospital after being struck at Newport and Lincoln avenues by the automobile of Sam Nunes, 3353 South Marshfield avenue.

Arnold Carl Stadler, 40 years old, 634 Orchard street, Deerfield, a scoutmaster of Boy Scout troop 252 and a war veteran. Killed yesterday when his automobile collided with another car at 123d street and Keene avenue. The driver of the other car, Robert Ayers, 56 years old, San Francisco, Cal., was held for the inquest today.

Eugene Morris, colored, 43 years old, 4822 Langley avenue. Died in the county hospital of injuries incurred when he was struck by a hit and run driver at 107th and Western avenue on the Fourth of July.

Miss Gladys Sykora, 25 years old, 4648 North Kenton avenue, was arrested yesterday on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident last Saturday in which Irving Hefter, 38 years old, 1425 North Kolin avenue, was killed. Miss Sykora was released in bond of $50 and ordered to appear at the Hefter inquest today.

Policeman Thomas Bond of the accident prevention division said that Miss Sykora admitted driving the machine at the time of the accident, but denied that she had injured any one. Hefter was crushed between his car and that of Dr. William Gibrow, a chiropodist, 2644 Emmett avenue. The police charge that Miss Sykora's automobile crashed into Dr. Gribow's car causing the accident.

Son Arrives to Honor His Birthday.

Lakewood, N. J., July 7.—[Special.]—John D. Rockefeller Sr. plans to spend his 96th birthday tomorrow quietly on his 500 acre estate on the Lakewood-Point Pleasant highway surrounded only by his closest relatives.

According to attachés of the estate, there will be no birthday cake for the financier and no celebration of any kind. If the weather is favorable, he may take a brief automobile ride either on the grounds or on nearby highways.

The nonagenarian not even will be disturbed by delivery of congratulatory messages, expected to pour into Lakewood from various parts of the country. Arrangements have been made to have the messages held at the local telegraph office until a messenger from the estate calls for them.

Son Arrives for Day.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. arrived here from New York for his father's birthday and attended services at the First Presbyterian church this morning, accompanied by Mrs. Hattie Evans, Rockefeller housekeeper.

The elder Rockefeller did not attend the services. The Rev. John J. Darling, pastor of the church, said the heat was responsible for his absence. The temperature here approached 90 degrees at noon.

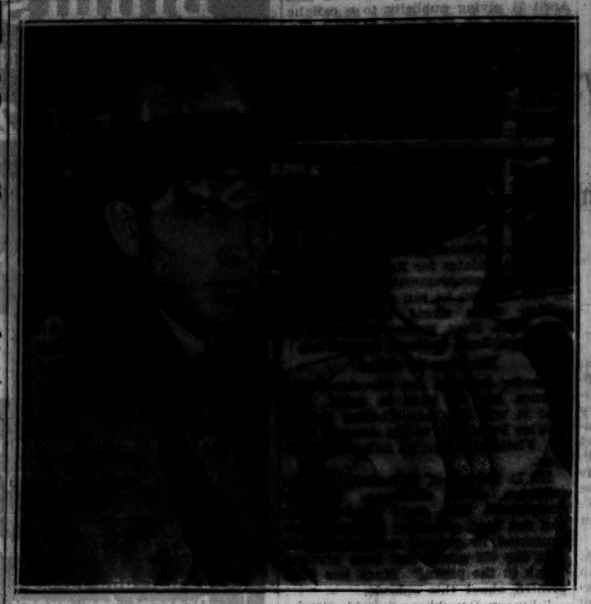
After the services the younger Mr. Rockefeller, questioned concerning his father's health, declared that "he hasn't felt better in many years." He revealed his father does not intend to grant a press interview tomorrow and said no pictures will be taken.

Health Good, Says Doctor.

Dr. Harold B. Disbrow of Lakewood, local physician to the financier, said Mr. Rockefeller now is in better health than he has been for the past three years.

If tomorrow is clear and warm it is believed Mr. Rockefeller will spend most of the day in the summer house on the front lawn 60 feet from the main house. His chief pastimes when there are watching Lucille Frasco, 4 year old daughter of his chauffeur Vincent, at play on the lawn and listening to stories and articles read to him by his secretary or his valet.

HEADED FOR DIVORCE COURT



Adrienne Ames, film actress, and her husband, Bruce Cabot, actor, from whom she will seek divorce today in Los Angeles. They were married two years ago after Miss Ames' divorce from Stephen Ames, New York broker.

[Acme Photo.]

Still on 'Good Terms'

Los Angeles, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—Adrienne Ames, film actress, and Bruce Cabot, actor, are headed for divorce court with Miss Ames' attorney, Martin Gang, ready to file her complaint tomorrow.

Miss Ames blamed the clash of personalities and temperaments for the breakup of their home, but insisted she still was on good terms with Cabot and proved it by accompanying him to a Hollywood restaurant Saturday night.

The two were married more than two years ago in Carlsbad, N. M., following Miss Ames' divorce from Stephen Ames, New York broker.

The actress said Cabot preferred the freedom of a bachelor's life. He already has taken up temporary quarters in an apartment, leaving Miss Ames in their palatial Beverly Hills home with her daughter by a previous marriage.

Miss Ames said Cabot has signed an out of court agreement providing for an unrevealed amount of monthly alimony.

FATHER SLAIN TO SAVE FARM, POLICE ARE TOLD

Marshfield, Mo., July 7.—(AP)—Lloyd Robinson, 18 year old farm youth, his mother, and their family physician face arraignment tomorrow on charges of first degree murder in the slaying of the boy's father, Robert Robinson, 50. The father's charred body was found in a burned motor car June 3.

Prosecuting Attorney Homer G. Chamn said the youth signed a confession in which he asserted his mother, Mrs. Mary Robinson, 49, and Dr. William F. Schlicht, 55, of Niangua, Mo., planned the slaying to collect $10,000 life insurance to pay off a mortgage.

It was said Robinson admitted he crushed his father's skull with an 18 inch horseshoe rasp and, with his mother's help, carried the body from their house to the car, which he drove away and burned with kerosene.

Mrs. Robinson, police said, corroborated her son's statement in the presence of several witnesses, but refused to sign a confession. Dr. Schlicht, a former state food and drug inspector, vigorously denied any part in the crime.

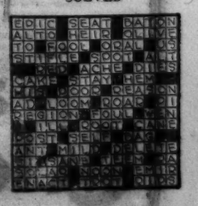
SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



CHUCKED BY U. S., HOMESTEADERS DESERT FARMS

Only One of Lake County's 30 Tries to "Subsist."

Of the thirty families that since June 1 have been farming federal subsistence homesteads in Lake county, only one household was at work on its allotted ground yesterday. The homesteaders apparently are convinced that the New Dealers in Washington intend to make them shift for themselves.

After weeks of delays the semi-professional farmers finally got authorization to begin planting June 1, but last Saturday George F. Gonsalves, project manager, received a curt telegram from the office of Rexford Guy Tugwell, No. 1 brain truster and patron of the government's back-to-the-land program.

The message ordered Gonsalves to close at once his office in Libertyville and to depart immediately for Washington. There has been no explanation for this order, but members of the local committee supervising the project inferred that the government planned to abandon the entire program, leaving the homesteaders and taxpayers "holding the bag."

Father of Nine Clings On.

The solitary homesteader at work on his land yesterday was C. H. Miller, of Gurnee, Ill., father of nine children, and his comments on the Neaw Deal administration of the subsistence corporation were pungent. He is employed part time at the Johnson Motor company in Waukegan, and commutes to his homestead.

"One year ago my wife and I applied for a homestead," said Miller as he paused in his task of manual cultivation. "It wasn't until June 1 that we were allotted our ten acre plot and started to work the land.

"From the backward way the government has gone at this thing I certainly believe it's true that they intend to abandon us. Instead of letting us get on the land and get some benefit out of it, they stalled along worrying over what kind of houses to build. We haven't even been given any live stock or farm machinery with the exception of a hand cultivator."

Unschooled in Farm Tasks.

Miller related that by June 1 all the farm land was overrun with "quack grass," which made plowing twice as difficult. He declared most of the thirty families who were placed on the farms June 1 were altogether inexperienced in combating this weed.

By using my own two hands and my hand cultivator I've managed to plant one acre in potatoes, squash, and beans," said Miller, "and I'll harvest it regardless of anyone, New Dealer or otherwise.

"Every time any of us ask when we are to get our farm stock, or implements, or when the houses are going to be built, the officials say 'We don't know.'"

At this point Mrs. Miller interrupted to say that she and some of the other homesteaders proposed writing a letter of protest to Washington. If Miller has his way, he supplemented, he would write a letter containing just one word, "Nuts."

Miller and six other homesteaders have their property on Wadsworth road, six miles southwest of Zion. Other farms are near Half Day, north of the Belvidere road, which runs into Waukegan from the west. Some are west of Zion near Green Bay road, and still others are adjacent to the fashionable Mill Creek Hunt club at Milburne.

DODGE HEIRESS PILOT IS SEEKING RECORD AS ENDURANCE FLYER

Los Angeles, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—Henrietta Sumner and Beverly Dodge, flyers, were traveling by train today to Oklahoma City. There, they said, they would attempt a new endurance flight record for women.

"It will be 15 or 16 days in the air for us," Miss Sumner said. She holds the unofficial upside-down flying record for women of 1 hour 45 minutes.

Miss Dodge is a daughter of John Dodge, Detroit banker and member of the automobile manufacturing family. She will be co-pilot. Kenneth Hunter and Earl Ortman will fly the refueling plane. Ortman made a record flight from Vancouver, B. C., to Agua Caliente, Mexico, early this week.

The present women's endurance flight record of 239 hours and 30 minutes was set Jan. 6, 1933, by Helen Ritchie and Frances Marsalis at Miami, Fla.

AAA INJUNCTION HEARING TODAY IN MINNEAPOLIS

General Mills Fights Tax Collection.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 7.—(AP)—The government's legal forces prepared today for one of the most important of the more than 100 suits aimed at the overthrow of the AAA.

In the federal court of Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux tomorrow, the petition of General Mills, Inc., one of the country's largest flour millers, for a permanent injunction barring collection of the wheat processing tax, comes up for hearing.

A temporary order issued last week by Judge Molyneaux for five subsidiaries of the company and one independent paper concern tied up $1,500,000 in processing taxes.

U. S. Attorney Maps Fight.

The government's case will be presented by U. S. District Attorney George Sullivan, who said he will contend that the tax and the AAA are constitutional. Sullivan said he will urge that injunction proceedings are not the proper method of contesting the tax. Rather, he said, industry should test validity of the law in court of law, not in a court of equity.

Because of the large amount involved alone, General Mills' action ranks as one of the big guns of the 117 pending attacks on the AAA.

It assails both the legality of the government's collection of the processing tax on wheat, already temporarily enjoined in Oklahoma in similar pleas, and also the pending amendments to the AAA.

Mill Deposits Taxes.

While carrying on its legal assault, General Mills has asked no refund of previous payments to the government, as has been the case in the suit of the Amoskeag Mill, largest of the cotton textile factories.

General Mills has arranged to pay the taxes due to the government by depositing the money with the clerk of court, who will hold the big sum until its suit is finally determined.

Authorities here predicted that whatever ruling is made by the federal court, the case will go for final determination to the Supreme court of the United States. A ruling there on the AAA is expected some time in the fall.

Battle Will Continue Until Election Next Year.

tion is required to report income and only 1.4 per cent of the population pay any income tax. Fewer than 8,000 persons with net incomes of $50,000 or more contributed more than one-half of the income tax yield in 1933. Persons with net incomes under $5,000 accounted for 91 per cent of the returns and two-thirds of the taxable net income, but contributed only 40 million dollars to the government.

The conservative cause has been prospering mightily of late, so conspicuously, in fact, that official Washington is wondering whether the tide of popular sentiment is beginning to turn against the New Deal. The unanimous Supreme court decisions vindicated the contentions of the conservatives that the New Dealers had violated the constitution and that the President had attempted to usurp dictatorial powers.

Cold to Trade Control.

The country coldly received Mr. Roosevelt's pronouncement in favor of federal control of all enterprise. Facing revolt in his party and an aroused press the President was compelled to abandon the plan to jam his tax program through congress in five days.

And finally, last week the house, including a majority of his own party, rejected the "death sentence" on utility holding companies demanded by Mr. Roosevelt.

It is this latest incident that has stirred most of the speculation on the present attitude of the country toward the Roosevelt policies. The house had refused to be a rubber stamp for the President in his war on the utilities.

Although strafing the power trust had been deemed politically profitable in 1932, there were 258 congressmen, including 166 Democrats, who took their political lives in their hands on the eve of a national election to shield the utilities from the fate decreed by the President.

The majority of the Democratic membership joined in this rebuff to Mr. Roosevelt, though put upon notice by the administration that they would be liable to punishment by White House opposition to their renomination and by rejection of applications for public works funds for their districts.

NEW YORK RELIEF METHODS ATTACKED BY REPORT ON QUIZ

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Recommendations were made public today that relief workers be paid less than the wages in private industry, that "chiselers and parasites" receiving $24,000,000 a year of relief funds be prosecuted, and that "extensive carpetbagging" by out of town relief executives be halted. The report was made public today by counsel of the recent aldermanic relief investigation.

Lloyd Paul Stryker, counsel to the committee, submitted to the aldermen a 206 page report, nearly an inch thick, reviewing the testimony at the hearings, including that of "boondoggling." There were forty-eight recommendations made.

The typical weekly allowance to a single person to meet every need was reported as $7.30 a week, ranging upward for families to $19.50 for a family of nine. The number of persons on relief was reported as 1,400,000. The report would bar recent arrivals from the relief rolls.

Other excerpts from the report said:

"Aliens should not be permitted on work relief."

"Every needy unemployed person to whom work is offered either in the relief program or by a private employer who arbitrarily refuses to accept such employment should have his or her name stricken from the relief rolls."

The report charged gross inefficiency in the classification of relief workers according to occupations by the national reemployment service.

Under a section headed "salary grab" the report said "a highly paid burocracy will be difficult to dislodge until long after the necessity for their services may disappear," and that earnings of relief personnel "exceed, in many cases, incomes received in private employment during the boom years."

G. O. P. GATHERS FROM 6 STATES FOR 2D PARLEY

Grass Roots Meeting in Cleveland Today.

the Cleveland auditorium. State Senator Earl W. Munshaw of Grand Rapids, Mich., a neighbor of Senator Arthur Vandenberg, is to be temporary chairman, Mr. Bender is to be permanent chairman, and Cassell Pursell of Jackson, Mich., one of the G. O. P. birthplaces, permanent secretary. He is secretary of the Michigan League of Young Republicans. Charles W. Carroll of Philadelphia has been chosen to make the keynote address.

At the tomb of President James A. Garfield, the martyred President, an address will be given tomorrow afternoon by James Garfield Stewart of the Cincinnati city council. Thomas J. Barrett, president of the West Virginia Republican league is to be chairman of the resolutions committee.

Speakers from Kentucky will include Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson, of Louisville, who upset the condemnation of property for slum clearance, and John F. Perkins, national committeeman.

Bender "Borah of Ohio."

Reports from Washington that some of the Republicans have taken an unfriendly attitude were explained today by Mr. Bender.

Bender has been termed the "Borah of Ohio." He is 38 years of age, and years ago was religious editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer. He served ten years as state senator, the youngest man ever elected to the Ohio body. His two great passions in life are politics and leading a Presbyterian church choir.

In the senate he was best known as a sworn foe of the Anti-Saloon league, whose cradle was in Ohio, and he was credited with being a leader in the movement to minimize the league's influence in Ohio politics.

One of the Washington reports was that the conference is an "upstart convention" which is "heading off" a conference planned for next September in Columbus. Bender today exhibited clippings dating back to last April 21 giving publicity to a call he had issued as president of Ohio Republican clubs for a meeting of several nearby states. He says the idea of a Columbus regional meeting by organization men was broached afterwards, that it is still vague and is likely to be swallowed up in the conference of the next two days.

Bender is head of the Ohio Federation of Republican clubs which has units in 67 of the 88 counties and is president of the Republican Club of Cuyahoga County [Cleveland], which has 147 branch organizations. In a recent congressional campaign he led eleven candidates for Republican nomination for congressman at large and in the election he ran a quarter of a million votes ahead of ex-Senator Simeon D. Fess, former chairman of the Republican national committee.

No Axes to Grind.

Bender declared the Cleveland conference has no axes to grind, and that it will not join Charles Curtis, ex-Vice President, in his demand that Mr. Fletcher resign as national chairman.

Ed D. Schorr of Columbus, O., Republican state chairman, recently complained that state headquarters had not been consulted and the view expressed in a local newspaper was that the old guard had been given a "kick in the pants." Much has been printed about this episode.

"I'm a Republican," said Bender today, "but I believe the party does not belong to five or six individuals; it belongs to the people. I do not believe that anybody who wants to do something constructive for the party has to consult some oracle who has been waxing fat doing nothing. If that's unorthodox, then I'm unorthodox.

"Ohio is a Republican state and in 20 years we have had only two Republican governors. That shows the kind of Republican leadership we've had."

Louisiana Legislature in All Night Session.

BULLETIN.

Baton Rouge, La., July 8 [Monday].—(AP)—The Louisiana legislature gave final approval to Senator Huey P. Long's 25 bills destroying local political patronage in the state and otherwise strengthening the senator's dominance early today and adjourned sine die.

Baton Rouge, La., July 7.—(AP)—Louisiana's legislature tonight capped Senator Huey Long's list of "dictator" laws with a measure which one opponent charged would give him power to spend any state fund for any purpose.

Only a routine session scheduled to begin at 12:01 a. m. and expected to be ended before dawn remained to provide the senator with the legislative weapons he is aiming in the direction of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans and the political faction in that city he has warred with for months.

Here Is Dictator List of Bills.

The "dictator" list, designed to make Long more the master of Louisiana's politics than ever before, included these:

A bill to imprison any one using federal relief funds "for political purposes."

Control Every Teacher.

A bill to allow the state budget committee to control every school teacher job in the state and to fire any teacher at any time.

A resolution to allow the state board of liquidation to suspend the provisions of any law of the state providing for the appropriation, deposit, expenditure, or dedication of public funds.

It was the last that Senator Clement Moss of Lake Charles assailed as giving Long power to expend any state fund for any purpose.

Senator Harvey Peltier of Thibodaux, administration floor leader, retorted that "the board would only act to protect the faith and credit of the state."

Golden Dream of Politics.

It was adopted by an overwhelming house vote. The senate approved it 27 to 7.

Long himself termed as "the golden dream of politics" the measure giving the state civil service commission the final say on every public employé down to dog catcher. It will curb the building up of any local political organizations.

The resolution declares that the state board of liquidation, because of the "postponement of taxes, the unavoidable delay in the assessment of property, or for the protection of the faith and credit of the state may suspend the provisions of any law of this state providing for the appropriation, deposit, expenditure or dedication of public funds."

Biggest Long Program Yet.

The action came a few hours before the sixth extraordinary session of the last 12 months was scheduled to adjourn sine die, and topped off the most far reaching legislative program yet devised by the Louisiana "dictator."

The bill giving the state administration control of every school teacher job in the state through the state budget committee was amended to give the budget committee the added power of firing any teacher at any time, shortly after the senate convened at 6 p. m.

An attempt in the senate to amend the measure providing a jail term for political use of federal relief funds, so the act would also include penalties for like use of state funds, was rejected by a vote of 25 to 9.

Long's program was reduced to 25 bills when house bill No. 26, providing for a $1,000 annual tax for out of state contractors, was returned to the calendar, effectively killing it at this session.

Long said the chairman of the highway commission had objected so strenuously he had decided to drop it. He also said he did not know whether he "wanted the bill" himself.

BECOMES A JUDGE

MRS. JUSTINE WISE TULIN.

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Justine Wise Tulin, 32, will be sworn in tomorrow for a 30 day term as a justice of the Domestic Relations court and later will be appointed to succeed Justice Samuel D. Levy, who will retire shortly, Mayor F. H. La Guardia said today.

Justice Levy, who is 72 and has been on the bench continuously since his appointment by Mayor William J. Gaynor in 1912, was reappointed to a full year term by Mayor La Guardia in September last year.

As an assistant corporation counsel Mrs. Tulin has been in charge of the workmen's compensation bureau in the law department during the La Guardia administration, and recently has been legal assistant to Oswald W. Knauth, city relief administrator. As a justice of the Domestic Relations court she will be the first woman to hold a judicial office higher than that of magistrate in the state.

Police Athlete Doubles as Doctor in Stork Case

Policeman Frank McNerney has a record as an athlete and a trainer of athletes. He knows how to treat a sprained ankle, a charleyhorse, or a bruise. But last night he had a different job. He and Policeman Henry Stirke were in a patrol wagon rushing Mrs. Celia Woser, 25 years old, 4056 Lincoln avenue, to the County hospital. The stork caught the patrol wagon about Harrison street and Western avenue. Undaunted, Policeman McNerney turned doctor and Mrs. Woser reached the hospital with a 12 pound baby boy.

FRANCE HEADED FOR 'FALL,' SAYS VETERANS' CHIEF

Predicts Early Seizure of Rule by Fascists.

PARIS, July 7.—(AP)—Col. Francois de la Rocque, chief of the Nationalist Veterans' organization Croix de Feu, predicted today France is headed for a "fall," which will lead his forces to "power."

The man whom many regard as the potential Fascist dictator of France announced a program for governing the country in a speech to his followers at Tourcoing.

De la Rocque threatened to "put rotten parliamentarianism on a vacation."

Plan Bastille Day Demonstrations.

Left wing enemies of the Nationalists at the same time made plans for demonstrations and counter demonstrations on Bastille day next Sunday, when political trouble is feared.

"When we take power we will not do it for a politician or a party, but personally and on our sole responsibility," De la Rocque declared.

"Tomorrow, the next day or within a fortnight I may give you a mobilization order against the revolution of Blum, Daladier, Cachin, and their associates," he said. He referred to Leon Blum, former Premier Edouard Daladier and Marcel Cachin, leaders of left wing radical Socialists and communists.

Promises to "Silence Bankers."

"We will silence the bankers who ply the double game of an illusory alliance with the Soviet and a rapprochement with Germany," he said. "When we take power there will be fewer ministers, but also fewer unemployed."

REDS MEET WITH STALIN TO PLAN USE OF BALLOT

MOSCOW, July 7.—(AP)—The committee appointed to alter the constitution to provide for the introduction of parliamentary practices in the soviet form of government held its first meeting today under the chairmanship of Dictator Joseph Stalin.

These changes, calculated to liberalize national elections, were ordered by the soviet all-union congress last February at the suggestion of President Mikhail Kalinin. In his closing speech to the congress Vyacheslav Molotov, president of the council of commissars, said the soviet system would be called on to embrace "all that is best in the parliamentary form of government."

The proposed changes will call for the inauguration of direct voting with the secret ballot to give all classes equal representation in congress and will confirm socialist property as the basis of soviet society.

Kaiser's Vets Praise Hitler for Restoring "Military Freedom"

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KASSEL, Germany, July 7.—The efforts of ex-service men of many nations to get together in the cause of peace were reinforced today at the first "National Warriors' rally" under the Nazi régime by Col. Wilhelm Reinhard, leader of the Kyffhaeuser league, embracing 3,000,000 German ex-soldiers.

Thanking Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler for restoring military freedom, Col. Reinhard declared:

"The aim of this military freedom is not war but peace. We who fought through the world war rejoice that Hitler's decisions are understood by many of his war comrades on the other side of the frontier. We most warmly welcome a rapprochement between the front line soldiers of all states because they are the most competent to eliminate the last shadows of the world war. We especially welcome the naval agreement with England."

Old Spirit Revived.

Hitler sent a message to the veterans which said:

"The old military spirit of loyalty and comradeship which was kept alive in the reichswehr has again now found its old great sphere of activity in the re-arisen army from which it will spread out to embrace the entire German nation. May the National Warriors' rally be a mighty demonstration of military freedom and national unity."

The most notable feature of the rally was the prominent part played by representatives of the new army, stressing the close connection with the old army. The gathering was addressed in the name of Hitler and Gen. Werner von Blomberg, minister of defense, by Gen. Dollmann, who commands the local troops. He conveyed the greetings of the new army.

300,000 in Review.

The parade review of 300,000 ex-service men lasted four hours. Marching across the great Karlswiese sports field nearly every detachment was headed by an aged ex-general or former high officer.

The demonstration closed this afternoon with a display of the new army with the most modern equipment, though only sham tanks were used. The military precision and discipline evoked the admiration of the foreign military attachés present.

Kassel was converted into a vast fair for the rally, being gaily decorated with flags and with refreshment tents and bands everywhere throughout the town.

NAZIS THREATEN CATHOLICS WITH STERN REPRISALS

MUENSTER, Germany, July 7.—(AP)—The bold action of the Catholic Bishop Clemens August of Muenster in protesting a scheduled speech by Dr. Alfred Rosenberg infuriated Nazi officialdom into threats of retaliatory measures today.

The threats were uttered by Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of interior, at a rally here. Describing the bishop's protest as an unheard of provocation, Frick said that sabotage actions by certain Catholic circles would no longer be tolerated.

"We insist that public life shall be freed entirely of the trammels of the confessional," he said. "There is no longer any need for Catholic officials or societies, or for a Catholic press or Catholic youth organizations. They are out of date, and too often they interfere with the enlightenment of the people, which is the sole prerogative of national socialism."

MANY DROWN AS DIKES COLLAPSE IN CHINA FLOOD

City of Changteh Engulfed in Ten Feet of Water.

CHANGTEH, Hunan Province, China, July 7.—(AP)—The greatest disaster of recent years befell this prosperous inland Chinese city today when dikes on the Yuan river collapsed and a wall of water engulfed the city and surrounding countryside. An undetermined number of persons were drowned.

All members of the foreign colony, consisting of approximately one dozen American missionaries and a group of British and Australian religious workers, were reported safe.

Thousands of homes were inundated and residences of Americans representing the Northern Presbyterian mission were under ten feet of water.

Greater Than in 1931.

The flood had already exceeded in proportions that which crushed the area in 1931 when the Yangtze river raged through central China, leaving death and desolation behind on an unmatched scale.

With this city and area facing disaster, rain continued to fall tonight. Nearby Tungting lake was out of its bounds. Officials feared unless the weather moderated great loss of life would occur.

In addition to the Presbyterian mission here, the other missions are the Christians and Missionary Alliance, which has headquarters in New York; the Canadian Holiness movement, with headquarters at Ottawa; the China Inland mission, with American headquarters in Philadelphia.

Americans at Changteh.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 7.—(AP)—The China Inland Mission headquarters said today it has two American missionaries located in the heart of the flooded Changteh area. No word has been received from them recently. They are:

The Rev. Wilson W. Moore of Charlotte, N. C., who educated at Union Theological seminary, Richmond, Va., and returned to China six years ago, and the Rev. Arthur J. Dieffenbacher of Erie, Pa., who went to China in 1932 after attending Grove City college, Grove City, Pa., and Evangelical Theological college, Dallas.

The foreign staf of the Presbyterian mission includes Dr. George Tootell, Knoxville, Tenn., and Mrs. Tootell; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bannon, Medicine Hat, Alta., Canada, and Miss Nettie de Jong, Holland, Mich. The mission plant includes residences, schools and a hospital. The mission was similarly flooded in 1931.

The Rev. A. E. Snead, foreign secretary of the Christian and Missionary alliance, said tonight at New York that, so far as he knows, the Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Graham, in charge of the mission at Changteh, were the only Americans of their organization stationed there.

VITAL RIVER PORT.

Changteh is 252 miles from Hankow, situated on the north bank of the Yuan river, with high mountains at its back and an extensive plain to the east.

It is a treaty port under certain restrictions and the sole market for products from Kweichow province and a portion of Szechwan province. Deep draft steamers from Hankow and elsewhere ply the river as far as Changteh, where the cargo destined for interior points is transferred into flat bottomed boats capable of navigating scores of rapids to the west.

Yangtze Continues Rise.

HANKOW, China, July 7.—(AP)—This city was under two feet of water tonight as heavy rains continued, feeding the swollen Yangtze river. Numerous water front streets were deep in water because of dike leaks. Operators of warehouses were apprehensive as the flood rose. They began transferring cargoes, principally of beans, sugar, cotton, and automobiles, to upper floors.

Beyond the Chang Kung dike, which protects Hankow from the overflowing of the Han river, stretches a vast lake blanketing the rich farm lands to a depth of 35 feet. Most of the foreign population escaped the floods, having left earlier for summer resorts.

At Kiukiang, below Hankow, the water front was under four feet of water. At Nanking the flood waters were covering the water front. Destruction of crops increased fears of a famine. Reports that heavy rains were falling throughout Shensi province caused fears of floods from the Yellow river.

DISMISSED HEAD OF OMAHA U. ENDS LIFE WITH POISON

Omaha, Neb., July 7.—(AP)—Dr. W. E. Sealock, 56, deposed head of the Municipal University of Omaha, died at his home here tonight. Paul L. Martin, friend of the family, said he had taken poison. He left a note, but its contents were not revealed.

Dr. Sealock was the center of a controversy at the university, and a request for an official investigation of his ouster was in the mails today to the Washington office of the American Association of University Professors.

Martin, an attorney, had resigned from the board of regents as a result of the controversy. He had called to visit with Dr. Sealock when he found him dying.

The board of regents dismissed Dr. Sealock while he was absent two weeks ago. The action followed investigation by the board of charges by Dr. Sealock that a "spy" system existed on the campus.

The faculty committee of the board returned a verdict that the evidence did not support the charges.

Dr. Sealock was born in Rural Dale, O., and received his bachelor of arts degree from Ohio university. He later attended the University of Wisconsin and was awarded a Ph. D. degree following study at Columbia university.

Pays Fine for Speeding in Car Owned by Dillinger

San Diego, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—The motor car of the late John Dillinger sped through the north section of San Diego at what sheriff's deputies said was nearly 90 miles an hour. So they gave chase, envisioning an encounter with the desperado's successors. Finally they hauled down C. C. Myrick of Tucson, Ariz. He paid a fine of $25 for speeding after convincing officers he had purchased the car at a federal court sale of the dead bandit's effects.

TWO FURNITURE SHOWS OPEN IN CHICAGO TODAY

Eight thousand advance registrations of buyers were announced yesterday for two furniture shows that open in Chicago today. The 23d semiannual furniture show will open in the American Furniture Mart, 666 Lake Shore drive. The other show will be in the Merchandise Mart.

Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the Furniture Mart, declared the registrations represent the largest buying power in furniture history and exceed in number any advance registration of the last five years. Rising prices and a good fall demand also were reported. The show will last two weeks and the National Retail Furniture association will celebrate its 15th anniversary next Thursday. Both the 1933 and 1934 summer markets opened in June. The late opening this year, allowing time for inventories and buyers' home checking of requirements, is expected to increase the business volume, it was said.

Two Fishermen Drown at Peoria; Wives Saved

Peoria, Ill., July 7.—[Special.]—Cletis McClanahan, 29, garage foreman, and Leo Crawley, 33 years old, a painter, of Peoria, drowned today in the Illinois river when on a fishing trip. Mrs. McClanahan and Mrs. Crawley were rescued.

2,000 PENNIES STOLEN.

Wallace, Idaho, July 7.—(AP)—Burglars stole $875 in cash and $1,000 in jewelry from the home of Mrs. Will S. Ward, but the loss she minded most, she said today, was that of 2,500 pennies, the accumulation of a lifetime.

PLEAS FOR ICE TELL SUFFERING AMONG NEEDY

Tribune Fund Receives More Donations.

BY MARCIA WINN.

The morning mail of THE TRIBUNE free ice fund is heavy with evidence of suffering these hot July days.

Fathers and mothers write in telling of sickly babies, of aged dependents, of souring milk and of refrigerators as hot and empty of ice as the blazing streets outside. Here are excerpts from a few of the letters:

"My girl is 3 years old. My boy is 5 months old. I must have ice for my baby's milk, and I am out of work."

"I am 76 years old, and this weather is almost more than I can stand. I have to have milk every day but have no way to keep it cool. My boy makes $10 a week, but where is anything left for ice?"

Baby Ill from Spoiled Food.

"I have been out of work for two years. Our baby is sick from spoiled food. Will you send us some tickets for ice?"

"Will you please help me out with ice? I have a sick wife and boy and I am unemployed and have no funds, and whatever we have spoils."

"My baby is on the bottle and it is almost impossible to keep his milk from souring. He has been in the hospital and is very delicate."

"I have a baby 20 months old. She is sick. My husband is not working. Will you please be so kind and spare me some ice tickets to keep the baby's milk fresh? It always gets sour."

Contrasting with these came another, also occasioned by the heat, but inclosing a check for $25.

Ice Project Is Praised.

"This morning's temperature leads me to believe that the inclosed check from the Western Electric company might profitably be used in the purchase of ice for needy families," the letter read. "Each year this charity goes its way, doing a great deal of good for the underprivileged with a minimum of ballyhoo."

Contributions to date are:

Lodge No. 4, B. P. O. Elks	$ 25.00
A. Y. S.	5.00
Western Electric company	25.00
"Little Women"	1.50
Previously acknowledged	75.55
Total	$132.05

The free ice fund, through which a million and a half pounds of ice were distributed to the needy last summer, is maintained solely by readers of THE TRIBUNE. The letters written in to the fund may be answered only by those readers.

News of The Tribune Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Lay Corn By; 3d Plowing.

July 7, 1935.

CULTIVATORS will run from sunup until sundown on the Yorkville experimental farm this week, "laying by" the corn. This third and last cultivation will be done with tractors while horses work in the hay fields. All the corn has been plowed twice with the exception of a seven acre piece in the Fox river bottoms that was planted late.

Hot weather last week with an abundance of moisture, kept the corn growing in fine shape and it is well ahead of the weeds. In the early planted fields the corn is now more than knee high. The last cultivation will be shallow so as not to disturb the roots. The cultivators will be equipped with sweep shovels, which leave the rows only slightly ridged.

Clarence Thurrow, farm manager, says the men are able to do better work with the tractors than with horse drawn cultivators. The frequent rains have kept the horses idle so much of the time this spring and summer that they have not yet become hardened to heavy work and must be handled carefully on hot days and rested after nearly every "round" when cultivating long rows. Tractors pull the cultivators faster and steadier than the teams, causing the shovels to throw the dirt with more force. This enables the workmen to do a better job of covering up grass and weeds in the corn rows.

All the oat fields on the Yorkville place are in full head and harvesting is expected to begin the latter part of next week. The oats are unusually heavy and are showing no signs of smut. Most of the oats still are standing despite the rank growth. A few spots in the late oats, which are much higher now than the early varieties, were beaten down by last week's hard rains. The thick stands of oats have kept the weeds pretty well choked down except for some Canada thistles. They have been cut out with scythes.

Hay making is still a problem at the Yorkville farm. With most of the alfalfa fields turning out the heaviest first cuttings ever grown on this place, the harvesters have been having considerable difficulty getting the hay cured and in the barns. About 22 acres have been put in and there are more than 60 acres yet to cut.

None of the hay has been badly damaged, but the first that was cut took several hard rains while it was down in the fields and had to be turned over twice in the wind rows to dry out. It is a little off color, but neither the keeping nor feeding quality is thought to have been affected.

Much of the alfalfa is badly lodged due to rank growth and pounding rains and this makes cutting difficult. By pulling the mower slowly with a tractor while the knife is run at a fast rate from a power takeoff the men are able to make fairly clean cuts of the spots that are down.

One of the best horses on the Yorkville farm was nearly overcome by heat one day last week while mowing alfalfa. The driver noticed his condition in time to avoid serious trouble and called a veterinary. The animal has recovered and is now back at work.

MINERS CHARGE INTIMIDATION BY SHERIF'S FORCE

Harlan, Ky., July 7.—(AP)—Maynard Gobbs, a union mine worker, charged in a statement given to State Police Captain Noel S. Jones today that a Harlan county deputy sherif seized copies of the Wagner labor disputes bill he was attempting to distribute at a coal camp at Chevrolet, Ky., yesterday.

Capt. Jones reported the complaint to Adjt. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt. Denhardt recently assigned Capt. Jones and 14 other state police here as "observers" after union complaints of intimidation by deputy sherifs.

Their "observing" activities halted by a temporary restraining order obtained in Circuit court by Sherif Theodore R. Middleton, the state police remained at a hotel here today. They will go to Pineville tomorrow afternoon for a hearing before Circuit Judge J. M. Gilbert on contempt citations obtained by Middleton.

INTERNAL FIGHT SEEN AS THREAT TO A. F. OF L. UNITY

Industrial, Craft Groups in Tangle.

Washington, July 7.—(AP)—The fight between industrial and craft unionists today threatened an upheaval within American Federation of Labor ranks.

A drastic change in the federation executive council's policy was said in authoritative labor sources to be needed to maintain the federation as now set up. In fact some quarters said plans for organization of a new federation of industrial unions already are in the making.

The fight over whether industrial workers should be organized by industry or by craft has grown increasingly bitter within the last few years.

Transfer Lights Fuse.

This bitterness reached a high pitch last spring when the executive council allotted to craft unions several hundred employés at Anaconda Copper company mines in Montana. These employés were claimed by the mine, mill and smelter workers, an industrial union.

Only two of the council's 18 members, George L. Berry of the printing pressmen and John L. Lewis of the United Mine workers, supported the mine union. The council's third industrial unionist, David Dubinsky of the Ladies Garment workers, was not at the meeting.

At its January meeting the council had struck another blow at industrial unionists in writing the charter for the United Automobile workers. The charter stipulated that machinists in machine shops and maintenance men were to be organized by craft unions, not by the industrial union.

Clothiers and Brewers Resentful.

The sources which disclosed the possibility of a rift declined to name the unions which might seek withdrawal from the A. F. of L.

Its principal industrial unions are the United Mine workers, the Amalgamated Clothing workers, the Ladies Garment workers, the United Textile workers, the United Automobile workers, the Mine, Mill and Smelter workers, the Petroleum workers, the Brewers and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers.

Both the Amalgamated Clothing workers and the brewers were said to have grudges against the council for recent awards of some of their members to craft unions.

KILLED BY FREIGHT TRAIN.

An unidentified man about 45 years old was killed yesterday when he was struck by a northbound Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railway freight train one-half mile south of St. Charles road near the Kane county line in Elgin.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In yesterday's TRIBUNE it was erroneously stated that Miss Charlotte Eckhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy B. Eckhart of Kenilworth, was married to Darwin P. Kingsley Jr. of New York. Miss Elizabeth Eckhart became the bride of Mr. Kingsley. Her sister, Charlotte, is the wife of Thomas Roswell Coyne.

ASK PROTECTION FOR REPORTERS' NEWS SOURCES

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Recommendation was made to Gov. Herbert Lehman today by Samuel Douglas, chairman of the committee on courts of the community councils of New York City, for amendment of state statues to give newspaper correspondents equal privileges under the law to those accorded attorneys, doctors, and the clergy.

The recommendation was in support of a movement to permit reporters to protect confidential sources of information. The movement grew out of the sentencing of Martin Mooney, a New York reporter, for refusal to divulge to the grand jury his source of information for an article exposing rackets.

In his letter to Gov. Lehman, urging amendment of the state civil practice act, Douglas said such action "is essential in a democracy where the constitution guarantees a free press."

Half a Million People Have Borrowed Money Here Under This Simple Plan

A considerable proportion of our loans are on collateral, but the majority are secured simply by the signatures of the borrower and two friends. The loans are repaid on a monthly-payment plan over a one-year period.

We are a bank, operating under state banking laws, specializing in personal (rather than commercial) loans. Our basis of doing business is so sound that practically all of our loans are repaid promptly. This is one of the reasons why the cost of borrowing here is so low and why the terms are so liberal.

SHIPS' WHISTLES OPEN LAKE WEEK AT 10 A. M. TODAY

Blasts of ship whistles at 10 o'clock this morning will open Lake week, which will mark seventy-five years of progress in lake travel.

Arrangements have been made for a program depicting Chicago as the greatest inland port and emphasizing the opportunities of picturesque travel along the lakes. Mayor Kelly and officials of steamship companies have coöperated in planning the program. On Wednesday ceremonies will be held at the Lorado Taft Fountain of the Great Lakes, south of the Art institute in Grant park, when waters of the five lakes will be poured into the fountain.

A style show will be held on Thursday on the Seeandbee at the Navy pier. On Saturday a boat race will be held off Grant park.

Maude Key Sheldon, a descendant of Francis Scott Key, composer of "The Star Spangled Banner," will reign as "Miss Lake Week."

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

IN DEFENSE OF THE REAL AMERICA.

The basis of THE TRIBUNE'S editorial policy is the defense of the main body of the American people from the ruin toward which demagogues, impractical experimenters, and radical enemies of American institutions have been leading the nation.

During the years of the depression and its widespread losses, its unemployment, its wiping out of savings, its suffering, moral and material, in the present, and its fear of the future, these destructive influences have unscrupulously played upon emotions which are the worst of guides to public or private action. They have tried to convert sympathy for the unfortunate into support for policies which favor the incompetent, the thriftless, the minority which is and always will be a dead weight on the nation, policies which exact unjust sacrifice and impose destructive burdens upon the great body of industrious and intelligent people who carry on the work of civilized society.

To accomplish this evil work it has been useful to play upon ignorant envy of the competent and to cultivate the false assumption that all success is the product of dishonesty, unfair privilege, and ruthless selfishness. Profit, however reasonable, has been decried as a moral evil and preposterous schemes for distributing property and improving the condition of the incompetent minority at the expense of the competent majority have been preached under pretense of humanitarianism and democratic equality.

This process utterly ignores the welfare of the vast majority of the American people, 80 or more per cent of the nation, the real nation. It is they who are the real sufferers from the Roosevelt revolution, the people who need a stable currency to protect their savings, who need a stable and energetic industry to furnish their employment, who need moderation in taxation to protect them from the absorption of their earnings by ambitious politicians and theorists full of self-righteous zeal for spending other people's money.

It is upon the character and intelligence, the labor of hand and brain, the industry, thrift, self-discipline, and foresight of this 80 or more per cent of our people that the strength, the moral and material welfare, all hope of the progress of the nation rests. On the farms and in the factories, in the shops of the merchants, in the agencies of distribution and transport, whether as owners, managers, or employés, in the professions and the arts, this main body of the people carry on the essential activities of civilization. This is not to underestimate the leading part played in human progress by the gifted, the supercompetent. It is not to overlook those who abuse their special gifts or circumstances, men who are taking and will take advantage of the disorder, the demoralization, the blundering experimentation of the so-called New Deal. They know how to get timely information, tips to use to their own profit from those in authority. They and their like will always contrive to survive and to prosper.

We do not yield to any demagog nor to any professional humanitarian in our determination to see that the unfortunate are cared for. We do not yield to any reformer in determination to check actual abuses of power and privilege. But more vital to the common welfare by far, and it is the main purpose of our policy, as it must be the policy of honest and competent statesmanship, is to create and conserve conditions under which the solid and deserving main body of the American people may recover from a depression which power seeking politicians and economic incompetents are prolonging.

Insidious appeals to mean envy, incitements to rancor, and unfriendliness have poisoned the wholesome air of America to support destructive measures of pretended reform and hide conspiracy against the institutions which have fostered the cultural and economic progress of the American people since the adoption of the constitution. In the guise of aid for the unfortunate a mountain of debt far greater than is required for its ostensible purpose has been piled upon the shoulders of the productive body of our people and will be piled higher under the system which we are invited to substitute for American freedom. This public robbery and the means by which it is being accomplished are as old as human government and they have always brought ruin. To avert this calamity, to protect the deserving majority of our people from this destruction of the foundations of their social and political welfare, to rouse them to the defense of their heritage is the highest duty and the overshadowing responsibility of the hour.

THE AMERICAN LEAD MUST NOT BE LOST.

A dispatch from Paris informs us that the French air ministry has made substantial progress in its plan for commercial service for passengers and mail between France and the United States via the Azores and Bermuda. To THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE the situation is becoming alarming. Air service between European points and South America by European aviation companies is now an old story. That they will next seek to tap the much heavier movement to and from the United States seems a natural sequence.

We have become accustomed to look to the Pan-American Airways as the logical American operators to inaugurate this service because of their experience in flying the Caribbean, but they hold no vested right in the undertaking and if they continue to procrastinate other American air lines or even a new organization must seize the opportunity. All America is looking forward to this trans-Atlantic service as the next step in transportation and hearty support is a certainty. To be first in the field will insure success, while to follow as a competitor of some established European line would be a dubious undertaking, as we well know from our experience in trans-Atlantic shipping.

NOTE FOR INTERNATIONALISTS.

One of the sorriest sequels of the miscalled peace conference following the defeat of the central powers is the present fate of Tyrolean youth. The American President, it will be recalled, had gone to Paris with his world-advertised formulas for the re-creation of a war wasted Europe on the firm foundation of justice and covenanted peace. Among the most novel and momentous of these formulas was the self-determination of peoples. To this doctrin the representatives of the great victorious powers gave prompt approval, with tongue in cheek, and thereupon set it like a piece of showy ornament, on the shelf. Thus the ancient Germanic territory of the Tyrol, inhabited by a people of the purest and oldest Teutonic blood, was turned over to Italy on the theory of military expediency. Italy demanded security from invasion, a boundary fixed by military considerations. It got it.

And now thousands of Austrian youths have been put into Italian uniforms, armed with Italian weapons, and are in training to fight and die in a war against a people with whom they have no quarrel for the possible aggrandizement of a nation that won authority over them by force alone.

The fate of these victims of the so-called peace of Paris deserves some thought from the American internationalists who demanded our signature to the treaties of Versailles and St. Germain and still demand our entrance into an institution which stands silent before this outrage.

LAKE WEEK.

An outstanding accomplishment of A Century of Progress was that it again "brought the lake to Chicagoans." More regular passenger steamers and excursion vessels were in evidence along our water front during the years 1933 and 1934 than in many a day. The operators of Chicago's passenger fleet have no intention of letting slip the advantage gained in public interest and have set aside the week commencing July 8 as "Lake week."

Some of the larger vessels will be brought into the mouth of the Chicago river for public inspection. There will be a lake parade and many other attractions, culminating on Saturday, July 13, in a lifeboat race that will include lowering and launching as well as oarsmanship.

It is unfortunate, of course, that differing schedules will make it impossible to assemble the entire fleet on a single day, but Chicagoans will view and applaud the efforts of the various lines to exhibit their wares.

NAUGHTY BOY.

Gen. Johnson is afflicted with an irresistible impulse to utter uncomfortable truths at unseasonable moments. He is the naughty boy at the Thanksgiving feasting of the New Deal, likely to remark the defects of the cookery with the most untimely candor. On Monday one of these painful incidents occurred when the general, taking over his job as relief administrator in New York, declared he hated the thing because it isn't helping anybody anywhere. "When the source of money is cut off we'll be right back where we started."

The general is optimistic without knowing it. We shall be a good deal farther back than that.

Editorial of the Day

TAINTED FERA FOOD.

[Indianapolis News.]

The illness of several inmates of a federal transient bureau, due, it is alleged, to tainted food, within a week after more than 200 residents of the same bureau were stricken, calls for a sweeping investigation of the management of this and similar bureaus in the city. The affliction of the men brought several rumors of bad food in the past and of ignored complaints. The suffering of the men tends to confirm rumors of bad management and places upon public officials an inescapable duty of complete investigation.

Indianapolis was conducting its own shelters under a successful plan when the federal social service workers came in and began to spend money on what they declared to be the approved system. They were working under a national policy and seemed to be in position to have their own way. Even though they displaced experienced men with a record of successful conduct of the shelters on a surprisingly economical basis, there was a tendency to let them proceed with the federal money that they were authorized to expend.

A strong suspicion of managerial blame was aroused when, after the food poisoning episode last week, an attempt was made to hide the facts from the public. When this happens the people naturally get the impression that the truth would point the finger of blame at some one on the pay roll.

It should be understood that the cloak of federal authority by no means shields these men from local investigation. If they have been violating local laws the police, the prosecutor, and the state and local health authorities are authorized to act. If the federal government cannot take a reasonably humane attitude toward men whose only misfortune is that they are unable to obtain gainful employment it is the duty of the community to come to their defense. The fact that the mistake of last week was not corrected is a stinging and well deserved criticism of federal, state, and local authorities who evidently gave more time to making explanations than to correcting the evil.

A VERY OPEN LETTER.

From the U. S. A. to Emperor Selassie, Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, Africa.

Dear King: We take our pen in hand to reply to your letter, asking us to send you our famous Kellogg peace dove, received and contents noted. You ask us to sic the peace dove on Mussolini, but do you know, king, we can't find a feather of that fool peace dove, although we've had the aviary searched a dozen times. Something may have happened to him or he may have decided he wasn't a peace dove, but one of the kind that Noah sent out from the ark to see if the flood was all over. You know, See!—you don't mind if we call you See, do you?—we've been having a terrible lot of rain in this country and that dove might have taken it into his head to do a little flying around to see if he could find a dry spot. Not a chance! However, what we are really afraid of is that the Blue Eagle ate the peace dove up. You see, we had to keep the Blue Eagle in the aviary, too, and for a long time he was very ferocious, as the Brain Trusters kept feeding him raw meat. Well, after a while things happened and the Blue Eagle got pretty hungry; it isn't at all unlikely he swallowed the peace dove. However, we're right behind you in your fuss with Mussolini, understand that. Oh way, way behind. But you see how it is. We're sending you a present of a safety razor. Maybe if you used it and stepped right out from behind your whiskers Mussolini could see your face and decide that you really looked determined. Of course, as long as you skulk around behind that terrible crop of alfalfa on your face the Duce can't tell whether you're really cross with him or whether you take this whole thing as a good joke. Our family are all well and everybody sends regards. Sorry we couldn't do anything about the peace dove, but don't get sore. Better luck next time. Toodle doo—don't take any wooden nickels. By-by.

THRENODY AT NIGHTFALL.

O loveliest of all the lost,
Who smiles no more where pathways meet,
Nor make the fields we two have crossed
Glad for the coming of your feet;
I gaze across this heap of mould
Upon a world grown swiftly old,
And think at what a bitter cost
Life doles to each his sip of sweet.

Still softly from the twilight tree
The cloudy petal breaks and falls,
The first star blooms above the sea,
The restless night wind roves and calls;
But never gleams on sea or shore
The loveliness that is no more,
And better than my life to me
Lies packed about with earthen walls.

Blossom and star and singing phrase
Beguile in vain the wary mind;
I shall not come upon your ways,
Nor speak, nor hear you speak in kind.
Nor magic nor device of art
Shall wake your whisper in my heart,
And I shall seek you all my days,
And always seek, and never find.

The lengthening shafts of shade and light
That mark the world with black and gray,
The silent beaches cold and white,
The still blue water bare of spray,
The orchards, and the dusky wood,
Stand strange and new with solitude;
And solitary in the night
I wait the clear and silent day.

BLUE MONDAY again.. And it's bluer than it used to be because almost everybody I know goes gadding around in their autos on Sunday. Gosh, I hate to look at the automobile fatalities on Monday. Pretty soon I won't have a friend left. And those who fear (or hope) that I'll be in that list some fine Monday are all wet. My old gas buggy stays in the stable on Sunday. Still, I do walk over to the drug store and down to the office on Sunday. And the Hit-and-Run boys may get me some day. One can never tell.

THE OLD AGE PENSION is almost a reality in Illinois. Well, that's fine! If one can live long enough to be called old in these days of radios, jazz, movies, autos, bandits, cocktails, rising prices, New Deal jumbles, stock market whirligigs, and all the rest of it he ought not only to get an old age pension but a gold-headed cane, a diamond medal, a new suit of clothes, and a year's free rides on the street car lines, and he should also be asked what he wants for Christmas.

A LITTLE GIRL in New York has been allowed by the courts only $14,750 for living expenses during the next eighteen months. What! Only fourteen thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars for that child to live on for eighteen months! Outrageous! Why don't they put her on the dole?

SUN OR HEAT STROKE.

WITH the coming of the next heat wave we will read of numerous cases of sunstroke. In general parlance this term includes heat stroke and heat prostration. There is a difference, however, that we must recognize. Heat stroke calls for prompt action if life is to be saved. In this emergency the heat regulating center of the brain is out of balance and the patient's temperature may be as high as 110 degrees F. Literally, the victim is on fire as one can live but a few hours with such a temperature.

The beginning symptoms are sometimes observed for a few hours before actual collapse occurs. There may be headache, dizziness, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, marked restlessness, and an excessive thirst. The patient does not perspire and the skin is hot and dry. In other cases unconsciousness may come suddenly.

Treatment consists in reducing the temperature as rapidly as possible. The patient should be placed in a tub of water to which ice has been added and the body vigorously rubbed until the temperature falls to approximately 102 degrees F. The patient should then be moved to a bed in a room where the air is circulating freely. As a rule, the temperature will continue to fall. If it doesn't, ice bags may be applied to the head and sponging with alcohol and ice water continued. Sometimes the heart will need stimulation.

Exhaustion or prostration due to heat presents symptoms which are quite different. The patient is not unconscious but may complain of dizziness, nausea, weakness, and inability to see clearly. Abdominal cramps are not infrequent. Usually the temperature is not over 103 degrees F. There is no emergency, but the patient should be placed in bed in a cool atmosphere as soon as possible.

Any one may become a victim of excess heat without a moment's exposure to the direct rays of the sun. The condition arises because the afflicted individual is unable to get rid of heat from his own body. We dissipate heat chiefly through the skin and the amount that the body loses depends upon the clothing and the temperature and humidity of the air. If the air is moving more heat will be lost.

To get rid of heat it is necessary not only that the person perspire but that the perspiration evaporates promptly. Let us assume that the temperature of the air is higher than the normal temperature of the body, as is frequently the case on hot days. The only method then of getting rid of heat is through evaporation from the skin and lungs. If the humidity [moisture] in the air is high, perspiration will evaporate slowly and, in consequence, there will ensue but little cooling of the skin. Estimates have shown that the body cannot withstand a temperature much above 90 degrees for any length of time in a moist atmosphere. Heat stroke will come on more promptly with a moist air temperature of 90 degrees than in dry air at a temperature of 100 degrees F.

Prevention lies in avoiding too much food, particularly varieties that are heat producing. Clothing must be of such character as will permit evaporation from the surface of the body. A cooling tub bath each evening on hot days is an excellent preventive measure. Elimination must be normal and enough water and salts should be taken to replace the loss incident to perspiration.

A rapid pulse is a warning to cool off. Normally the pulse rate is 70 to 80 beats per minute. On very hot days it may rise to 90 but if the rate exceeds 100 the signal must not be ignored. Work output is never as efficient on hot days. Modern cooling devices not only promote efficiency but prevent accidents such as heat stroke. We must not forget that this condition may appear among sedentary workers [clerks, etc.] as well as those who are engaged in muscular activity.

MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS.

W. E. P. writes: I have had multiple sclerosis for twelve years and it is growing worse, I am now unable to walk and have little use of my hands. I have been told of some experimental work, and would like to know the results.

REPLY.

Multiple sclerosis is a distressing situation. Much experimental work is in progress, but nothing curative has as yet been developed. About three years ago a British neurologist thought he had found the particular organism that caused the condition. His findings were not substantiated. The condition is one that medical science hopes to conquer in the days to come.

IODINE IN FOODS.

L. C. writes: what foods contain iodine?

REPLY.

The presence of iodine in foods is exceedingly variable. It depends on the amount of iodine found in the soil. There is more of this mineral found in the soil near the sea than inland. Sea moss and agar-agar [sea weed] are fairly rich in this substance. To get iodine into the system iodized salt is generally used, but it is unwise to employ this procedure without knowing definitly that iodine is needed. If the thyroid gland is overactive this practice may be positively harmful.

TONSIL REMOVAL.

L. S. writes: If the tonsils are removed by electricity is there danger of cancer of the throat afterwards?

REPLY.

There is no evidence to support the contention that cancerous growths will follow electrical removal of the tonsils. The method, however, is not considered to be as thorough nor as effective as skilful surgery.

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Chicago, July 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Several years ago my wife and her two sisters jointly [1] inherited a large piece of property in Illinois. However, [2] the grandmother gets all the income derived from it and pays all expenses while she lives, so the girls really don't get it until the grandmother dies. My wife passed away leaving no will. There are two small children left with me. 3. Do I or the children get her share of the property in the event of grandmother's death? 4. Also, is there anything to be done or anybody to be notified of my wife's death in order to safeguard this inheritance for my children and myself? An aunt of my wife's was executrix of the estate from which my wife got this property and [5] has the will, or a copy of it, in her possession, but will not let me see it. Is there any other place I can see the will?

E. M. M.

1. Your use of this word implies that there was no will.
2. This seems to imply that there was a will, and in such case we cannot give advice of much value without having its wording before us.
3. It seems probable that the will is so worded that your wife's interest is vested and in such case it would descend to her heirs upon her death.
4. The other parties could insist on probate of your wife's estate.
5. If the first will has been probated then you could obtain a copy from the clerk of the court or examine the original in his office. If it has not been probated you can insist that it be filed for that purpose.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PARK POLICE.

Chicago, July 2.—[Friend of the People.]—Please advise me when and where the next examination will be held for patrolmen for the park district. Also, where can I obtain an application?

L. C. W.

I cannot give you definite information as to the date of an examination for patrolman, as such examination has not been called. Examinations will be held in the Chicago park district as soon as it is possible to classify the various positions and get the records in shape to enable the holding of examinations in accordance with the needs of the service. When examinations are called they will be advertised two weeks in advance in one of the daily publications of the city and bulletins of all examinations to be held will be posted throughout the Chicago park district in the field houses.

S. D. FOREST,
Superintendent of Employment, Chicago park district.

JUDGMENT NOTE.

Chicago, July 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Six years ago I loaned a party some money for which I am holding a judgment note. Six per cent interest is specified. I have received since that time $10 interest. 1. Could I have this party taken into court? I have no money to hire a lawyer. 2. Is there any place in Chicago where I could go for advice free? A. B.

1. You could have judgment entered on the note by having it placed in the hands of an attorney.
2. The legal aid bureau of the United Charities assists persons who are unable to employ an attorney.

EXPATRIATION.

GENOA, Italy, June 20.—[Friend of the People.]—I am an American citizen, born in Chicago July 19, 1916. I have been living in Italy since June 17, 1930, with my parents, who are naturalized American citizens. Does my American citizenship expire after a number of years? L. P.

No, the inquirer does not lose his American citizenship by mere residence abroad. Section 2 of the act of March 2, 1907, provides as follows: "That any American citizen shall be deemed to have expatriated himself when he has been naturalized in any foreign state in conformity with its laws, or when he has taken an oath of allegiance to any foreign state." FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

Studies of hundreds of Eskimo bodies have shown that a large number of the Eskimo people have an extra spinal vertebra. Most of us have twelve thoracic vertebra—one for each rib—but the Eskimos showed thirteen. This is also true of various oriental races, like the Chinese, and probably indicates a close relationship between these people and the Eskimos.

FROM A PUZZLED DOCTOR.

Chicago, July 5.—As a medical man and a taxpayer to the extent of $500 or $600 a year, it is hard for me to reconcile the facts of a case of which I have knowledge.

A man regularly employed at a good salary was injured by an automobile. The automobile owner agreed to reimburse him for all damages and expenses. His injury is of a nature requiring a couple of weeks in bed for recovery. Representatives of his union are prevailing on him to go to the County hospital, and quite definitly, if they took him there, he would be cared for.

It seems much like training the horse to go without oats. By the time everything is free for everybody we will all starve. M. D.

MASSAGE PARLORS.

Chicago, July 1.—We wish to offer our word of praise for the straightforward exposé you made of the undesirable element in the field of massage. Your splendid work should do much toward correcting this situation and increasing the public confidence in the many masseuses and masseurs who are well trained in their work and who perform a legitimate and worth while service to the community.

Almost every field of endeavor, every professional group, has an undesirable element to contend with. Your coöperation in taking a militant stand against the racketeers in the field of massage will long be remembered by all who look to massage as a valuable health building method. OTTO J. TUREK.
Administrative Officer, the National College of Massage and Physio-Therapy.

Niles Center, Ill., July 1.—Maybe I'm wrong, but does a newspaper as well established as THE TRIBUNE have to stoop so low into the gutter in order to maintain its circulation that it is required to print such articles as the one depicting the experience of their representative touring the massage parlors?

E. D. ROSE.

ROOTING FOR A LIVING.

Chicago, July 1.—Yes, Japan requires her people to root for a living instead of feeding them at the government trough. But did you know that one long, lean, hungry, rooting razorback hog can whip a dozen fat, lazy, trough fed thoroughbreds?

Why didn't you tell what all could be bought in Japan for that 20 cent daily wage? HOBO.

FOR CLEAN BEACHES.

Chicago, July 5.—This year I am pleading again with THE TRIBUNE to remind our city administration that our public beaches, especially the smaller ones, are not fit for swine. They are all littered up with all sorts of refuse and papers. If the city is unable to hire men to clean the beaches, then why not put some of the men who are on relief to do that kind of work? JOHN F. NISSON.

THE ROCKPORT CELEBRATION.

Sheboygan, Wis., July 5.—Mr. Philip Kinsley's story in today's TRIBUNE of the Rockport, Ind., celebration of Independence day is so artistically written that one senses the very atmosphere of the locality, its historical and human background. One sees, hears, and even smells the scene.

WILLIAM F. ZIERATH, M. D.

THE SCHOOLBOY PATROL.

Chicago, July 2.—Several facts in connection with your article of July 1 on the schoolboy patrol and the IERC crossing guards are at variance with the facts. The article says that the schoolboy patrol was founded July 1, 1905, and that Mr. Royal N. Allen, a charter member of the Chicago Motor club, conceived the idea.

The facts are that the schoolboy patrol was formed by the Chicago Motor club in 1920. Formerly a group known as the junior safety police had been organized by the then chief of police of Chicago, Charles Fitzmorris. This organization, however, did not prove effective, and the president of the Chicago Motor club, Mr. Charles M. Hayes, visited the chief of police and obtained his consent to rejuvenate and rename the patrol, calling it the schoolboy safety patrol. The club furnished belts and badges for this organization and has continued to do so ever since. Following this the Chicago Motor club developed the idea and was instrumental in having patrols organized throughout the country until at present it numbers approximately 250,000 in the United States.

The IERC patrol also was organized at the instance of the Chicago Motor club and the first units were put to work after being instructed by the club's safety department and furnished belts by the organization. J. J. CAVANAGH,
General Manager, Chicago Motor club.

BEES, BIRDS, AND POLICEMEN.

Chicago, July 5.—I have read in this morning's TRIBUNE about a certain swarm of bees driving a family away from their home in River Forest and it being necessary to call in the police department and the department calling in four beemen to save the situation. They are proceeding in the proper manner.

On the other hand, some time ago a certain woodpecker was disturbing the slumbers of a certain family—much newspaper publicity was given to the incident—and the police were called in to kill that bird. Why did they not call in some ornithologist, who would have solved the problem in a few minutes?

My point is that the police department should have some men who know birds. I mean ornithologists, who could come in to such situations as the woodpecker case and save the bird.

If they do not know where they can be found they can write to me and I will tell them.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN ROOT, D. D.,

CRADLE PHONE.

Chicago, June 29.—Two years or so ago, after much high pressure salesmanship, we changed our nickel phone to a measured service, though we disliked putting a telephone collector out of work. Also to help another employé of the telephone company we bought a cradle phone.

Now I want my phone changed back to a nickel phone and the clerk tells me I cannot have my "French" phone, which I have been paying on for two or more years. She gives the lame excuse that a "French" phone will not work correctly with a nickel phone.

Is there anything I can do about it?

THRONGS OPEN 76TH METHODIST CAMP MEETING

Historic Site to Become "Summer Capital."

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist Episcopal area of Chicago formally opened the 76th annual camp meeting at Des Plaines yesterday and announced plans for the development of the historic meeting place which will make it the summer capital of Methodist activities.

Veterans of the assembly said they could not recall in past years any crowd larger than that which heard Bishop Waldorf. It filled the big tabernacle and overflowed into the Norwegian-Danish hall. The bishop outlined the new program which will center in a summer school or institute during July and August of each year with studies in at least 18 departments of church work.

Plan Administrative Group.

An administrative committee of the Chicago Methodist area, Bishop Waldorf said, would develop a Des Plaines system which would in turn function in each local church. The departments listed by the bishop were named under the following general headings: Pastoral, women's missionary societies, Boy and Girl Scouts, men's brotherhood, music, evangelism, Sunday school leadership, world service, peace, Ladies' Aid leadership, Epworth league, Campfire Girls, women's association, temperance, and general education.

Bishop Waldorf also announced that the program involves at least one fall or winter assembly of Chicago Methodism, possibly in the Chicago Stadium.

Assured Additional Aid.

A first step toward the development pointed out was the present summer school of Illinois Wesleyan university, which is being held at Des Plaines, but Bishop Waldorf stated that he has also been assured additional aid from Northwestern university and the Methodist board of education for the future assemblies.

Dr. F. C. Eiselen, head of the Methodist board of education, 74 Rush street, and Dr. James A. James of Northwestern university spoke in commendation of the Des Plaines summer school plan. Yesterday's guest preacher at morning and night services was Bishop H. Lester Smith of Cincinnati. Under the title of "Life's Pilgrimage," he declared the great achievements made in some human institutions tend to prove that mankind's true destiny can be reached.

MONEY SOUGHT TO BURY PIONEER CHICAGO WOMAN

A potter's field grave awaits an early woman resident of Chicago, the last of her family, unless sufficient remaining friends appear to bear the burial costs. She is Miss H. Adelle Kitteredge, 78 years old, who died Saturday at the County hospital.

Miss Kitteredge came to Chicago in 1862 with her parents and her twin sister, Estelle, from Lockport, N. Y. Her father, Hiram C., owned a hay and grain business here. The other three members of the family died before 1880 and Miss Kitteredge set up in business as a "scientist of thought." According to Mrs. Elizabeth Rohde, 2000 Howe street, with whom Miss Kitteredge had been living recently, the elderly woman had outlived all of her friends and connections and was taken in by Mrs. Rohde when death broke up a family with whom she had lived for 22 years.

The body will be kept at the county morgue until Wednesday, when, if no funds are available for private burial, it will be sent to potter's field. Mrs. Rohde said the others of the family were buried in Rosehill cemetery.

He later was with Sprague, Warner & Co. and the Chicago Preserving works until 1884, when he formed his own concern, the B. A. Railton company, now located at 363-405 West Erie street.

Surviving are three children, John A., Mrs. Walter Wholihan, and Mrs. Josephine R. Walther. His wife died in 1922. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 9:30 a. m. at St. Jarlath church, with burial in Calvary cemetery.

Mr. Porter was born in Boston, Mass, Oct. 7, 1855, and came to Chicago in 1875. He entered the employ of Field, Leiter & Co., and later, when the company became Marshall Field, Mr. Porter was made a member of the firm, remaining with the company for 45 years.

Mr. Porter was a member of the Union League and South Shore Country clubs. News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Three radio versions of the all star baseball game at Cleveland this afternoon are to be broadcast. W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system will carry Bob Elson's description of the third annual classic between picked players of the National and American leagues. Elson will be assisted by Ellis Vander Pyl, Cleveland sports broadcaster. The W-G-N—MBS broadcast is to begin at 1 o'clock, a half hour in advance of the start of the game.

France Laux, sports broadcaster for KMOX, St. Louis, who has worked on several world series, and Jack Graney, baseball announcer for WHK, Cleveland, and a former Cleveland Indian player, will handle the Columbia account of the game, which will be aired over WBBM locally.

Graham McNamee and Tom Manning, Cleveland sportscaster, will broadcast for NBC, which will have WMAQ and WCFL as local outlets.

Semi-final auditions for two soloists from Chicagoland to sing with Eddy Duchin and his Fire Chief orchestra tomorrow night will be held at local NBC studios tonight. More than 3,000 young singers have applied for a hearing, and more than 950 have been auditioned the past week. Tonight 65 will go into the semi-finals. About a dozen will be selected from which the final choice will be made tomorrow afternoon. One man and one girl will be selected. They will get $100 each and a chance to compete in September in the national finals for a prize of $1,000.

This was bound to happen: Radio is to have a program titled "G Men." Dramatizing actual cases from the files of the federal bureau of investigation of the United States department of justice, "G Men" will be presented every Saturday evening at 8 o'clock beginning July 20 over an NBC network under the sponsorship of Chevrolet. And Phillips Lord, radio's "Seth Parker" and round the world sailor, is to write all of the scripts. Lord is in Washington now working on the adaptations of cases which J. Edgar Hoover, director of the department of investigation, will check and approve before they are released for radio use.

Last year they were associated in making the picture "King Kelly of the U. S. A." in which Robertson had the leading rôle and for which Sanders wrote the music. Robertson has been the headliner of the CBS Broadway Varieties program. Bob Elson will fly back from Cleveland tonight in order to be on hand as master of ceremonies.

The Crusaders' broadcasts over WIND and the Mutual network are to be heard at a new hour—7:45 to 8 p. m., effective tonight. Commander Fred G. Clark will speak on "Sound and Unsound Political Officials" on the broadcast this evening.

Richardsons Give Party for Son and Bride

Former Elizabeth Chew to Be Introduced.

BY JUDITH CASS.

QUITE the gayest event on today's calendar is the cocktail party Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Richardson are giving to introduce their new daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Donald Richardson II., the former Elizabeth Chew, to their Chicago friends. It was just a week ago this afternoon that the young Richardsons were married in Scarsdale, N. Y., where Mrs. Richardson's family, the John Aldrich Chews, live.

The party is to be in the late afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Spencer, at 1512 North Dearborn parkway. Mrs. Spencer, who was Bluford Richardson, and Mr. Spencer will receive with the John Richardsons and the senior Mr. and Mrs. Richardson. And so will the Richardsons' other daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Webb Crawford. After the cocktail party this evening Mr. and Mrs. Crawford are entertaining at dinner at their home at 1510 North Dearborn parkway for their brother and his bride.

Young Richardsons Going to Denver.

The wedding and all of its attendant festivity has been something of an extended house party for the Richardson family. The festivity started before the wedding when most of the family gathered at their lovely country place in Gaylord, Va.

Young Mr. Richardson and his bride have spent the last week at Narragansett. They arrived in Chicago late yesterday, and during their brief stay here will be at Mr. Richardson's parents' apartment at 1245 Astor street. From here they are going to Denver, where they plan to settle, since Mr. Richardson is engaged in business in the Colorado city.

The Crawfords arrived at home from the east on Saturday, and Mr. and Mrs. Spencer and the senior Mr. and Mrs. Richardson are coming today just in time for this afternoon's party.

Another bride and bridegroom, who have been away from Chicago ever since their marriage last Oct. 13, are returning in about ten days. They are Mr. and Mrs. Sidney G. Haskins. Before her marriage Mrs. Haskins was Dorothy North, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William S. North.

Sail Wednesday from England.

Mr. and Mrs. Haskins went to England on their wedding trip and have been living in Essex for the last nine months. Mr. Haskins' home is London. He is connected with the British government in educational work.

They are sailing for this country Wednesday and will come directly to Chicago to spend several weeks on Mrs. Haskins' family farm out at Deerfield. Besides traveling and writing, the raising of prize sheep on this farm for a long time has been one of her favorite hobbies.

From here, about Aug. 15, they will go down to Albuquerque to visit Mrs. Haskins' sister, Miss Helen North, and then, at the end of about two and a half months, they will return to England to settle permanently. They expect to buy a house, probably in Essex. Miss Robin Dienst of Geneva left Saturday for a visit with Miss North in Albuquerque. Miss Dienst will be back here just before Mr. and Mrs. Haskins leave for the southwest.

Announce Debutante Party for Christmas Time.

One of the nicest debutante parties during the Christmas holidays next winter will be a supper-dance at which Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ranney and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hutchins will present their young daughters to society. The party is to be the evening of Dec. 27 in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel.

The Ranneys' youngest daughter, Cornelia, will be here with her family in Lake Forest most of the summer. She was graduated in June from Dobbs Ferry. Miss Barbara Hutchins, who studied abroad last winter, has gone with her family to spend the summer at Camden, Me.

The Ranneys' older daughter, Dorothy, and her husband, Gaylord Donnelley, are back in Chicago from a wedding trip to Honolulu. They will occupy the Ranney apartment most of the summer, with occasional week-ends in Lake Forest.

Anything that can be sold in a rummage sale will be the price of admission at the door of Mrs. D. Mark Cummings' Lake Forest house Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Cummins is having a tea and card party for the friends of the White Elephant Rummage shop and she has asked them to bring something to help stock the shop's shelves for a sale. The invitations to the party have been issued in the form of a verse from the pen of Mrs. Samuel T. Chase.

Schoolmate to Visit Miss Margot Reid.

Miss Margot Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Reid, is anticipating the arrival of a schoolmate, Miss Frances McTheeters, this week from St. Louis. In about ten days another schoolmate, Miss Helen Blanchard, who visited the Reids early in the summer and now is in Milwaukee, will return for a week with the Reids on her way home to the east. Jean, the youngest daughter of the Reids, is spending the summer at camp in Michigan, and the oldest daughter, Mrs. Ralph Chatillon, with her husband, is taking her vacation in bits. Last week-end Mr.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

SOME DAY some one—probably Tom Tallmadge—should write a book about the old houses of Chicago, the princely piles erected by an earlier generation after their owners' romantic fancies. There are innumerable old houses in the town whose history I should like to know, many of them now restaurants and rooming houses and ateliers of various kinds, such as the old Winston mansion on Pearson street, and the Winterbothams' old Victorian house, and the Chandler place on Rush street, all three of which now house restaurants. As a matter of fact, Mr. Tallmadge already has given the matter some thought, and is starting to collect photographs of Chicago's fine old houses.

Old houses—Query.

THERE are two romantic looking places, widely different in type, that stand side by side in the 1200 block on Lake Shore drive I'd like to know about. One is a Venetian Gothic pile with balconies and stone traceries about the windows—a kind of Desdemona house—the other a dark medieval pile, perhaps an example of Romanesque architecture, with a solid looking turret running from the ground floor to the roof. Why did their original owners cherish these transplanted types of architecture? What romantic fancy led to their erection? It is generally said that the turreted Potter Palmer mansion just north of these houses was copied from a Scottish castle Mr. Palmer had admired on his travels. The old Marshall Field house on Prairie avenue, with its mansard roof, in the style of Napoleon III., should be included in the prospective book of old houses. And interesting, if too recent to be included in such a book, is the French chateau that is the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter and the Romanesque gray stone pile of the late Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick across the street from it.

MR. TALLMADGE tells me he already has some pictures of Aldine Square, that once delightful spot on the south side built as a complete unit with gardens in the center. Colored children now play where once prominent citizens used to wander beside heart shaped flower beds and across the Japanese bridges. The neo-classic houses will be pulled down when the south side housing project goes ahead.

A WORKER for the Illinois Emergency Relief wrote a letter to a resident of the south side who had applied for relief, and began the letter, "Dear Mr. Johnson." When she saw him in person to discuss his plight he produced the letter and, folding it so only the salutation showed, inquired:

"Did you mean that, lady?"

Villa Venice Has De Luxe Show of Cabaret Type

Riverside Casino Parades High Class Talent.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The record of Chicago's summer amusements is never complete until the story of the revue at Villa Venice has been entered into the minutes. For sixteen years Albert Bouché, veteran impresario of dance-and-dinner revelry, has been producing floor shows in his riverside casino on the Milwaukee avenue highway near Wheeling with distinction and cosmopolitan flair. He has been the advance guard of the theater-restaurant idea now so prevalent, a Ziegfeld of the de luxe cabarets.

If the six acres of enchanted groves and romantic gardens that form Bouché's domain were on any of the European tourist routes they would have been world famous long ago. Baedeker would have given them three stars in his guide books; Burton Holmes would have depicted them in alomts every travelogue. Bouché, himself a connoisseur of open air cafés, says that his gardens are without a rival anywhere on the map.

The show that he has arranged for this summer runs true to type. The performance, given three times every night, is rich with exotic dancing and singing, and is also extremely free, without being flagrant, in its dealings with the nude female figure. The ten tall show girls perform several undraped parades with grace and tact, and as sculptural models they reward observation. They are matched with another group of smaller and more spirited girls who wear ample costumes as they dance, and are charming performers. Bouché never surfeits his patrons with nudism.

The program contains two featured dancers of decided talent—Rosita Ortega, a comely, svelte young Spaniard, and Dolly Arden, a pretty English girl, both new in this region. Señorita Ortega is expert in the familiar modes of Spanish dancing, and Miss Arden, who practices the "control" or acrobatic style, has several tricks that were new to me. Both of these dancers have the "class" that is associated with Broadway revues.

Among the other principals are Toya Tasabi, a Japanese prima donna with a soprano voice that approaches opera standards; the Bernard Brothers and the Duval Sisters, French comic dancers with diverting pantomimic pranks; Donola and Duano, clever ballroom dancers in a rapid Parisian manner; Countess Alibasi, a modernistic dancer; Tony Cortez, a Cuban "blues" singer, and Leon La Verne, a subdued female impersonator. The costuming is gay in color and clever in design.

Mary Pickford, Chaplin to Direct Three Films

Hollywood, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—Charles Chaplin will direct one motion picture in which he will not appear, and Mary Pickford will direct two in the coming production season. Chaplin is completing his first starring picture in four years. He does not speak in the film, which is a "dramatic comedy" based on mass production in an immense factory. The picture he will direct will star Paulette Goddard. Miss Pickford will enter her career as a producer-director under United Artists. She will not take a rôle.

Park Concerts Win Acclaim of Music Lovers

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The week-end of concerts from the band shell in Grant park produced two highly attractive programs and two audiences that completely filled the liberal seating space and overflowed into rows of standees outside. The first, on Saturday night, was given by the Chicago Grand Opera orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, and with Eleanor La Mance, contralto of the Chicago Grand Opera company, as soloist. The second, last night, was by the Board of Trade Post American Legion band, directed by Col. Armin F. Hand, and with Henry Thompson, tenor; Richard Stross, cornetist, and an unnamed drummer as soloists.

It is no longer necessary for this department to advise people to attend these concerts. When there is an attendance of between 15,000 and 20,000 at a single performance, it is a sign that plently of persons have heard about them and have given the project their complete approval. At the same time there is a continuing reason for voting that the concerts are well worth hearing.

Mr. Weber, conductor of both the Chicago Grand Opera and THE TRIBUNE's radio station, W-G-N, is an alert and experienced director, wise equally in the arts of conducting a symphonic movement or accompanying an operatic aria. He made a brilliant impression with two movements of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, with Thomas' "Mignon" overture, Chabrier's "Espana," and various other numbers on his program. Miss La Mance, accompanied by him and the orchestra, made an equal hit with the famous aria from "Samson and Delilah," and also with two songs later in the program. Well she might, for her voice is a deep, lovely contralto with both quality and power.

Col. Hand's band carries with it the insignia showing that it has three times been a winner in contests. This, too, is understandable when one listens to its tone, its exactness, its spirit, all the other things that go to make up good band playing. Incidentally, it has been decreed that all bands in this series shall consist of seventy-five players instead of the fifty or sixty first planned. As a result, this band had additional players in conventional uniform instead of the smart helmeted and booted costume of the regular players.

Col. Hand knows how to arrange a good band program and to direct it with a high degree of skill. There were operatic numbers, marches, and popular numbers that were good to hear. Of the soloists, Mr. Thompson sang "The Lost Chord" and then returned for two more numbers; the drummer displayed a rapid fire technic comparable only to that of Horowitz on the piano keyboard; Mr. Stross, also with an announced number and two encores on his record, not only made mellow tone out of everything he did on the cornet, but played the longest note and then the highest note these ears have ever heard from that instrument.

Max Bendix will direct his band tonight, with Marjorie Livingston as soloist. It is also promised that Ted Flo-Rito and his orchestra and soloists will appear during the intermission.

Dr. Smolen was graduated from the University of Chicago medical school in 1931 and is on the staffs of the Mount Sinai and Evangelical Deaconess hospitals.

Violet Is Used with White in New Contrasts

Velvet Hats in New Shades Are Cool Looking.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Discoveries in new color contrasts! If you are sick to your soul of the usual navy with white, scarlet with blue, and all the other obvious summertime get-togethers of dark and white, you'll be considerably cheered with somebody's new recipe for these last weeks of summer shopping and dressing.

It is—all shades of violet with cool white. It is especially effective with some exciting new velvet hats.

Velvet "tops" in these flattering shades are more than easy to wear and the usual objection to warmish looking fabric is completely forgotten after the first glance.

You'll find every kind of hat, every sort of brim, and some clever new tiny pill box affairs trimmed in front with a tuft of matching violet ostrich feather.

Angelic looking off-the-face models of celestial pale violet are ravishing creations for blondes as well as the red-heads. Some big floppy berets, the first of the renaissance models, come in pale as well as dark shades, royal purple and mauve, or the pinky violet tones.

Rich, gleaming velvets are used for these new arrivals, and they make picturesque accents for dull white crêpe suits for afternoon wear.

Soft chiffon or summer-thin velvet ascot scarfs can be found to match any shade of hat you choose. Some of the smartest of all white costumes have splashing big bows of velvet in violet or deep purple as a chest accent. So, if you are craving something different, get under one of these new purple toned velvet hats or use white with all shades and tones of violet to deep purple.

Velvet and Violet

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—The inside dope on character make-ups for movies would make your head whirl. We sit in a movie theater, see a "David Copperfield," perhaps, or a "Cavalcade," and we're inclined to think that people who look like that are picked up almost anywhere. You should just know all the grief, all the art, and all the effort that go into the creation of a character, at least from the makeup standpoint.

Here are just a few of the tricks of the trade: Undertaker's wax—that's honestly what it's called and what it is—lies about a character makeup room in huge quantities. Nothing like it, it seems, for creating the illusion of big, bad, bloodless raised scars. It's puttylike, and has no sheen.

Liquid rubber is another freakish thing found here and there. It can be used to bind or pull the skin. Get a round eyed gal, pull up the corners of her eyes, bind 'em down with liquid rubber and you've got an oriental beauty.

Putty is an old standby. According to Jack Dawn of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who has created the character stars of some of the greatest hits of the last few years, putty is perfect for building up contour. But it's best used where there is no muscular action—the bridge of the nose, for instance.

Then there is silk. Jack Dawn has a pretty good idea of how the Chinese did those masks of lackered silk. He makes chins or noses, when need be, on the same principle, leaving the outer edges of the silk free of lacker. These outer edges, when held to the flesh with spirit gum, are transparent.

You can gather from this, which isn't the half of it, that there's never a dull moment in the character make-up department. In half an hour there are apt to be calls for a man with a Nebudchadnezzar beard, a robot, an old crone with a taste for drink, a dope fiend, or a Russian peasant with a beard to his knees. And they'll be produced.

The Ortega Feud

By Marie De Nervaud

SYNOPSIS.

Chris Jackson is sent by Bill Benton, new sheriff of Monterey county, in early Spanish California, to put an end to the Ortega-Alvado feud, which had resulted in many murders. Pietro Sanchez runs the general store of the Big Sur valley. While calling on him Chris encounters Guido Ortega, Ramon, his dare-devil son, and Ysabel, his beautiful, sad-eyed niece. He falls in love with Ysabel at first sight, and has a quarrel with Ramon and publicly spanks him. Chris outfits himself for a supposed lion hunting trip. He receives a note from Ysabel, hinting of a mysterious danger, begging his aid, and asking him to meet her in a fortnight. Chris camps in a canyon on the northern boundary of the Alvado ranch. He is advised by Rocky, an old Indian hunter, to leave the country. Next day Chris meets Francesca Alvado, flirtatious Spanish beauty. Chris tells her of his encounter with Ramon Ortega. It gains him entrée to the Alvado ranch. Chris is invited to a rodeo to be held there in a week. During the rodeo the warring families hold a traditional three day truce. Ysabel Ortega is facing a forced marriage with her cousin, Ramon. Her uncle refuses to tell her the secret of her birth, as he had promised to do on her 18th birthday. She appeals to Rocky, who promises to delay the priest until after the rodeo. Chris, masquerading as Rocky, comes to the Ortega ranch. He is captured. Ysabel rescues him. He escapes to the Alvado ranch. They become suspicious of him and he is forced to remain with them, an unwilling guest, under threat of his life. José Alvado, in love with Ysabel, ventures to the Ortega ranch and is held a hostage.

INSTALMENT XXV.

THE WHIP HAND.

As Ysabel Ortega stood at her window watching the glowing tints of dawn bring life to the leaden gray of the heaving ocean, she felt a tingling sense of anticipation.

At last the day had come when they would start off for the rodeo.

It was the custom always to arrive the night before it was scheduled to begin, so as not to miss any of the great event. Would Chris be there that first night? Or, perhaps, he wouldn't be there at all.

This last thought Ysabel resolutely put from her. Somehow she knew he would be there. Ever since that moonlit night when she had waved good-by to him and sped away to the house, leaving him gazing after her with that strange look that even now brought a catch to her throat, Ysabel had intuitively known that she would see Chris again.

That wild impulse she had followed to trust him the first time she saw him had not been a mistake, and the certainty that she would see him soon had buoyed her up through the ordeal of these last few days.

A sort of armed truce had reigned between her uncle and herself during this period. Ramon she had hardly seen, as she had pleaded a sick headache, and had had her meals in her room.

Her uncle had come once or twice to see her, but had made no mention of Father Ignatio or the impending wedding.

Ysabel was completely in the dark as to his plans in the face of Father Ignatio's failure to appear. It was more than she dared to hope to think that he had abandoned the idea of marrying her to Ramon, but the fact that he had not been able to bring it off before the rodeo made Ysabel's heart sing with hope.

"Rocky, Rocky! What a friend you have been to me!" she murmured softly, as she continued to gaze out at the lovely panorama of color constantly shifting and changing, "what could have happened without you!"

Turning with sudden energy, she began rapidly to dress. They would not be starting until after breakfast, so why not make a last little tour of her favorite spots before leaving them forever?

For one thing was certain in Ysabel's mind. She was not coming back. Somehow, at the rodeo, she must break loose from the strangle hold of the Ortegas. How, she did not know, but she had faith that a way would open up.

If her dreams about Chris should prove only dreams, and she was never to see him again, why, then, perhaps José Alvado would help her to escape. She knew from the way his eyes had followed her at the last rodeo that he would be ready to do anything she asked.

And if that failed, why then she would throw pride to the winds, and tell the whole story of the attempt at a forced marriage, and some one would come to her rescue.

With a lightness of heart such as she had not felt since she left the happy peace and serenity of the convent, Ysabel pulled a heavy shawl over her shoulders as a protection against the sharp early morning air, and ran out into the court.

Slipping out the front door she made her way to the canyon, scrambled down the steep descent to the creek, and then followed it to the tiny beach where it trickled out to the ocean.

Inhaling deep breaths of the salt laden air with its tang of pungent smelling seaweed, Ysabel gazed for the last time with a tightness of her throat at the familiar rocks.

All through her childhood what a refuge this spot had been! She'd known every pool at low tide, when she would investigate to her heart's content the weird sea life that inhabited them.

And at high tide, how many times she had escaped with wild excitement from the onslaught of the waves and the high columns of spray they tossed up!

Turning abruptly from the thoughts of the past, Ysabel climbed back up the slippery slope of the canyon, steadying herself by clutching the friendly pines and redwoods to help her in the ascent.

Once at the top she paused for a moment to get her breath and glanced over with a reminiscent excitement at the harness shed where she had last seen Chris.

A low moaning sound caught her ear, but after a startled movement she dismissed it as pure imagination. Just because she had once found Chris there, it didn't follow that every time the wind moaned through the canyon trees she would find him there again!

Smiling at her fancy, Ysabel walked over to the wall of the hacienda and was about to follow the path around to the piazza when her attention was caught by the voices of Ramon and her uncle raised in angry altercation, coming from the window of her uncle's room.

Pressing up against the wall, Ysabel deliberately strained her ears to listen, and the fresh color that the morning exercise had brought to her cheeks drained away as she caught the tenor of the argument.

"I tell you, you are a fool to let her go to the rodeo!" It was Ramon's voice that proclaimed this in a Spanish no longer liquid, but shrill and harsh in its insistence.

"Leave it to me!" Señor Ortega's voice was lower but no less insistent, and with the stubborn note that Ysabel knew so well. "I am not going to have it said that I was afraid to bring her! It is unfortunate, of course, that Father Ignatio failed to arrive. I cannot imagine what kept him. But we shall soon know; I will send a message to him as soon as we arrive at the Alvado ranch."

"Yes; but what will Ysabel be doing in the meantime? I do not trust this docility you describe!"

"Leave it to me," his father reiterated. "The only fool there who would be rash enough to listen to her will hardly be in a position to do so." Ysabel drew a quick breath as she speculated wildly as to the meaning of these words. Could her uncle know about Chris? But no, that was impossible! He had no idea that she had ever seen him, except in that one first encounter at the store in the Big Sur.

He surely would not think of José helping her. Unless he had noticed that José had seemed taken with her, and—— She broke off in her speculations, and listened intently for Ramon's answer.

He gave a short laugh as he agreed. "Hardly; that episode will be a big help all around. No; I am not referring to that when I say it will be folly to take her. I am afraid she may break out and escape to Monterey; or refuse to come back, and make a scene. After all, she is of age now, you cannot force her to come, if she publicly refuses. And once out of your hands she is out of your power."

Ysabel's heart beat suffocatingly as she waited in agonized suspense for her uncle's answer to this argument. Everything hung on his next words.

There was a pause of several minutes while he seemed to ponder it. "You overestimate her spirit." Ysabel felt dizzy with the relief that these words brought to her. "She will not try to escape alone, and no one there will risk my displeasure for what will seem the hysterical nervousness of an overwrought girl. I will pave the way for any outburst she may make. Even if there is a risk I would rather take it than to have the Alvados mock me for leaving her behind."

Ysabel leaned weakly against the wall for a moment as she waited to get the strength to creep away unobserved. She caught Ramon's scornful last words. "You have the whip hand over them, anyway, after last night's catch," as she picked up her skirts and ran swiftly along the shadow of the wall and gained the front door.

Afraid to cross the court for fear they might see her, she went into the dining sala and through to the kitchen, where she asked Maria for some hot water to take to her room.

Grumbling at the interruption, Maria gave her a pitcher of steaming water and watched her as she went out the side door and carried it along the arcade to her room.

Extras Adorn Film Feast, but Woe to Eaters!

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., July 7.—[Special.]—The bane of the studio prop man is the "eating extra." Besides keeping tabs on everything else, the prop man is required to be the cook and maitre de hotel when a dinner or banquet scene is needed. If it's a small dinner the prop man cooks it. If it's a big banquet he hires a caterer, but the prop man is responsible for the results just the same.

Supposing, for instance, it's a scene with thirty guests. The thirty have to rehearse the business of sitting down, unfolding napkins, toying with forks, time and again before they actually shoot. Then they may or may not have to be filmed in the process of eating. Chances are the scene will have to be re-shot several times and the poor prop man has to have fresh table napery, clean cutlery and plates always ready.

It is during such rehersals and early "takes" that the baneful "eating extra" does his nasty work. The eating extra is that lowly actor—male or female—who takes a seat at the table and actually samples the food. This is an unpardonable offense from the prop man's point of view. It's against studio ethics. It means the "set up" at each place where the food has been touched must be replaced. All this entails delay, expense, extra work for the director and results in loud abuse heaped on the prop man. Of course it's only human for an extra to be tempted by a ripe red strawberry, an olive, a cracker, or a peck at some savory looking dish.

Limy Plews of Warner studio, one of Hollywood's better known prop boys, says: "There's always one eater on every big set. I have most of them spotted. I warn them ahead of time and watch them like a hawk, but you can't keep an extra from stealing a strawberry."

Plews cooked up a new scheme for a dinner party scene in "The Irish in Us." He filled a spray gun with clean water and went about before the scene was to be shot spraying the viands with what seemed to be a misty cloud of insect poison. It wasn't poison at all, but only the principals in the picture who had to eat some of the food later knew that. They were told the drops on the edibles were just clean water.

"Pinkie" Weiss, another Warner prop boy, has a different system. His specialty is putting dabs of whipped cream on any food that will fit with whipped cream. The dabs of cream for the food that is to be eaten by principals is real whipped cream. The "whipped cream" on the plates for the extras is shaving cream. "No one ever eats shaving cream twice," Weiss says.

Joe E. Brown became an eater of peeled nuts during scenes for "A Midsummer Night's Dream," but Hugh Herbert helped the prop man cure Brown. He slipped a clove of garlic into the nuts and Brown had it bitten and chewed before he got wise.

Jane Withers Is Miscast in Movie 'Ginger'

"GINGER."

Produced by Fox.
Directed by Lewis Seiler.
Presented at the Roosevelt theater.
The Cast.

Ginger.....Jane Withers
Rexford Whittington.....O. P. Heggie
Hamilton Parker.....Jackie Searl
Mrs. Parker.....Katherine Alexander
Daniel Parker.....Walter King

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

In "Bright Eyes" little Jane Withers was quite as good in her way as Shirley Temple was in hers. In "Ginger" she is the victim of miscasting.

As an imp of Satan nobody can outshine her and it is as such that she should have been starred, since the producing company felt that starred she should be.

But no! They've handed her a rôle in which, though a rough little diamond, she bids constantly for sympathy. While the child is clever, you realize that she is an actress, which is the one thing that Shirley Temple never seems to be. And so you find yourself making comparisons that aren't fair to Jane—for, given the sort of part she has a flair for, this youngster certainly does have what it takes.

No—they didn't do right by either Janie or Jackie Searl in this picture. And the grownups have pretty hard hoeing too.

I was awfully disappointed in the film. For I've been rooting for a movie co-starring these children—and lookit what it got me!

Caped Shoulder Is Flattering

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Here is a dress with a cape shoulder that is easy to make. The plain skirt is perfectly cut, allowing enough width at the bottom for easy walking, yet it does not destroy the slim, straight line effect. The V neck is finished with an outside facing. A rippling little jabot, button trimmed, and a tiny bow at the neck make all the trimming needed. Any of the cottons will make up well.

The pattern, No. 3409, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of 2 inch wide ribbon for the bow.

"Catering to Bridge Appetites," a booklet of menus and recipes for bridge refreshments, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

This summer's oranges, although small in size, aren't risking a chance of losing all their popularity to the seasonal fruits. There are a great many clever tricks tucked under golden rinds, and with them our winter standby crashes the hot weather menus.

If you can be parted with your habitual morning glass of orange juice for blueberries and cream, for example, you find nothing in the world so refreshing on a warm afternoon as a glass of frosted orange juice. It's just a tall glass almost full of freshly squeezed orange juice into which a scoop of vanilla ice cream has been flipped, but it has marvelous powers of soothing a spirit in distress.

Or you may vote for chilly, spiced orangeade. It's almost as easy to make, for it's simply orange juice given extra appeal with a few tablespoons of spiced sugar sirup. This sirup, incidentally, may be made up in quantities and bottled for use as needed. We make it this way: Combine one cup sugar, one-half teaspoon cloves, one-half teaspoon ground ginger, and a cup and a third of boiling water. Cool this and bottle it immediately. It's just as good for many other cooling fruit beverages as well as the orangeade.

For health addicts we'd recommend orange buttermilk. Orange juice and buttermilk, half and half, chilled and sweetened to taste, make this long tall one.

Then, when there comes a day too hot for hot meat of any kind and you happen at the same time to have a little cold roast left over, oranges can help turn it into a gay salad. Almost any meat will do—lamb, veal, beef, or cold leftover fowl. Try it with two cups of diced cold meat and a like amount of chilled orange sections. For best results the meat first should be marinated. This marinade is to be recommended: Six tablespoons lemon juice, three tablespoons salad oil, one teaspoon salt, and a dash of pepper.

Then there's the perennial favorite of iced orange soup. At the beginning of a warm weather luncheon or dinner this seems to us to be unexcelled as a variant of the more usual fruit cocktail. To make it take

2 tablespoons granulated gelatin
4 tablespoons cold water
3 cups orange juice
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup orange sections, diced
Mint

Soak the gelatin in cold water. Heat one cup of the orange juice over hot water and add to the gelatin mixture and sugar. When dissolved, cool and add the rest of the orange juice and the lemon juice. Chill, and when partly firm add the cup of orange pieces. Serve cold as a first course, garnished with a sprig of mint and additional orange slices if desired.

A fruited sherbet offers a fine way to combine orange juice with other fruits. Here's a simple recipe: Combine a fourth cup of orange juice, a like amount of lemon juice, two cups of sugar, a quart of milk, and a cup of any crushed fresh fruit, and freeze quickly in a tray of the mechanical refrigerator. If the mixture curdles, and it's likely to, it will freeze smooth again.

Sally to Take 100 Guests to See Cubs Play

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Well, boys and girls, I have 100 tickets for a baseball game—wanta come?

On Thursday, July 18, the Chicago Cubs will play Philadelphia, and Mr. Wrigley has generously invited me to be his guest on that day and to bring with me 100 boys and girls.

You youngsters who are ardent Cub fans will be dying to come, I know, and I'm anxious to take the children who really love baseball and to whom this game will be a real treat. You'll have a chance to see some of your favorite Cub heroes. Gabby Hartnett, who's been picked to play in the All-Star game, you know, has always been a great favorite with the kids. I don't know just who is most popular with you youngsters—you might tell me that in your letters.

If you wish to be included in the party I want you to write to me and tell me. I'm going to try to select as my guests the youngsters who are really most anxious to see the game. Each child must write his or her own letter—you can't win if you have your mother or father do it for you, and you can't win invitations for other children. Your letter must include your name, address, and age, and it must reach me by next Thursday, July 11, in order to be judged. All letters will be read on that day, and the names of the winners will be printed in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

I'll tell you more about our party tomorrow, but right now I think you'd better sit down and write that letter, telling me who your favorite Cub player is and why you think you'd enjoy the game. Please don't get so excited that you forget those three important things—your name, address, and age! Send your note to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Watch for the mailman, you boys and girls who found your names in my column yesterday, he'll be coming along with a letter from me at almost any moment now! If he doesn't you'd better let me know, so I can see what happened, because each child is to receive a personal invitation.

If by any chance your address was printed incorrectly, telephone me immediately.

Modern Styles Still Demand a Svelte Figure

Contemporary Mode Will Not Accept Plumpness.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In a recent window display could be seen a forcible example of what we believe to be the femme beautiful. On ample, rounded figures of Greek origin were draped Hellenic types of chiffon frocks in modern designing. By contrasting these de Milo, heavy silhouettes with modern figures upon which frocks were enticingly draped, one realizes that what was ample for the Greeks is much too ample for our women.

It would be pretty hard, one remarked before the window display, to accept again the Hellenic mold of form as an ideal. Times change, of course, and opinions with them, influencing even women's figures, but one thing you can believe, and it is that it is a little too early yet to try to force the fulsome ideal on our generation.

Mae West, as you know, tried it, and for a while women flopped back into their upholstered chairs, finished off another round of chocolates, and sent up amens. But their comfort was short lived. As long as frocks are shown on the svelte models, and as long as one has to be content with less than the tres chic styles manufactured, obviously for not over 36 dress size, the voluminous woman's life is going to be one fight with her appetite. She's going to put up the fight herself. For nothing is harder to bear than to pick out just the style or dress one wants then to be told it doesn't come in her size. True? And don't we who have to keep up a constant silhouette battle know it?

There are some women, I must take occasion here to say, who are plump and whom I, for one, wouldn't have any other way. I think of one who is the smartest looking person in spite of her weight. She can afford fine clothes and excellent care and she has the neatest pair of legs and ankles you ever saw. She is a beaming sort of creature, the sort who confirms the claim that fat people are good natured. And everybody adores her.

In contrast to her, however, are just countless women who hate their fat and look their dislike for it, and others, again, whom superfluous weight turns slovenly, really. The two last named women are those appointed to keep up the war on the "extras."

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

THE HUDDLE.

Possibly a mite ashamed of being so unathletic, bridge has lifted a few expressions from the world of sport. Thus a man does not necessarily wear a football guard when he goes into a huddle. Instead, it is the current, slangy expression for what our forebears called "brown study."

Mr. South was a man who consistently went into huddles, and—what is more—remained there until pried loose by the force of public opinion. During the play of a typical hand, Mr. South paused from wrenching cards reluctantly from his hand, glanced up, looked around and asked:

"Where is the dummy?"

"Who is the dummy?"

This other story deals with a barnstorming expert, who was teaching the inhabitants of one-horse town after one-horse town the McGoof system of contract. At his last stand he had encountered the mystery of the vanishing cashier and the rubber check. Down to $1.78, he had arrived in the little town of Podunka, where, not a whit daunted by his temporary financial embarrassment, he had marched firmly up to the one hostelry that the community boasted.

"See here, my good man," he said to the proprietor, "I am a visiting authority on the subject of the ins and outs of supercontract. In view of the luster that such celebrities as I shed on your community, I assume that you have some bridal suite ready and waiting—the rate to be a mere pittance, only exacted for appearances' sake, rather than any profit that might accrue to you."

"Huh?" said the gentleman addressed.

The expert shook his head impatiently.

"Tempus fugit," he quoted. "Tell me, my good man, what are your lowest terms for bridge players?"

Wise Parents Check Camp Child Attends

Head Counsellor Endorses Following Standards.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Camp for the two months' season is something which all parents cannot afford for their children—or do not want to. Some choose August as the month in which they feel their children will benefit most from camp life. Others, choosing camps run so that stays of two weeks or even a week are possible, provide the children with a sojourn of this length, both for the sake of their health and the experience that this kind of living affords.

In order to insure a gain in both health and in pleasure, the camp should measure up to definite standards. These are not just the standards of a "fussy" parent, but were indorsed by a head counselor of one of the oldest and finest camps in this country.

First, I believe there should be a meeting with the director of the camp to find out just whether he seems the right person for you to trust your children to—as to personality, and also as to his ability to carry such responsibility.

Next, if possible talk with several parents who have sent children to this camp.

I should, myself, not want to send my child to a camp I had not seen. But many people do or have to, in which case they should make inquiries as to the following important things:

[a] How is the camp located? Is it in a sunshiny, high, well drained spot?

[b] Where does the food supply come from?

[c] Is the menu well balanced, with milk and fresh vegetables?

[d] Does the milk come from clean, tuberculin tested cows, and is it pasteurized? What can the camp show you to prove this?

[e] Water must be carefully looked into—not only drinking water but that used for bathing and swimming. There must be no possibility of contamination.

[g] Where do the children swim? What measures are provided to safeguard them during the progress of that sport? Are they watched for reaction to cold and the exertion?

[h] Is there a nurse in camp and a good doctor either with the organization or within close call?

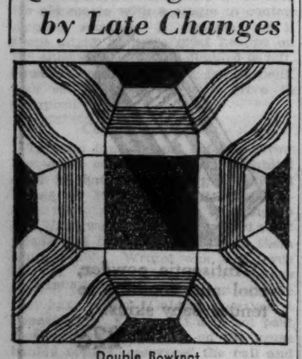
Charm of Oldtime Quilt Heightened by Late Changes



Double Bowknot.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Many years ago, when the "Double Bowknot" block was first pieced, the various patches were made of dainty printed ginghams and calicoes, which created charming coverlets. Joined block to block, the squares formed a new design. Present day preferences for a combination of print and plain materials and the alternate arrangement of pieced and plain blocks have done much to bring out the striking beauty of the individual block. The completed block measures 12 inches square.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

SOX SPLIT WITH INDIANS; CUBS WHIP PIRATES, 13-1

Rally Fails, Loses 2d Game, 7-6.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The dashing White Sox, brilliantly defensive behind Ted Lyons' pitching, smothered the Cleveland Indians, 2 to 0, yesterday in the first game of a double-header before 30,000. Then the third place south siders, anxious to add one more to their seven game winning streak, continued to dazzle in the second game, but they struck a snag in the eighth inning and were nosed out by 7 to 6. This marked the end of the Indians' losing string at eight games.

TONY PIET.

Lyons, in checking in with his ninth triumph of the season, encountered only one difficult situation. For seven innings the Indians couldn't even get a man to second base, but in the eighth a fly ball was permitted to fall for a double, thus endangering a lone run previously picked up against Oral Hildebrand. But the infield came to the rescue in the pinch when Tony Piet cut down the tying run at the plate and a moment later Lyons helped to make it safer for himself by figuring in a foray against Ralph Winegarner.

Old Sam Bogs Down.

The Sox kept the second game under control until old Sam Jones bogged down trying to keep himself in a 1 to 1 tie with Thornton [Lefty] Lee. Old Sam was on his way in the seventh with a count of 4 to 1 against him, but right after that the real show started.

Lee, weary, but permitted to linger because of the Cleveland manager's reluctance to send any of his help to the bull pen, started giving out passes on a wholesale basis in the home seventh. He walked four and in between these were a couple of hits. Then Lloyd Brown dashed in, but he wasn't ready and the Sox gracefully accepted another pass, this forcing in a run that put them in front, 5 to 4.

Trouble Dogs Phelps.

But the joy was short lived. With Carl Fischer gone because of a pinch hitter, Ray Phelps was given the job of keeping things in order. Trouble caught up with him after two were out in the eighth. The score was still tied, so John Whitehead was summoned, but he yielded a single with the bases filled and those two runs proved enough. The Sox got one of them back in their half off Walter Stewart, but finally were halted by Willis Hudlin, the fourth Indian pitcher.

FIRST GAME

Up to the time the Sox got started on their first run in the fifth inning they had touched Hildebrand for only one hit. Then, with one out in the fifth, Hildebrand made the mistake of walking Appling. Dykes struck out, but Appling atoned for this by stealing second. Sewell promptly saluted his old mates with a single to center, Appling scoring. It appeared as if there might be more grief heaped on the enemy when Lyons doubled to left, Sewell stopping at third, but Radcliff was set down on a long drive to Campbell.

Cut Off Tying Run.

The one time Lyons' defense threw him down came in the eighth inning after he had fanned Berger. Pytlak batted for Phillips and lifted an ordinary fly to right center. Washington and Haas wanted it, but changed their minds and the ball fell between them for a double. Wright was sent forth to bat for Hildebrand and Lyons fanned him. Then Piet put on the real hair raiser. Galatzer sneaked a bounder past Lyons. It also got past Appling, but Piet, back on the grass behind second, recovered the ball and whipped it to Sewell in time to nip Pytlak at the plate with the tying run.

More Fireworks.

Winegarner bumped into trouble as soon as he took over Hildebrand's job in the eighth. Sewell led off with a single over short. Lyons wanted to bunt but couldn't get a decent ball to poke at, so he finally got the count down to 3 and 2. Then he singled to right, Sewell taking third, whence he scored on Radcliff's fly to Campbell.

The Sox reserved a few more defensive thrills for the ninth. Appling speared a liner off Knickerbocker's bat. Piet made a leap to grab a drive dispatched by Vosmik. Next was a two Pittsburgh, Pa., July 7.—[Special.]—Darrell Blanton may be a sensation to the rest of the National league, but he's just a rookie right hander to the Cubs.

The Pittsburgh youngster made his second start against the Cubs this afternoon, and for the second time had his ears pinned back. By the time the Cubs had finished working over Blanton and three successors they had piled up 13 runs on 14 hits for a 13 to 1 triumph in the final game of the series.

The Cubs' bats enabled Bill Lee, who hadn't finished a game he started since June 19, to earn his eighth triumph of the season. Lee held the Pirates to seven hits, walked three, and but for Arky Vaughan's speed would have had a shutout. Only three Pirates passed first base.

Lindstrom Suffers Split Finger.

The victory may prove costly to the Cubs, for Fred Lindstrom, regular center fielder, was hit on the left hand by a pitched ball in the fourth inning. A finger was split and Lindstrom had to undergo an examination to determine if the finger was broken. Physicians said there was no fracture.

Bill Jurges led the Cub attack with a perfect day at bat. Two singles, two doubles, and a walk were Bill's contributions to the cause. He drove in four runs and scored three himself.

Lee helped his own cause with a single and a double and drove in three runs. Gabby Hartnett had two doubles before he retired in the seventh.

Hack Plays First Base.

Phil Cavarretta was ill and Stan Hack played first base in fine style and got a pair of singles. Bill Herman retired in the ninth, and Augie Galan went to second and Tuck Stainback to right.

The victory enabled the Cubs to move past the Pirates into third place in the league standings.

Vaughan's speed put the Pirates ahead in the second inning. The league's leading batsman drilled a liner to right center and stretched the hit into a double. Young lifted a fly to Klein, and Vaughan dashed to third just ahead of Chuck's good throw. He scored easily on Suhr's long liner.

The Cubs chased Blanton to the showers in the fourth when they scored four runs. After Hack fanned, L. Waner tried for a shoestring catch of Hartnett's liner which went for a double. Blanton's next pitch hit Lindstrom on the left hand and Demaree ran for Freddy, who went to the clubhouse for repairs.

Young robbed Klein of a single when he went back on the grass for a vicious grounder. English walked, filling the bases. Jurges singled to center, scoring Hartnett and Dem-

Coaching All-Stars Brings New Thrill, Ideas to Kizer

BY NOBLE KIZER.

Eighty thousand people, one of football's largest crowds, paid tribute to America's greatest collegiate sport last August at Soldiers' field. These enthusiastic thousands came to see the college headliners of the preceding three seasons meet the finest professional team in the National league, the Chicago Bears.

That throng massed in serried rows on all sides of the gridiron was an inspiration. The enveloping wall of humanity with its ever rising note of excitement caught up the emotions. Every player was keyed by the very presence of this crowd watching the first battle between college players from all sections of the country against other college men who now played professionally and formed one of the most powerful elevens in football history.

It's Serious Business.

We coaches, sitting along the sidelines, who had supervised the college boys' practice daily for two weeks, felt the same keen emotion that sent our players onto the field determined to win. No matter how long it's been since you've hung up your shoes, you still get the feeling you'd like to be in there yourself. I could tell from the way Jimmy Crowley and Dick Hanley were sliding up and down the players' bench that they had the same idea.

This was a game. It was not an exhibition. And moreover, we of the colleges, players and coaches, felt that the reputation of college football as compared to professional football was in our hands. More than any other factor, this college-professional rivalry accounted for our team spirit.

I know, and the others will agree, that I wanted to win as badly as I ever wanted victory when I played for Notre Dame.

What a Thrill!

You know how the game ended in a scoreless tie. Twice we threatened the Bears' goal line. On another occasion Bill Smith almost kicked a field goal. While we didn't score, we turned back two of the Bears' thrusts. Most important, from our point of view, the college boys outgained the professionals in yards. Sure, yardage gained and first downs don't score points, but it's a satisfaction to know you shoved the other fellows around.

And if you could have been in the dressing room afterward [a few thousand fans were] you would have thought that here was a bunch of fellows celebrating the end of a hard season and a national championship. Boys who had met each other only two weeks before were shouting congratulations, pounding each other on the back, and adding to the bedlam.

This noise may have been relief, for we had heard all during the days of practice at Northwestern university we would be fortunate if we held the Bears to four touchdowns. I felt mighty good myself when I remembered that those Bears hadn't scored a point.

Little Man, What Now?

Let's turn back this reel to the beginning. You may be interested in knowing how this group of 35 all-American football players was organized into a team which stopped the Bears.

I was on my way home from a coaching school at Texas Tech, Lubbock, Tex., when in Kansas City I bought a paper, which was my first notification I had been elected in the national coaches' poll to have charge of the college team. Until that morning I don't think I had actually realized what a job that position was to be. When my name was suggested as coach by Purdue friends and alumni I had been gratified. Later when the national vote had me up with the leaders I was flattered. Now when I learned I had been selected the responsibility of the assignment smothered my elation.

I had the job. What was I to do about it? Some of the players, who had been chosen on the All-American squad in the national vote, I knew. Two or three were from my own Purdue team of 1933. Others were from the Big Ten and Notre Dame. But the majority I did not know except as I had read of them in the newspapers.

It's a Big Order.

Fortunately, the fans gave me some splendid fellow coaches when they elected Jimmy Crowley and Dick Hanley. What would have been an impossible task individually became routine through their splendid coöperation plus the surprisingly active enthusiasms of the players. Then, too, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE consented to my proposal to bring Mal Elward of the Purdue staf to Evanston.

But before the two weeks' practice was over and our squad was ready to line up on Soldiers' field I revised many of my ideas. This wasn't to be a parade of stars. It was to be a game. The players and coaches had received a vote of confidence from the nation's football fans. We had to prove our right to this confidence.

[The second of these articles, in which Coach Kizer explains why he chose the Notre Dame system of offense for the All-American squad, will be printed tomorrow.]

FOOTBALL FANS VOTE HEAVILY ON ALL-STAR TEAM

First Day Returns Set Sport Poll Record.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Football fans of the nation stuffed the mail boxes yesterday, filing ballots on the All-Star college team which meets the Bears at Soldiers' field on Aug. 29. Late mail deliveries to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, sponsor of the game, and the 105 newspapers from coast to coast assisting in the selection of the All-Star eleven, brought the largest first day returns in the history of fan polls on sporting events.

Based on the first day's voting, early estimates of 2,000,000 participants in the contest to select the 1934 All-Americans will be realized before the poll is closed in two weeks. Trend of the balloting will not be known until contest clerks at THE TRIBUNE and the 105 affiliated newspapers have opportunity to tabulate the returns today. First returns will be published tomorrow.

Many Mail Votes Early.

Many fans, anxious to see their favorites in the second annual meeting between the best players in the college graduating classes and the strongest professional team, mailed their ballots before the poll opened yesterday. These votes will be counted today.

In many places voting booths were set up with football men to help fans make their selections. The Medinah club of Chicago opened a booth in the club's lobby, 506 North Michigan avenue, in support of Jack Beynon, University of Illinois quarter back from Rockford. Jimmy Evans, former Northwestern star, and Howie Abbott, an ex-Maroon, were placed in charge.

Among the first ballots received was one from Paddy Driscoll, one of Northwestern's all-time greats and rated by many the best all-around back ever to play in the National league. Driscoll, now head of the life savings corps of the Chicago parks district, described the poll and the All-Star game as outstanding events in football.

Here's Driscoll's Team.

His selection, based on years of experience and complete knowledge of the type of a team needed to beat the Bears, included:

Cotton Warburton, Southern California, quarter back.
Stan Kostka, Minnesota, full back.

"This team," said Driscoll, "has the size, the speed and specialties needed to combat the Bears' powerful and diversified attack and their stubborn defense. Man for man, it might not possess greater ability than the team which was selected by the fans last year, but I believe it would be a better rounded eleven and I would favor it against the All-Stars of 1934 if they were to meet."

You have other ideas about it? Well, here is your chance to compete with an expert. Your vote counts as much as Driscoll's. Write the names of your eleven men, one for each position, on a piece of paper and mail it to the All-Star Football Contest Editor, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

Assemble for Drill Aug. 10.

The twenty-two men, two for each position, receiving the largest number of votes in the nation-wide poll at the end of two weeks will be invited by THE TRIBUNE to assemble at Chicago for practice on Aug. 10.

Numerous ballots in the first day's voting contained ticket orders. Application for tickets received in this manner are likely to be delayed in reaching the ticket manager, depriving the applicant of first choice at tickets. All ticket orders should be sent saparately to the Football Ticket Manager, room 530, Tribune Tower, Chicago. Each applications should contain a money order. Prices of tickets are $1.10, $1.65, and $2.20.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CLEVELAND, O., July 7.—[Special.]—The largest crowd in baseball history will attend the third annual All-Star interleague game at Municipal stadium tomorrow. . . . It is reported that every state in the Union will be represented in the gathering of 88,000. . . . Fans from 46 states were in Comiskey park two years ago when the All-Star series had its birth. . . . In the short space of three summers the midyear interleague game has become the biggest attraction in baseball. . . . No world series game has been played before such a vast crowd as will fill Cleveland's lake front stadium tomorrow. . . . No other single game of the year develops so many endless arguments. . . .

More than 400 newspaper men are here to record every detail for America's sports reading public. . . . Millions will be listening to the radio reports by Bob Elson of W-G-N, Francis Laux and Jack Graney of the Columbia broadcasting system, Graham McNamee and Tom Manning of the National Broadcasting company. . . . There will be three notable absentees from the playing field: Babe Ruth, whose home run decided the outcome of the first All-Star game; Earl Averill, Cleveland outfielder, who lost his chance to participate for the third straight year when a firecracker exploded in his hands, and Lon Warneke, Cub pitcher, whose boss, Charley Grimm, forced him to turn down an invitation. . . . All three will be in the stands, however.

WILLIAM HARRIDGE. JOHN HEYDLER. FORD FRICK. K. M. LANDIS.

Cleveland already holds the record for baseball attendance. . . . A throng of 80,184 jammed the stadium for a game between the Indians and Athletics July 31, 1932. . . . Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland club, will be host to major league writers at a downtown hotel after the game. . . . Fair weather is promised for tomorrow, but in event of rain the game will be postponed until Tuesday. . . . If it rains Tuesday the contest will be canceled. . . . To protect itself against expense involved in making refunds the Cleveland baseball club has taken out a $12,000 insurance policy. . . . The top price for seats is $1.65. . . . Receipts will approximate $85,000. . . . Profits will go to the National Association of Professional Ball Players to help old time players no longer able to care for themselves. . . .

John Heydler, former president of the National league, whose approval of the writer's suggestion made possible the first All-Star game, is here, as is his successor in office, Ford Frick, who attended the first interleague game as an author. . . . The show doesn't seem complete, however, with President William Harridge of the American league missing. . . . He is perhaps the most enthusiastic supporter of the All-Star idea. . . . It was to Mr. Harridge that we first mentioned our dream of an All-Star game and he could have squelched it then and there, but, as you know, he didn't. . . . Harridge will listen to the game at a radio in his room at St. Francis hospital, Evanston. . . . His 15 year old son, Billy, is here, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Edwards. . . .

Among those observed in the dining room of the Cleveland hotel this noon were Commissioner and Mrs. K. M. Landis, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Shibe of the Athletics, Joe E. Brown, movie comedian; Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, who inquired about his old Florida neighbor, Frank Willard, TRIBUNE cartoonist; Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators; Louis Von Weise, president of the Browns; John O. Seys, vice president of the Cubs; Powel Crosley Jr., owner, and Larry MacPhail, business manager of the Reds; Tom Yawkey and Eddie Collins of the Red Sox; Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves; Patrick H. Joyce and Ed Fleming, Chicago sportsmen; Gery P. Nugent, president of the Phillies; Robert Quinn, general manager of the Dodgers; William Benswanger, owner of the Pirates; Leo J. Bondy, treasurer, and Joseph J. Tierney, business manager of the Giants, and Branch Rickey, vice president of the Cardinals. . . . Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox and Boots Weber and Charlie Drake of the Cubs will be here in the morning.

Only $1 will be charged against the game for rental. . . . Mayor Davis of Cleveland, who invited the leagues to play here this year, is scheduled to throw the first ball. . . . The site of next year's game has not been decided. . . . It will be the National league's turn to name the city. . . . A year ago it appeared that Boston would be awarded the 1936 contest, but the financial plight of the Braves has complicated the situation. . . . The busiest woman in town is Miss Dorothy Hummel, secretary to Will Harridge. . . . She and Edward Lehman have the responsibility of distributing the American league's allotment of tickets, most of which are located back of first base. . . .

Edward G. Barrow, secretary, is representing the Yankees. . . . President Jake Ruppert's rheumatism prevented him from making the trip. . . . There were reports that disposition of the St. Louis Browns would be discussed at the American league's annual summer meeting this noon, but it wasn't mentioned. . . . We still are trying to find some one who can tell us why Ted Lyons of the White Sox wasn't nominated for the American league's All-Star pitching staf. . . . Selection of the two squads ought to be turned back to the fans. . . . They know more about baseball anyway than most of the managers. . . .

COCHRANE PICKS HARDER TO FACE SCHUMACHER

Walker Substitutes for Mungo.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., July 7.—The record for attendance at a baseball game, 80,314, is certain to fall tomorrow at the third annual All-Star game, unless the weather man turns double-crosser. More than 88,000 are expected, 5,000 more than this morning's most optimistic estimates. Fair weather, rather hot, but normal for the season, is forecast.

MEL HARDER.

Baseball Comissioner K. M. Landis visited Cleveland's vast municipal stadium at noon today, paced off the wide open spaces in deep center field, went to his hotel and conferred with National and American league officials, then announced a field crowd would be permitted for the first time in the three year history of the great spectacle originated and sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in 1933. This will spring the capacity to more than 88,000 and demands have indicated every inch of available space will be occupied.

No Ground Rules.

The action of Commissioner Landis will not necessitate ground rules, such as always are placed in effect when there is an overflow on the field in regular league games. The commissioner gave his consent with the provision that none of the rope barriers is to be nearer than 450 feet from the home plate.

Manager Mickey Cochrane, of the Detroit Tigers, who will be in charge of the American league team, said tonight he would start Mel Harder, Cleveland Indian right hander. He will play the game as a regular championship contest, Cochrane announced, and will let Harder go as far as possible. Should Harder be as successful as he was in last year's game, when he came in as a relief hurler, Cochrane's statement would mean that he would pitch the entire nine innings.

Manager Frankie Frisch, of the St. Louis Cardinals, the National leaguers' manager, will not arrive until tomorrow morning, but he authorized league executives here tonight to announce Hal Schumacher, New York Giants star, as his starting pitcher. Schumacher has won ten straight.

Walker Replaces Mungo.

Frisch also announced Bill Walker, the Cardinals veteran left hander, had been approved as a substitute for Van Mungo, the Brooklyn speed baller, who suffered an injury to his pitching hand several days ago. Walker was named on the all-star squad when Mungo notified Frisch tonight he would be unable to play. His withdrawal leaves Brooklyn without a representative in the game.

Vernon [Lefty] Gomez, New York Yankee southpaw, who won the first All-Star game at Chicago and pitched the first three innings last year, was the first American leaguer into town. Gomez declared his willingness to do anything asked. Lefty Grove, Cochrane's former battery mate at Philadelphia, also will be available. Schoolboy Rowe, who pitched seven innings for Detroit yesterday after re-

SchmelingGets Close Verdict Over Uzcudun

BERLIN, July 7.—(AP)—Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight champion, gained a 12 round decision over Paulino Uzcudun of Spain today, but he disappointed 65,000 of his countrymen, who expected him to win more decisively than was the case.

Schmeling, who weighed 192½, found a tough, game adversary in the Basque, who took everything the German had to offer in the way of long range punching while wading in to register short, powerful body blows.

Uzcudun's Face Battered.

Uzcudun's face was badly battered at the end of the bout, but he had not been knocked down, and several times he had driven Schmeling into the ropes with jolting body blows. Uzcudun weighed 203.

Nazi cheers for the victor were faint as he left the ring.

Schmeling claimed to have been fouled in the sixth round, and said the low blow had sapped his strength to such an extent he was unable to give his usual power to punches in the later rounds.

Expects Draw for Uzcudun.

The decision was based on the counts of German judges. The Spaniard's manager said he had expected at least a draw because of Uzcudun's infighting.

Owners Raise Waiver Price in American League

Cleveland, O., July 7.—(AP)—American League club owners, at a special meeting today, decided to lift the waiver price from $4,000 to $7,500, effective at once, for player transfers within the league.

This puts the price on a level with the waiver figure for transfers from one major league to the other. It is designed to stimulate more player exchanges on the theory that a club will be more willing to part with a player desired by a rival team at the increased price.

The magnates also decided to get together with the National league on a system of life-time passes for old players. They propose to give a silver pass to retired players who spent 10 years in the big leagues, a gold pass to those in the majors 20 years or more, both bearing the autograph of the league presidents.

There was no discussion of the reputed plan to shift the St. Louis American league franchise elsewhere as an economic measure, but the club owners informally considered the idea of giving the all-star team selections back to the fans for 1936.

The teams which will meet here morrow in the annual all-star contest were selected by the rival league managers, but the magnates feel the fans should have some voice in picking the squads. Originally the squads were selected on the basis of a nation-wide vote. A compromise between the two systems probably will be worked out at the annual winter meetings of the big leagues.

FIRST CHAMPION IN 1934 ENTERS TRIBUNE SWIM

Harriet Vance, Peoria, to Seek Class C Title.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Harriet Vance, 100 yard swimming champion last year, who represented the Country club of Peoria, Ill., is the first of the ten 1934 Tribune champions to enter this year's competition. Miss Vance won the class B title last year for girls 13 and 14 years of age. Although she is only 14 years of age, she has entered the class C competition for girls 15, 16 years of age, since a champion can not compete in the same age class in which she won her title.

The entry was made by Al Klingel, swimming coach of the Country Club of Peoria. He is confident that his protégé can win another gold medal. The handicap of age may prevent this, however.

Way Cleared for Newcomers.

The list of 1934 champions comprises excellent swimmers. The rule against champions competing again clears the way for newcomers and it is quite likely that the ten champions who will be crowned July 28 in the finals at the Lincoln park lagoon, will be unknown swimmers, or, at least, will not have won any major titles. No one is barred from THE TRIBUNE swimming races, but they were instituted to give every boy and girl an opportunity to prove his ability to swim in competition and to earn a merit badge. All who report for the races will receive these buttons.

Each winner in the preliminaries, regardless of whether he qualifies for the finals, will be awarded a badge for that achievement, and the 160 qualifiers from the four sectional meets will get gold medals.

Entries for the first two of these sectionals close at midnight tomorrow night. Letters must bear a postmark prior to that time to be accepted. This dead line applies to the trials Saturday afternoon at Sherman park, 52d street and Racine avenue, and on Sunday afternoon at California park, 3901 North California avenue.

Entries close July 15 for the last two sectionals at Cermak pool and Whealan pool.

Beaches to Enter Teams.

In addition to the 160 qualifiers from the sectionals, teams of ten swimmers each will be admitted to the finals from the Chicago beaches operated by the Chicago park district. These teams will be chosen by the beach captains. They will be the result of competition directed by them. Others who are not named on the beach teams may win a place in the finals by entering the sectionals. They will have advantage in the list of prizes awarded although the teams from the beaches will receive the souvenir buttons at Lincoln park.

The list of captains follows:

Al Kumskis and John Van Tuin, Calumet beach.
Frank Walker and Ed White, Jackson park beach.
George Iverson and Charles Krueger, Oak street beach.
Dick Thompson and Ed Harrell, Montrose beach.
Charles Flaschner, Bonner Miller, and Joe Mansfield, Diversey beach.
Lawrence Alexander, 31st street beach.
Charles Musick, Ohio street.
Frank Talaber, Oak street, north ledge.
Charges Smith, Oak street, south ledge.

CHICAGO DISTRICT OPENS BUSY GOLF PROGRAM TODAY

The Chicago district will open one of the busiest weeks of the 1935 season today with the qualifying round of the sixteenth annual junior tournament of the Women's Western Golf association this morning at Westmoreland and the second bracket of the qualifying round for the national public links title at Evergreen.

The public links trials, with 16 places already allotted at Big Oaks, will see a fight for another 16 at Evergreen today, and the final 16 places will be settled tomorrow at Mid-City. The 48 qualifiers will meet at Westgate Valley on Thursday to determine the four players who will represent Chicago in the national meet at Indianapolis on July 29.

The first annual Pro Boys' tournament of the Illinois P. G. A. will be held at Jackson park this afternoon, when a number of leading pros will join up with juniors, starting at 1 o'clock.

Tomorrow the South and West District Golf league will resume play, the former at Midlothian and the latter at Riverside. On Wednesday, the Knights of Columbus state tournament, the North Shore Silver Tassel and the Killdeer Karnival will hold the stage and on Thursday the Chicago District Golf association will hold one of its handicap events at Flossmoor. The Cook county open will begin tomorrow at Garfield park, continuing at match play through Friday. Lincolnshire will hold its annual Dawn to Dusk tournament on Saturday.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES—The Queen Gets A Grand Slam

DICK TRACY—The License Plate Clew

Christy and Sharkey Will Fight Tonight

Jimmy Christy, managed by the Catholic Youth organization, tonight will make his first appearance on the north side as a main event boxer in a ten round bout against Jackie Sharkey at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. In his only previous bout on the north side Jimmy stopped Joey Bozak in a preliminary affair at Marigold.

A victory march which includes as victims Mike Belloise of New York and Tony Morgano of Philadelphia has given Christy recognition as a featherweight. On this occasion, however, Jimmy will be making his bow as a lightweight.

Bob La Monte, west side welterweight; Milt Aron, Dubuque, Ia., junior welterweight; Bob Tinsley, St. Philip High school color bearer, and Tony Michaels, Madison Square loop gymnasium junior lightweight, will appear in preliminary events. Gene Higgins, stablemate of Christy, will oppose La Monte at six rounds; Joey Richards is matched with Aron at four, Tinsley will clash with Al Phal of Minneapolis at four, and Ben Irving, south side, is paired with Michaels at four rounds. Buck O'Neil will wrestle Rudy Kay.

RALPH FLANAGAN BREAKS MARK IN 880 YARD SWIM

Detroit, Mich., July 7.—(AP)—Ralph Flanagan, 17 year old Miami, Fla., high school boy, won a second crown in the National A. A. U. swimming meet here tonight, swimming the 880 yard free style in 10:07.6, an unofficial world mark for the long course.

It was the third defeat of the meet for Jack Medica, Seattle, who holds the listed world and American long course record for the 880 yard event of 10:15.4. Medica was shorn of the mile title by Flanagan last week and lost his crown in the 440 yard free style to John Macionis, Yale university student, Saturday.

Dexter Woodford, Ohio State university student, finished third behind Medica.

Jimmy Gilhula of the Detroit Athletic club successfully defended his title in the 220 yard free style, although he swam the distance in the comparatively slow time of 2:15.1. Gilhula staged a remarkable finish to come from behind and defeat Macionis by five or six feet.

Another defending title holder, the Lake Shore Athletic club of Chicago, came through in the 300 meter medley relay, defeating a team representing the Olneyville, R. I., Boys' club. Detroit A. C. teams finished third and fourth. The winners' time, 3:24.8, unofficially established a new American record.

The team trophy for the meet, which concluded with the medley relay event, went to the Detroit Athletic club, which had 45 points.

Alex Gordon 'Sets Down' to Talk Horses

BY FRENCH LANE.

People like to listen to Alex Gordon talk.

Primarily, of course, Alex is a horse trainer. He trained C. B. Shaffer's Coldstream for his victory in the Hyde Park stakes, which, for the time being at least, puts the colt in the lead in the race for the 2 year old championship.

But, besides horse training, Alex finds plenty of time just to "set around and swap yarns," most of them having to do with horse racing or cock fighting.

He's a Will Rogers type, is Alex. That is, if Will happened to be a Scotchman and a horse trainer and a chicken fighter.

Alex Does a Little Visiting.

Alex was doing a little visiting with Charley Van Meter, Bert Williams, Roscoe Goose and other trainers in one of the barns out at the Arlington Park track yesterday after the morning "work" hour.

"I'd never saddle a colt like Coldstream if I hadn't been one of those 'Mister, let me hold your horse' kids." Alex, who at least is no spring chicken, said in a reminiscent tone.

"I expect there were a couple of rips in the seat of my pants, and I'm sure I didn't have on any shoes or socks when I asked a big Irish fellow who drove up in front of the store in Braidwood [the Illinois Braidwood] 'to let me hold his horse.' I was about 12 then.

Gets Job "Holdin' Horses."

"That Irishman turned out to be Ed Corrigan. After I had held his horse for fifteen or twenty minutes he came out to get back in the buggy, sized me up and asked me how I'd like to go to work for him.

"'What doin'?' I asked him. "Holdin' horses," he told me.

"Well, I took the job, drove away with Corrigan, and the next day found out I had gone to work for a fellow who had 100 race horses in training. It turned out to be steady work, for the job lasted 17 years, or as long as Corrigan's money held out. I worked for him when he had more than a million dollars, and also when I had to loan him carfare to get to church."

Knowing Alex, the canny Scot, as they did, his listeners were sure this was true. He would have had a little in reserve long after Corrigan's millions had been spent.

Trains 12 Years for Fisher.

Three other jobs Alex has held since he left Corrigan. One day Bud Fisher, the cartoonist, asked him to train his race horses. Alex went to work. That job lasted for 12 years, until Bud tired of horse racing and sold his stock.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt was his next boss. For a half dozen years Alex prepared the Vanderbilt color bearers for their engagements. Mrs. Vanderbilt, then in failing health, sold all her horses except the great star, Sarazen, which is now a pensioner on a Kentucky farm.

Alex then became an owner. A half interest in the good horse Justice F. was his most precious holding, but Justice F. died. Two years ago C. B. Shaffer employed him, and if he uncovers a few colts like Coldstream, there is no immediate danger of his losing his job. Yet it is Alex's theory that good horses make good trainers.

TIGERS DEFEAT BROWNS, 12 TO 5; TENTH STRAIGHT

Solters Hits Three Home Runs for St. Louis.

Detroit, Mich., July 7.—(AP)—Detroit conquered the St. Louis Browns, 12 to 5, today, giving the Tigers a slam in the St. Louis series and extending their consecutive victories to ten.

Julius Solters, however, drew more acclaim from the 15,000 customers than did the victors, for he connected for homers in each of his first three times at bat and drove in the five St. Louis runs.

Wildness of the St. Louis pitchers was a heavy contributing factor to Detroit's victory, for of the 11 bases on balls granted the Tigers five were turned into runs. Score:

The condition of Will Harridge, president of the American league, ill with kidney ailments at the St. Francis hospital in Evanston, was much improved yesterday.

"I feel well enough to hurry to Cleveland for the All-Star game tomorrow," Harridge said, "but my doctor says I must stay in the hospital another day or two."

ALL-STAR BASEBALL.

THE third annual all-star baseball game between picked teams of National and American league players, first suggested and directly sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in 1933, will take place this afternoon at Cleveland's Municipal stadium on the lake front, which has a normal seating capacity of approximately 80,000 Arch Ward, THE TRIBUNE's sports editor, originator of the idea, is organized baseball's guest for the occasion.

The first contest, held July 6, 1933, at Comiskey park attracted 49,000 spectators and yielded net profit to charity of $46,508.99 at the regular scale of prices prevailing during the season. This sum was turned over by THE TRIBUNE to Commissioner Landis, President Harridge of the American league, and then President Heydler of the National league to enrich baseball's fund for old and dependent baseball players.

That epoch making initial contest was won by the American leaguers, 4 to 2, largely through Babe Ruth's homer into the right field stands in the third inning, responsible for two runs.

After such success it was inevitable the game, at first strenuously opposed by several National league clubs whose opposition was overcome through efforts of the late William Veeck of the Chicago Cubs, would be continued. It was equally inevitable that its promotion and supervision would be taken over by organized baseball rather than left in charge of one newspaper, even if that newspaper did have cooperation in selecting the players by vote of the fans.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE cheerfully assented to such plan, surrendering whatever right of priority it had by reason of originating the contest for the added benefit the game might receive from possibly greater nationwide publicity. It is only fair to state, however, that the first game received cordial press support, with only a few instances of lukewarmness by papers perhaps jealous of CHICAGO TRIBUNE prestige.

Moreover, the detail work and responsibility of such a contest were tremendous. It was underwritten wholly by THE TRIBUNE. If it had proved a flop, it rain had interfered, promotion expense, cost of transportation of participating players, and their hotel charges would have been THE TRIBUNE's loss. Every penny of profit, determined by an official audit, was given to charity.

The second contest was held in New York last season under the auspices of organized baseball, with practically the same conditions prevailing. Attendance and net receipts were smaller than at the Chicago game. American leaguers again won, this time 9 to 7.

This third contest to be held today in Cleveland promises to set an all-time attendance record for baseball, judging from the advance sale of tickets. The largest attendance at a world series game was 63,600 at Yankee stadium in 1926 when Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals participated. Given favorable weather Cleveland club officials in charge of ticket sales expect 88,000 to pass through the turnstiles.

SECOND GAME

The Sox scored one run in the first inning despite three hits and an error. Piet doubled past third with one out and scored on Haas' single through short. Bonura punched a single past Berger. Washington grounded to Trosky, and the latter made a wild throw to Lee, who was trying to cover the bag. Haas, seeing the ball on the ground, tried to score, but Trosky recovered and threw him out. Appling fanned for the third out.

The Indians tied the score in the fourth by bunching two hits on Jones, who previously had allowed only one. Vosmik started this slight disturbance by singling to center. Campbell arched a two bagger over Washington's head and Vosmik scored. Campbell went to third on Trosky's infield out, but the next two batters weren't able to do anything about it.

Indians Pick Up Lead.

Bargaining Jones out of two runs in the sixth began with Knickerbocker's single to center. Vosmik lifted a tall fly to right, but it dropped in front of Washington for a single. There was nothing phony about a two base drive to left center by Campbell. It scored Knickerbocker. The bases were loaded on an intentional pass to Trosky. Hale grounded to Dykes, whose throw forced Vosmik at the plate. Berger also bounced to Dykes, forcing Trosky at third, Campbell scoring. Shea's throw picked Berger off first to close the inning.

Lee doubled to center with one out in the seventh and it wasn't long after that Jones was removed. Lee scored when Knickerbocker singled after Galatzer's fly to right. Vosmik walked and this marked Jones' release. Fischer stepped into the vacancy and he too was generous. He walked Campbell, filling the bases. This did no damage, because Piet picked up Trosky's scorching grounder.

Sox Rear Up.

The wrecking of Lee's hopes of his first victory began in the seventh with Piet's single after two were out. Haas and Bonura walked, filling the bases. Sewell batted for Washington and also walked, Piet scoring. Appling then stepped in with an all-important hit—a single over short on which Haas and Bonura scored. Conlan, who ran for Sewell, took third. Dykes walked, reloading the bases. L. Brown relieved Lee and he walked Shea, sending Conlan home with the run that put the Sox ahead by 5 to 4. Pinch Batter Hayes, whose out opened the inning, then concluded it by fanning.

Phelps' assignment as a finisher was a success against the first two batters in the eighth. Then he passed Pytlak, and Winegarner, batting for L. Brown, singled. Galatzer also singled, Pytlak scoring. When Phelps passed Knickerbocker he was excused for Whitehead, but Vosmik singled off the big Texan to score Winegarner and Galatzer, putting the Indians in front, 7 to 5.

Rally Falls Short.

The Sox were back on the job in their half of the eighth, but could score only one. Simmons survived on a two base error by Hale and went home when Bonura singled off Stewart with two out. A single by Conlan was the signal to replace Stewart with Hudlin. He walked Appling, filling the bases. Dykes then bounced into a force play.

The teams closed the series at Cole's park with one game this afternoon.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE now gives you 244,000 MORE CITY AND SUBURBAN FAMILIES —the equal of a city of 1,000,000!

Airplane photo of downtown Chicago, the hub of a $5,000,000,000 market in which the Tribune is the first newspaper and the most productive advertising medium.

From the North Shore to the steel mills, the Tribune is the preferred family newspaper in metropolitan Chicago. More men and more women read it—and buy from it—than from any other Chicago publication. It is first in home delivered circulation. It is first in city and suburban circulation. It gives advertisers a coverage of the metropolitan Chicago district equal to that available through any two other Chicago newspapers combined!

Crowded aisles invariably speak for advertising success—and newspaper preference. Because they have repeatedly filled their stores from offerings in the Chicago Tribune, because they know where their advertising dollars do the most good, the famous Loop department stores ran a half million more lines in the Chicago Tribune last year than in any other Chicago newspaper. National advertisers feel the same way about it—the Tribune is first in general, automotive, financial and total advertising.

• A million more people—that is the difference between the daily coverage of Chicago and suburbs given by the Chicago Tribune and that by the next largest Chicago daily newspaper! Here is a plus market larger than a city the size of Cleveland, Pittsburgh or St. Louis.

In reaching 649,000 families in metropolitan Chicago on week-days, the Tribune gives you 244,000 more city and suburban families—60% more —than any other Chicago daily newspaper.

Nor is that all, for the Tribune also gives you a plus coverage of 151,000 families—600,000 more people—in the many surrounding cities that are so largely influenced by Chicago affairs and the Chicago Tribune.

With a total daily circulation of over 800,000—practically as large as the combined total circulations of any two other Chicago daily newspapers—the Chicago Tribune is the first newspaper and first selling medium in Chicago and the Chicago market.

WHEAT SLUMPS TEN CENTS TO SEASON'S LOW

Canada Chief Cause of Wide Break.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

At the close of trading in the Chicago grain market last week wheat sold at the lowest price that has been posted on the blackboard this season. At the same time the market registered new low values for oats and rye.

From a high price of 88¾ cents a bushel, which was reached early in the week, the principal wheat future, the September contract, fell nearly 10 cents to close at 79⅛ cents.

Behind the wide open break in prices that took place was a combination of influences, chief of which was the crackup of the Canadian government's five year old policy of artificial price supporting.

Liverpool Leads Decline.

Enactment by the Canadian policy of a new wheat bill which specifically repudiates the old policy was the signal for general liquidation in principal wheat markets of the world. The decline was led by the Liverpool exchange, the leading world market.

The alacrity with which American markets responded to the Canadian news illustrates that the United States is no longer on a purely domestic wheat basis. This year's crop again puts the country into the exporting class and definitly ties our prices to the price movement in international markets.

In 1933 and 1934, production of wheat in the United States fell short of domestic requirements. Most of the deficiency in supplies was made up by drawing on stocks carried over from previous years, while some wheat was brought in from foreign countries. Under such conditions, with the domestic market protected by high tariffs, prices in the United States were able to maintain a substantial premium over the world market.

A Different Situation.

This year, however, the United States faces a different situation. With prospects of a surplus of about 100 million bushels to sell abroad after deducting a normal carryover, the country will be more vitally affected by the course of prices in international markets. Canada's selling policy during the coming twelve months will have a direct bearing on the American market.

Meanwhile Russia gives promise of again entering the export field. The Russian crop is reported to be the largest in years, although definite information on the situation is not available.

DAILY AVERAGE OIL PRODUCTION SHOWS INCREASE

Washington, July 7.—(AP)—The bureau of mines reported today daily average crude oil runs to stills in May was 2,594,000 barrels, an increase of 92,000 barrels over April and of 2 per cent over May, 1934.

Imports of crude oil continued to increase, the average for May—bonded and duty paid—being 111,000 barrels, compared with 87,000 barrels in April. Stocks of crude at refineries, which had been increasing for several months, showed a small decline.

Daily average receipts of crude at refineries from all sources in May totaled 2,605,000 barrels, of which 4.3 per cent represented imports, 54.9 per cent intrastate sources and 40.8 interstate sources. Daily average deliveries of domestic crude to refineries in May totaled 2,494,000 barrels, or 51,000 barrels higher than in April. On the basis of origin, these deliveries were divided as follows: Texas, 973,000 barrels [39 per cent]; Oklahoma, 521,000 barrels [20.9 per cent]; California, 477,000 barrels [19.1 per cent]; all other states, 533,000 barrels [21 per cent]. Compared with April, these figures indicated chiefly a gain for California and losses for Texas and Oklahoma.

GROCERY CHAINS MAINTAIN NRA HOURS, WAGES

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—Corporate food and grocery chain stores generally were said to be maintaining NRA wages and hours and opposing "loss leader" selling in a report to President Roosevelt today by John A. Logan, executive vice president of the Food and Grocery Chain Stores of America.

The report, said to have been supplied the President at his own request, was based upon information received from executives of companies operating 16,278 stores and representing more than 72 per cent of the association's membership.

In a letter to Mr. Roosevelt, Logan said that "to the best of our knowledge none of the food and grocery chain store distributors affiliated with our association has lengthened hours or reduced wages from the levels which prevailed on May 27."

High Speed Trains Boost Rail Trafic

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Placing in service of new high speed day passenger trains between Chicago and St. Paul-Minneapolis and between Chicago and St. Louis has brought new business to the railroads, according to the experience of the seven railroads participating in the improvement. At the same time these roads report that business on their night trains either has been maintained at the old levels or has been increased, indicating that the new trains have not taken patronage away from the old trains.

Passenger officials of the respective roads assert that a substantial part of the new business comes from patrons who otherwise would have used private automobiles, buses, or airplanes. They attribute the fact that their business on night trains has stood up so well to passengers buying round trip tickets to take advantage of the lower fares for the two way tickets.

Average Holds Up.

The North Western, whose "400" was the first of the high speed trains, reports that it has carried an average of 150 passengers a day on this crack train each way between Chicago and the Twin Cities during the six months it has been in service. Since the Burlington and Milwaukee have had their fast trains in service, the daily average for the "400" is between 130 and 140.

A new lounge car recently was installed on the "400" fitted with modernistic steel furniture. Business in the dining car and the "Mid-Car bar" is good, the road reports.

The Burlington reports that since its Twin Zephyrs have been making a round trip a day each between Chicago and the Twin Cities its business between the terminals and to intermediate points, has increased 64.4 per cent northbound and 56.1 per cent southbound. These increases are for the first 25 days of June over May. The trains on their four daily trips handle a total of from 310 to 315 passengers compared with a 352 passenger capacity for the four trips. The road reports that its night business is holding up well.

Hiawatha "Satisfactory."

Operation of the Hiawatha has been very satisfactory, the Milwaukee road reports. Originally planned to have five cars this crack train between Chicago and the Twin Cities now contains seven cars; four coaches, two parlor cars, and a dining car. The capacity of the train is 238 passengers and so heavy has been the demand for places on it that on a number of occasions additional patrons have ridden in the lounge space. The road reports that travel has increased on its night trains due to passengers taking round trip tickets.

The Hiawatha in June carried a total of 16,564 paying passengers, an average of 552 a day. The highest number carried was on Saturday, June 29, when 500 passengers were carried on the northbound train and 408 on the southbound. Business in the second half of the month was 23 per cent greater than in the first, W. B. Dixon, general passenger agent of the road, reported. The figures apply to intermediate business although through travel accounted for the greater part of the volume.

Report 60 Per Cent Gain.

On the Chicago-St. Louis run, the Alton road reports that since the advent of the 5½ hour trains its business has increased about 25 per cent. Night travel has not been affected by the road's two 5½ hour day trains.

The Chicago & Eastern Illinois reports that placing its crack day train on a 5½ hour schedule has resulted in a 60 per cent increase in business for June over May. Business on the night train has shown a slight gain, it was reported.

Business on the Illinois Central's fast train between Chicago and Springfield and St. Louis has shown a 10 per cent increase for May over June despite the heavy competition the road faces. Business in night trains has increased, the road said.

The Wabash reports that business on its crack day train has shown an increase of 60 per cent since it was placed in service on a 5½ hour schedule early in June.

WARM WEATHER SERVES TO BOOST CHICAGO TRADE

Practically all fronts of Chicago business reported a more general buoyancy in trade last week, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. Warm weather demands and future commitments during the last half of the week brought a big spurt to wholesale trade.

In retail circles business for the week was reported as fair, with overdue purchases of summer needs providing a boost. Nearby vacation resorts also reported a pickup in business, with a majority of resort proprietors asserting that the summer's activity already promises to the best since 1930.

Manufacturing showed signs of improvement, with the clothing field particularly optimistic. Public utilities have shown slight recessions from recent months, but the year as a whole still ranks ahead of 1934.

Wholesale Price Index Shows Gain in Last Week

New York, July 7.—The daily weighted price index of 30 wholesale commodities as compiled by Dun & Bradstreet gained ground in the last week. Last Monday the index stood at 117.91 compared with 116.73 on the previous Monday, but on June 1 the index measured commodities at 117.92, with 1930-32 equal to 100. Compared with a year ago the current index shows an increase of 5.6 per cent.

U. S. TO MARKET $500,000,000 OF 1⅜% NOTES

Needs Cash to Meet Heavy Expenses.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—In its first major financing program for cash since last December, the treasury today made an offering of $500,000,000 of 1⅜ per cent notes, maturing in four years and five months. The proceeds will go to swell the treasury's cash balance, which has been depleted by meeting emergency expenditures in excess of ordinary revenues and retiring consols called for redemption on July 1 in connection with the gradual retirement of National bank notes.

The low rate quoted on the notes is considered by treasury experts about comparable to the 1½ per cent paid on an issue of five year notes which were offered recently in exchange for other treasury notes maturing on June 15 and Aug. 1.

Dec. 15 Offering.

On Dec. 15 last the treasury offered $450,000,000 in 3½ per cent bonds and a similar amount of 1⅛ per cent notes of eighteen months' maturity and, when the oversubscription was very heavy, accepted about $970,000,000.

Since that time the only additional cash offerings necessary to meet all expenditures and maintain a comfortable cash balance have been two issues of 3 per cent bonds of $100,000,000 each offered to the highest bidders, and about $100,000,000 obtained by selling that amount of weekly treasury bills in excess of maturities of similar securities.

Treasury experts said that there was no significance in the use of notes rather than bonds at this time, except that there was a ready market for securities of relatively short maturity at very low interest rates. The maturity of four years and five months was fixed because the notes would then fall due on a quarterly tax payment date, Dec. 15, 1939, when no other treasury securities mature.

Rising Emergency Expenses.

It also was indicated that in shaping its immediate plans, the treasury gave no consideration to the possibility of obtaining additional revenue through the proposed new taxes, but simply went into the market for an amount which it felt was necessary in view of the increasing emergency expenses and other costs of government which the treasury must finance.

The fact that the treasury made no large cash offering on the regular financing date, June 15, but waited until the money actually was required, gave further substance to reports which have been current that borrowings would be made in the future from time to time as the necessity arose, rather than by one marketing of great issues at stated quarterly periods.

By such a program the treasury would keep at a somewhat lower level than has been customary the average cash balance in the general fund. Although it is agreed that the treasury must obtain large amounts of cash by the sale of securities to fill the gap when ordinary revenues fall short of meeting expenditures, there is evident a feeling that the recovery movement has gained an impetus which will cut down the government outlays well below estimates.

Need for Funds.

The present necessity for funds is due, in part, to the fact that in order to prevent a sharp rise in the excess reserves of banks the treasury is meeting the maturity of consols, which were backing for National bank notes, largely by the withdrawal of deposits with the banks, and has set aside profit accruing from devaluation of the content of the gold dollar, gradually to retire the National bank notes from circulation.

Should efforts to prevent collection by the treasury of the so-called processing taxes under the AAA succeed and benefit payments continue, a situation of considerable consequence to the treasury's financing programs would be developed, as receipts from processing taxes were estimated at $570,000,000 for the current fiscal year. But treasury officials do not look for any such emergency and are not taking it into consideration in shaping their plans.

The notes offered today will be dated July 15 and will not be subject to call before maturity on Dec. 15, 1939.

SABATH GROUP ASSAILS REALTY BOND METHODS

New York Hearings Open Today.

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Details of transactions in which thousands of holders of mortgage certificates here lost millions of dollars will be made public by the Sabath congressional committee investigating real estate bond holders' reorganizations, representatives of the committee said today.

The New York phase of the inquiry, planned a week ago, will get under way tomorrow morning when the committee begins its public hearings at the county court house. Subpenas for more than 100 real estate men, bankers, and others, it was said today, have been issued.

Huge Sum in Default.

Meyer Kraushaar, general counsel of the committee, reported that the preliminary inquiry has disclosed that in many instances reorganization committees, set up ostensibly to protect the interest of certificate holders, took advantage of the situation and obtained large sums of money under fraud and misrepresentation.

Mr. Kraushaar said that during the building boom the public invested more than 10 billion dollars in mortgages and mortgage certificates. He declared more than 8 billion dollars of the securities are in default and that 4,000,000 investors directly and about five times that number indirectly are affected.

He said the investigation disclosed that shortly after certificate issues went into default so-called real estate bond holders' reorganization committees were formed, and in many cases what little equity the certificate holders had was taken from them.

Little Work Is Done.

Mr. Kraushaar declared that investors were told by the bondholders' reorganization committees that speedy plans for reorganization would be put through if finances were obtained. Bondholders were assessed and little or no work was done by many of the committees, he said. The investigators did find, however, he said, that in some places committees were functioning properly and helping the certificate holders to salvage some of their investments.

Congressman Adolph J. Sabath, chairman of the committee, is expected to preside at tomorrow's session. He will interrogate some of the witnesses questioned at the sessions.

MALTING FIRM TO SELL ISSUE OF PREFERRED

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Sixty thousand shares of cumulative convertible participating preferred stock of the Froedtert Grain and Malting Co., Inc., Milwaukee, will be placed in the market tomorrow by Hammons & Co., Inc., at $15.75 a share. There are outstanding 80,000 shares, which are listed on the New York Curb exchange. Application will be made to list the additional shares there.

The estimated price to the public is $945,000, and the estimated underwriting commission or discount is $141,750, or $2.36 a share, provided that the 60,000 shares are sold at $15.75.

Froedtert Grain will use the proceeds to increase its working capital, which was reduced approximately $855,000 by the construction and equipment of a malting unit in Milwaukee county, Wis. The plant, which was completed early this year, increased the company's malting capacity about 75 per cent.

JOB INSURANCE BILLS OFFERED IN 32 STATES; LAWS ENACTED IN FIVE

New York, July 7.—(AP)—The national industrial conference board in a review made public today showed unemployment insurance bills were proposed in 32 states and enacted in five in the 45 states which held special or regular sessions this year to July 1. States which enacted laws were New York, California, Utah, Washington, and New Hampshire.

"The New York system will become operative starting with the payment of contributions on March 1, 1936," the board declared. "The laws of the other four states will become effective only in the event of federal legislation.

"A system of individual company reserves similar to that of Wisconsin is proposed under the Utah law. The laws of the other three states provide for the establishment of pooled-fund systems. Contributions from employés as well as employers are compulsory under the laws of California, Washington, and New Hampshire and may be authorized under the law of Utah. In the case of New York, the burden is placed entirely on employers."

Old age pension laws, the board found, were revised in four states and new legislation was adopted in five states. They were Arkansas, Connecticut, Missouri, Rhode Island, and Vermont. "Special sessions will be called in several states in the event that congress enacts the proposed economic security bill," it was stated.

SEEK TO PUNISH FRENCH FRANC SPECULATORS

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BASLE, July 7.—Plans to punish speculators who nearly broke the French franc and other gold currencies at the end of May, but were then caught short by American equalization funds supporting the franc were discussed this afternoon by governors of the big European central banks here for their monthly meeting at the Bank of International Settlements. Most of these speculators have not yet felt the effects of their failure because, according to good information, they were operating on a ninety day basis.

That means they will feel the pinch by late August for they have only until then to procure francs they sold by tens of millions in May, promising delivery within three months. Since the speculators sold francs without actually possessing any, hoping that the franc would decline in price, they must buy them in the next seven weeks. The object of the plans discussed today is to make them "pay through the nose" for these francs and to make it as costly and troublesome as possible for them to get francs to deliver. In the words of one French banker, the idea is to "teach them a lesson" so they will fear to attack the franc again.

No formal concerted action is contemplated, it is understood. Trust is placed, instead, in the fact that the central banks are in the best position to punish these speculators and have a common interest in punishing them. These are the banks of Holland and Switzerland, but especially the Bank of France. At the june meeting Montague Norman, governor of the Bank of England, told of measures which the British bank has taken to curb this speculation by curbing credits for it. Since the run has stopped, however, it is no longer a question of getting credits, but a question of getting francs or florins and as these must be obtained from the Bank of France and her allies they now have the whip hand.

Stocks Gain as Trade Sky Seems Fairer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 7.—With the news out of Washington taking a more encouraging turn and confidence growing in an early and extended Autumn trade improvement, the share market continues to harden in face of a customary seasonal slackening in business. With the exception of one minor setback, the "averages" climbed steadily last week to close yesterday within a point or so of their high mark for the year.

Industrial shares, as usual, enjoyed the cream of demand, some of the higher priced issues of the group rising as much as 3 or 4 points on moderate trading in one or two sessions of the week. Bank shares—the few that are listed on the "big board"—came to the front of the improved outlook on the banking bill and the utilities took fresh heart on the house revolt against the administration's bill with its "death sentence" for the utility holding companies.

Rail Shares Held Back.

The rails were held back by a number of unfavorable developments. Included in these were a series of disturbing reports, the move in the senate for an investigation of some eighteen of the roads and by statistics reflecting a substantial drop in railroad earnings in the first five months of the year as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

Steel shares enjoyed something approximating a bull movement in the last two trading sessions of the week on "reminders" that the industry is in line for an early pickup of substantial proportions in business due in part to the revised production schedules of automobile manufactures, schedules which decree the introduction of new yearly models in September instead of December as heretofore. Advices from Pittsburgh foreshadowed an increase in operations in that district over the coming week to a 35 per cent ratio. United States Steel, Bethlehem, Inland, Republic and American Rolling Mills were all prominent on the move.

The motors perked up with the steels and automobile accessories strengthened perceptibly. Chrysler was the star of the motor division.

Tobacco Shares Strong.

Tobacco stocks had a good day or two and miscellaneous specialties came in for an occasional whirl.

Trading was at a diminished pace, due largely to the intervention of the midweek holiday and the exodus of many brokers and traders from the city for the abbreviated vacation invited by it. The realization that congress is liable to be in session for several weeks yet in spite of the excessive heat at the capital and that the possibilities for legislation unfavorable to the market viewpoint are still great despite the utilities bill "revolt" also exerted a restraining influence. The break in wheat and weakness in the cotton market had little effect on the stock list.

Brokerage house comment reflects the general opinion that the trade recovery insistently predicted for the Autumn will depend first on the harvests which now look favorable and after that very largely on the trend of midsummer congressional activities. The modified banking bill is regarded in some Wall street quarters as one of the most bullish steps taken in this congress so far.

FOUR POINT RISE IS EXPECTED IN STEEL OUTPUT

Rebound Seen from Holiday Slump.

Steel mill operations will rebound to at least 35 per cent this week from the artificially low level of 31 per cent last week when holiday suspensions caused the operation rate to break 6 points, says the magazine Steel. The third quarter begins under favorable conditions, the journal comments, with producers impressed with prospects that lie just ahead.

In every district except New England and Youngstown, production is scheduled to regain all its losses this week and at Pittsburgh there will be an increase, according to the review.

Output Here Down 8 Points.

Last week every district except Birmingham showed a slump in production. In Chicago the rate dropped 8 points to 33 per cent, at Detroit 16 points to 78 per cent, Wheeling 8 to 40, Cleveland 30 to 16, Buffalo 3 to 29, Pittsburgh 10 to 20, eastern Pennsylvania 8 to 21, Youngstown 16 to 26 and New England 5 to 56 per cent. Birmingham was unchanged at 30 per cent.

"A factor for strength is the increasing interest manifest by steelmakers in scrap, and the firmness of prices, as scrap dealers are loath to part with supplies," the review says. "A valley steelworks is reported to have purchased 40,000 to 50,000 tons. Dealers' and consumers' stocks are estimated to be 30 to 40 per cent less than at this time last year.

Retail Auto Market Strong.

"Temporarily, too, automobile assemblies made a sharp dip, to 59,000 for the week, down 30,000. The retail market for automobiles is proving much stronger than anticipated, and this has led makers to slow down programs for introducing new models. Some will not start until Sept. 1, or 30 days later than they had planned."

Steelmakers look for substantial releases for new models by Aug. 10, the journal continues, although these may be deferred. General Motors and others, in the meantime, have placed additional orders for materials to be used on present models. Chrysler's contract with the Midland Steel Products company for frames will benefit a Cleveland strip mill by at least 30,000 tons.

Rate Pressure Renewed.

Leading automobile manufacturers are renewing pressure for preferential prices based on tonnage, but Toledo steel consumers have started a drive to abolish the practice adopted by steelmakers in 1933 whereby the latter absorb some of the freight from eastern mills to Michigan, giving Michigan a lower delivered price than Toledo.

The price structure generally is steady, the journal declares. On large railroad and government requirements last week only established market prices were quoted. The magazine's iron and steel price composite remains at $32.39 a ton, the finished steel index at $54 and the scrap composite at $10.34 a ton.

ATTACKS ON BIG BUSINESS CALLED PERSONAL SPITE

Oil Company Assails New Legislation.

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Charging that there is a well defined movement to penalize big industrial units to a point which not only would prevent further growth, but also would break down their present corporate structures, The Lamp, official organ of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, says in its current issue that such a policy "is one of the least understandable of the cure-alls for the maladjustments of our economic position."

"Those who seek new legislation to put the major industrial enterprises of the country at a disadvantage in competing with smaller companies," The Lamp continues, "must believe that the possible good from such punitive measures outweighs the certain injury. But they have been strangely reticent in presenting any case for that opinion. So little has been offered to explain the campaign against big business as to leave the uninformed, though perhaps unwarranted, impression that the actuating motive is chiefly personal animus.

Size of Companies.

"The theory should be brought out into the open for analysis and thoughtful study. Why is size, per se, objectionable? We live in a big country, in which the total volume of business in any competitive line dwarfs the share done by the leading unit in its field. The growth of population and insistence upon a richer life than was afforded in the days of the stage coach have themselves fostered the expansion of business so as to bring about economical production and distribution to meet diversified requirements.

"It had to be a big business that could spare capital to develop foreign supplies to supplement our own and foreign markets to consume our surplus production. Only big business could have ventured fortunes in large scale development work that had to be financed through many years of vicissitude before reaching a position where it could pay returns. It was big business that financed and carried on research and other pioneering efforts in fields not susceptible of any immediate financial gain.

"If big business has become a threat to the individual's economic independence, it must be in achievement of the status of monopoly, either through control of a raw material, or through such low costs resulting from large scale operations as to make it essentially a monopoly through its ability to undersell other suppliers.

No Nation-Wide Monopoly.

"As a matter of fact, outside of the telephone and telegraph companies and the mail and other services provided by the federal government, there is no nation-wide monopoly. Local monopolies are for the most part public utilities, where exclusive franchises have been granted in the public interest, subject to public regulation. A railroad, for instance, is essentially monopolistic in the territory adjacent to its lines, but to project a competing rail service would in most cases result in injury to the community as well as to the carrier originally in the field. So it is with most of the gas and water and electric companies. But where not so protected by franchises, business under modern conditions cannot usurp exclusive rights to a product or a field.

"Experience has shown in late years that the larger the enterprise the more favorable the conditions, for its small competitor. He does not have to content himselm with crums from the big man's table, but to the limit of his ability to make a lower price or render a better service takes his choice of the business in his immediate vicinity."

UTILITY SHARES SHOW INCREASES IN CURB TRADING

New York, July 7.—(AP)—With the exception of some wide swings in stocks of electric light and power companies, narrow price changes were the rule on the Curb exchange last week.

A uniform upward movement that carried selected issues as much as 6 to 10 points higher developed among utility stocks following rejection by the house of representatives of the "death sentence" clause in the holding company bill. Preferred stocks of some of the better known holding companies, such as Electric Bond and Share, made one of their very infrequent appearances on the tape and were given a brief but brisk workout.

Oil stocks failed to show the steadiness that has featured this group for a month or longer, and while there was no selling pressure of consequence leaders drifted quietly lower under small offerings that came from no place in particular.

In other divisions of the list there was some irregularity and most movements were of a technical character, reflecting the in and out trading policy of professionals. Some of the chemical stocks were especially strong.

CORPORATE BOND MARKET WORKS HIGHER IN WEEK

Many Issues Set New Highs for This Year.

New York, July 7.—(AP)—A steady trickle of investment funds into high priced domestic securities kept the corporate bond market pointing upward most of last week.

The Associated Press averages for both the industrial and utility groups were liberally studded with "new 1935 high" designations and the slow moving low yield group, containing the prime investment bonds selling many points above their par, broke into new ground for the year on Tuesday. Railroad bonds backtracked a bit, largely as the result of weakness in bonds of the Southern railroad.

Steel Issues Strong.

Especially bright spots among the industrial loans were bonds of some of the leading steel companies which rose slowly but steadily along with stocks of these corporations most of the week.

Numerous reasons were assigned for the upturn, including the improved statistical position of the industry as a whole and the particularly good results achieved by some of the smaller companies in effecting operating economies that are expected to show results in third quarter earnings statements. A refunding issue of $55,000,000 Bethlehem Steel 4¼s was easily absorbed by the market during the week.

United States government bonds had an uneventful week and price changes were generally small.

Refunding Operations.

Refunding operations made public involved, among others, two of the large Chicago packing houses. Wilson & Co. registered with the SEC an issue of $20,000,000 series "A" first mortgage bonds, due in 1955, and bearing 4 per cent coupons. Proceeds will be used to retire outstanding obligations bearing 5½ and 6 per cent. Plans to refinance the funded debt of the Cudahy Packing company were whipped into shape for presentation to stockholders.

The Italo-Ethiopian situation threw the foreign division into disorder. Both governmental and private Italian obligations were placed on the market in substantial amount and losses were rather severe. South and central American bonds displayed independent strength.

WOOL INDUSTRY IS BALLOTING ON BUSINESS RULES

New York, July 7.—(AP)—The National Association of Wool Manufacturers announced today that it had sent ballots to its members asking a vote on the association's proposed rules of business procedure for the wool textile industry.

The announcement stated that most of the provisions of the former NRA code for the industry had been retained, these including minimum wage and hour scales, and a ban on child labor.

The collective bargaining clause of the old NRA code has been dropped. The announcement stated that the question of employé relations "seems to have been completely covered by the Wagner labor bill."

Shipments of Rayon Show 16 Per Cent Gain Over '34

Shipments of rayon to domestic mills in the first half of 1935 were 16 per cent larger than in the same period last year, according to the current issue of Textile Organon, published by the Tubize Chatillon company. Deliveries held up well during June, the paper states, and "the outlook for rayon yarn consumption is good over the next few months."
